By a petition of right the suppliants, as assignees of civilian claimants who had suffered loss or damage by German aggression out of the War, claimed on their behalf payment of compensation out of the moneys paid or payable as reparations under the above article. The case made by the petition was that the claimants had sent particulars of their claims, first, to the Foreign Claims Office, &, afterwards, to the Reparation Claims Department in accordance with the instructions of His Majesty's Government, that these claims had been duly verified by the Government, & were included in the agreed total of claims for reparations which Germany was required to pay under the treaty, & that the Crown in inviting the claimants to submit their claims had constituted itself an agent or a trustee for the claimants in respect of any money received by it from Germany on account of reparations, & that any such money was money had & received by the Crown to the use of the claimants :—Held : on demurrer by the Crown, the petition afforded no ground for the contention that the money received under the treaty was received by the Crown as an agent or a trustee for the claimants, or as money had & received to their use, & was bad as disclosing no ground of claim cognisable by the ct.—CIVILIAN WAR CLAIMANTS ASSOCN., LTD. v. R., [1932] A. 374b. —— Service of copy on person in possession of property claimed—Petitions of Right Act, 1860 (c. 34), s. 5.]—A lunatic, at the date of her death in 1798, was entitled to certain funds in Court representing the residuary estate of her father. In 1794 the master had reported that the lunatic had no heir-at-law or next of kin. In 1798 & 1801 the Crown made ex gratia grants of these funds to certain persons & obtained an indemnity in respect of these grants. In 1926 a petition was presented by persons claiming to be the next of kin of the lunatic for the payment to them of the whole of her personal estate. The parties agreed to confine themselves, for the present, to seeking a determination of the following questions: (a) whether the petition was maintainable on the assumption that no part of the funds in question ever came into the hands of or was dealt with by his present Majesty or his nominees or grantees or was carried to the Consolidated Fund; (b) whether the petition was barred by any Statute of Limitations; (c) whether in view of Petitions of Right Act, 1860 (c. 34), s. 5, the suppliants could proceed without serving the petition upon the successors in title of the persons to whom the ex gratia grants had been made: —Held: Petitions of Right Act, 1860 (c. 34), s. 5, did not apply to the case.—Re MASON, [1928] 1 Ch. 385; 97 L. 801. For the existing paragraph in original volume substitute as follows :—

From order declaring prisoner's right to liberty—Order not directing discharge—Order of Court of Appeal—No appeal to House of Lords.]—No appeal lies from an order of a competent ct. for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus where the ct. determines the illegality of appct.'s detention & his right to liberty, although the order does not direct his discharge.

Upon the application of a man whom the Home Secretary had caused to be arrested & deported to Dublin, where he was interned by the Govt. of the Irish Free State, the Ct. of Appeal, reversing the decision of the Div. Ct., granted an order nisi, which they subsequently made absolute, for the issue of a writ of habeas corpus directed to the Home Secretary, the ct. holding that the detention was illegal as the Home Secretary had no power to order a person to be interned in the Irish Free State; &, owing to a doubt whether the Home Secretary had control of the body, the order allowed him a week within which to make his return to the writ. Before the week had elapsed an appeal by the Home Secretary to the House of Lords was heard on the question of competency :—Held : notwithstanding the generality of the language of Appellate Jurisdiction Act, 1876 (c. 59), s. 3, the House had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal.—Secretary of State for Home Affairs v. O'Brien, [1923] A. A. assessments on the properties for that year. Additional assessments to income tax, Sched. A., were accordingly made in respect of the tax undercharged, & the Inspector of Taxes refused to certify the claim under r. 8 on the ground that relief under that rule applied only to assessments which were reduced for purposes of collection under r. 7. Notice of appeal was given by the owners against the additional assessments & against the refusal of the Inspector to certify the claim under r. 8, but at the owners' request the hearing of the appeals was postponed pending the decision of the ct. on rules nisi, which the owners had applied for & obtained, calling upon (a) the General Comrs. & the Inspector of Taxes to show cause why a writ of prohibition should not issue, prohibiting them from proceeding with the additional assessments; & (b) the Inspector of Taxes to show cause why writs of certiorari & mandamus should not issue, quashing his refusal to certify the claim under r. 8, & commanding him to furnish the requisite certificate in connection with the claim:—Held: discharging the rules nisi, the General Comrs. & the Inspector of Taxes had acted within their jurisdiction, &, as the statute prescribed procedure for appealing against the additional assessments & against the Inspector's refusal to certify the claim under r. 8, prohibition, certiorari & mandamus would not lie.—R. v. KINGSLAND PARISH INSPECTOR OF TAXES, Ex p. PEARSON, KINGSLAND ESTATE, R. v. KINGSLAND PARISH INCOME TAX COMRS. & INSPECTOR OF TAXES (1922), 8 Tax Cas. 327.

On July 30, 1929, appct. made a proposal in writing to the rating authority for the amendment of the list under Rating & Valuation Act, 1925 (c. 90), s. 37 (1), with the result that the assessments were reduced to £25 gross & £18 rateable value. Not being satisfied with that decision, appct., acting under sect. 37 (8) of the Act, on Nov. 18, gave notice of appeal to the clerk of the peace, but by reason of delay a copy of such notice was not served on the assessment committee within the period specified in Sched. Board limiting a time for the carrying out of a sewerage scheme, pursuant to a local Act passed in 1885. The writ after service was left in the hands of one of the members, who lost it. In Mar. 1903, of the forty-eight members of the council only seven remained who were originally served in 1897, & in that month all forty-eight members were served with an order of the ct. to make a return to the peremptory writ served in 1897, a copy of which accompanied the order. On a rule nisi to show cause why the return should not be taken off the file, & calling on the forty-eight individual members to show cause why writs of attachment should not issue against them for disobedience to the peremptory writ, the ct. was of opinion that, under the circumstances, all forty-eight members were duly served with the peremptory writ in Mar. 1903. It was ordered that writs of attachment should issue against the seven members originally served, the writs to lie in the Crown Office until a certain date, leaving the onus on the seven members to satisfy the ct. that the writ was obeyed. The matter was allowed to stand over as against the other forty-one.—R. v. WORCESTER CORPN. (1903), 68 J. P. 130; 2 L. G. R. 51, D. C.

2735a. —— Order of County Council—Improper grant of cinematograph licence.]—It was the practice of a certain County Council, in granting licences to use premises for cinematograph exhibitions, to impose the condition that the premises should not be so used on Sundays, Christmas Day or Good Friday; but also to entertain applications for permission to open the premises for cinematograph entertainments on those days. A co. applied for a licence to open & use premises for cinematograph entertainments, & also for permission to open the premises for such purposes on Sundays, Christmas Day & Good Friday. In compliance with this application the County Council made an order to the effect that, "subject to arrangements at the premises being completed to its satisfaction, the Council will take no action for the present in the event of the above named premises being opened for cinematograph entertainments on Sundays, Christmas Day & Good Friday as from & including Sunday, July 6, 1930, provided: (i.) that a sum of £35 be paid to charity in respect of each Sunday, Christmas Day & Good Friday on which the premises are opened for cinematograph entertainments." The permission was also subject to conditions relating to the auditing of receipts & expenses, the character & hours of the entertainments, & the employment of servants:—Held: a writ of certiorari should issue to bring up & quash the order of the County Council as having been made without jurisdiction, the council having no power to dispense with the provisions of the Sunday Observance Act, 1780 (c. 49).

I am unable to distinguish in principle between the application for a licence under Cinematograph Act, 1909 (c. 30), & an application made with regard to a licence for a public-house, which for many years . . . has been held to be a judicial act (SLESSER, L.J.).—R. v. LONDON COUNTY COUNCIL, Ex p. ENTERTAINMENTS PROTECTION ASSOCN., LTD., [1931] 2 K. 544a. ——.]—Pltfs., shipowners, chartered a steamer to defts. to carry a cargo of timber from the Baltic to Hull. The charterparty contained a clause as follows: "Cargo to be loaded & discharged with customary steamship dispatch according to the custom of the respective ports. The cargo to be brought to & taken from alongside the steamer at charterer's risk & expense as customary." The steamer discharged the cargo at Hull in due course, but disputes arose between pltfs. & defts. as to the division of the cost of discharging the cargo. Pltfs. brought an action to recover a sum which they had paid in effecting the discharge which they said should have been paid by defts. Defts. refused to pay on the ground that by the custom of the port of Hull the expense in question should be borne by the shipowners: —Held : the custom relied on by defts. was inconsistent with the language of the charterparty & was not admissible in order to decide upon whom the expense in question should rest.—REDERI AKT. 635a. Lancashire—Weaving trade—Deduction for bad work in estimating value of work to be paid for.]—Pltf. was a weaver in defts.' employment & his wages were calculated on the amount & kind of cloth woven in each week in accordance with a uniform list of prices agreed between the employers' & workmen's unions. According to the list of prices, pltf. became entitled for the week ending Aug. 1, 1928, after agreed deductions, to a sum of £2 5*s.* 0½*d.*, but defts. only paid him £2 4*s.* 0½*d.*, claiming the right to deduct 1*s.* in respect of three yards of cloth woven with a fault rendering them unmerchantable. The evidence showed that it had been the practice of the mill for many years to make deductions for work not done with reasonable care & skill, the deductions not exceeding in amount the loss sustained by the employers & often not being exacted. A similar usage existed in the bulk of the mills carrying on the Lancashire weaving trade, though some of the mill owners were trying to do without deductions:—Held: the established practice in defts.' mill resulted in the incorporation in the contract of employment of pltf. as of all other weavers employed at the mill of a term enabling the employers to make a deduction, not exceeding the actual or estimated loss occasioned, from the specific sum payable for each piece of cloth woven, if the workman did not exercise reasonable care & skill in weaving the cloth.

A usage in the Lancashire weaving mills allowing an employer to make at his discretion deductions from wages for bad work, not exceeding a certain defined limit, is neither unreasonable nor uncertain; & the fact that it at present exists at about 85 per cent. only of the mills does not prevent it from being a good legal usage on the ground of want of universality (per CUR.).—SAGAR v. RIDEHALGH (H.) & SON, LTD., [1931] 1 Ch. 310; 100 L. The rules of the assocn. provided for an appeal to an appeal committee, & defts. claimed a right of appeal. 147 iii. ——.]—In an action for damages for personal injuries pltf. if successful is entitled to fair compensation for pain & suffering; & a charge to the jury which tells them that they may make an allowance therefor but are not bound to do so is a misdirection which, if the jury make no such allowance, may afford ground for ordering a new trial, even though not objected to at the trial.—HEITNER v. GILLSTROM, [1930] 2 W. 149 i. —— Nervous shock—Actual impact.]—Damages claimed for nervous shock, as a result of an accident arising from negligence, cannot be recovered where the nervous shock produces only a mental disturbance unaccompanied by any actual physical injury. If impact is not necessary, it is a question of fact in each case whether or not pltf. sustained physical injury & whether such injury was the natural & reasonable result of deft.'s negligence.—HOGAN v. R., [1924] 2 D. 149 iii. —— —— False statement.]—Deft. falsely stated that pltf.'s son had hanged himself. The report was told to pltf., who, believing it, suffered a violent shock & became ill :—Held : the damage was the natural & probable cause of deft.'s act, & pltf. had a good cause of action.—BIELITSKI v. OBADISK, [1922] 2 W. 149 iv. —— ——.]—A man & a woman to whom he was engaged were knocked down by a motor omnibus. The man was struck by the omnibus & received considerable physical injury. The woman did not appear to have been actually struck, & she received no direct physical injury, but she suffered severely from shock. In an action of damages at her instance the judge directed the jury that, if by the fault of defts. pursuer had suffered nervous shock through apprehension for her own safety, they were entitled, in assessing damages, to include any aggravation of that shock occasioned by the fact that her companion was involved in the catastrophe. The jury found that pursuer had suffered personal injury resulting in nervous shock involving apprehension for her own safety, aggravated by anxiety for the safety of her companion, & awarded damages :—Held : in the circumstances the jury could not be asked to discriminate between the amount of shock suffered by pursuer due to apprehension for her own safety & the amount due to anxiety for her companion.—CURRIE v. WARDROP, [1927] S. 181a. —— ——.]—Pltf., an actress, was engaged by defts. to play in a play for the period of rehearsal & for the run of the play, & there was a collateral agreement that defts. would advertise her in a prominent position. Defts. refused to allow pltf. to play, but they paid her the whole of her salary down to the end of the run of the play. In an action for breach of contract the jury awarded to pltf., over & above her salary already paid, damages for loss of reputation through her not being employed to play the part :—Held : as there was an express agreement to advertise pltf. this necessarily implied an obligation to give pltf. an opportunity of acting, & pltf. was entitled, in addition to her salary already paid, to the damages awarded by the jury for loss of reputation.—MARBÉ v. GEORGE EDWARDES (DALY'S THEATRE), LTD., [1928] 1 K. Resp. objected that the part assigned to him was not one of the three leading comedy parts &, on the refusal of applts. to recast him, declined to appear in the play & sued applts. for damages for breach of contract. At the trial of the action before a judge & jury the jury found for resp. for £1,000 damages for loss of publicity & for three weeks' salary & judgment was entered accordingly. 162 i. Loss of or injury to property—Collision at sea—Loss of musical manuscripts.]—In an action of damages against steamship owners, arising out of the sinking of one of their ships, pursuer claimed £15,000 in respect of the loss of certain music & orchestral settings in manuscript used by a concert party of which she was manager. She averred that the lost manuscripts were the sole copies of the compositions in question, & that she had the sole right to publish, perform, or issue mechanical reproductions, & to obtain copyright thereof. The compositions had cost pursuer about £2,000, but she averred that, through her concert party, they had acquired a reputation among the public which had greatly enhanced their value, & she further averred that she would have made substantial profits from the lost music in respect of copyright royalties, publication & sale, & disposal of performing & mechanical rights, apart from the use of it by her concert party : —Held : (1) pursuer's averments as to loss of contingent profits from copyright royalties, publication & sale, & disposal of performing & mechanical rights, were irrelevant ; (2) the measure of her damages in respect of the lost music was the cost of its replacement as nearly as might be, ascertained either by the market price of actual replacement, or by consideration of the commission which would have to be paid to composers of music of the class to which the lost compositions belonged. —REAVIS v. CLAN LINE STEAMERS, LTD., [1926] S. 227a. Several sub-sales.]—Defts. sold skins to pltfs., who resold to a sub-vendee. That sub-vendee sold to a second sub-vendee, who sold one of the skins, which had been made into the collar of a fur coat, to a third sub-vendee. The third sub-vendee sold to a woman who wore the coat & developed dermatitis on the face in consequence of antimony contained in the skin. In each sale the vendor knew the particular purpose for which the goods were required by the purchaser, & there was an implied warranty that the goods were reasonably fit for such purpose. The ultimate purchaser brought an action for breach of contract against her supplier, the third sub-vendee. The third sub-vendee defended the action, & in so doing acted reasonably; but in the result the ultimate purchaser recovered damages & costs against him. The third sub-vendee, who had incurred certain additional costs in connection with the action, claimed to be reimbursed by the second sub-vendee, & after some resistance, incurring further costs, the second sub-vendee paid. The second sub-vendee then claimed against the first sub-vendee, who after some dispute incurring further costs, also paid. The first sub-vendee claimed against pltfs., who, after taking advice, occasioning further costs, paid. Pltfs. sued defts. for breach of contract, claiming as damages the damages recovered by the ultimate purchaser, the costs on both sides in that action, & the costs of the intermediate actions :—Held : pltfs. were entitled to recover the damages which might reasonably be supposed to have been in the contemplation of the parties at the time of the contract; the parties must have contemplated that damages would be claimed, if there were a breach of contract of the kind that had occurred, by parties separated by several contractual steps from each of the immediate parties to each of the contracts along the line : pltfs.' damages should include (1) the damages recovered by the ultimate purchaser, (2) the costs on both sides in that action, inasmuch as it was reasonably defended, & (3) the costs of the intermediate actions, in so far as they were reasonably incurred.—KASLER & COHEN v. SLAVOUSKI, [1928] 1 K. 235a. —— Costs awarded in previous proceedings, but not recovered.]—Pltfs. sought to recover from defts., as special damage, the costs which they themselves had incurred in previous litigation in which they were defts. Pltfs. in the present action sent a motor lorry to be overhauled by defts. The repairs were carried out & the lorry was returned. Very shortly afterwards, while the lorry was in use on the highway, one of the wheels came off & damaged the van of pltf. in the previous litigation, who brought an action in the county ct. to recover damages against present pltfs. He won the action at the hearing, but the decision was reversed on appeal. He was a man of straw & unable to pay the costs incurred. Present pltfs. sued present defts. for damages for alleged breach of contract & negligence, & a common jury found in pltfs.' favour. After argument as to the right of pltfs. to recover as special damage against defts., on account of their breach of contract & negligence, the costs of all previous litigation :—Held : such damage was not

If, however, a subscriber does disclose information supplied by the agency with the result that the agency has to pay to a third party damages for a libel on that third party contained in the information in question, no special damage being suffered by the third party, the only damages recoverable by the agency from the subscriber in an action for breach of contract are nominal damages, the causa causans of the liability to pay damages being the unlawful act of the agency in publishing a libel & the disclosure by the subscriber being only the causa sine qua non.—BRADSTREETS BRITISH, LTD. v. MITCHELL (1932), 48 T. 411a. Contract to print bank-notes—Unauthorised use of plates.]—A firm of printers employed by the Bank of Portugal to print a series of bank notes known as Vasco da Gama 500 escudo notes delivered to the Bank 600,000 notes which were put into circulation in Portugal. Subsequently, in breach of their contract of employment, the printers delivered to one M., the head of a band of criminals, 580,000 notes of the same type, printed from the original plates or from plates made from the same die, in the belief that he had the authority of the Bank. M. & his associates introduced these false notes into Portugal & put a large number of them into circulation. The Bank on discovering that unauthorised notes were in circulation issued notices withdrawing the whole of this issue of Vasco da Gama notes & undertaking, within a limited time, to exchange all notes of this type presented to the Bank for other notes. The Bank had an exclusive licence to issue bank notes as legal tender in Portugal, but the amount of the notes to be issued was controlled by law. At all material times the currency was inconvertible. In an action by the Bank against the printers for breach of contract defts. maintained (a) that the loss suffered by the Bank was due to their own voluntary action in paying the unauthorised notes; (b) that the loss to the Bank was limited to the cost of printing & paper in regard to the new issue:—Held: (1) the loss arose naturally from the breach of contract; (2) the proper measure of damages was the exchange value expressed in sterling of the genuine currency given in exchange for the spurious notes, together with the cost of printing the genuine notes withdrawn.—BANCO DE PORTUGAL v. WATERLOW & SONS, LTD., WATERLOW & SONS, LTD. v. BANCO DE PORTUGAL, [1932] A. This other agreement had been previously made on the same day, but it was not signed till the following day, & it was to remain in force for ten years unless certain payments were sooner made. After observing the agreement with pltfs. for five months defts. repudiated it:—Held: as the continuation of the agreement between pltfs. & defts. for more than six months depended on the volition of a third party, & as the agreement contained nothing to prevent defts. from buying their stores outside the United Kingdom, pltfs. were entitled only to damages in respect of a period of one month.—FRANCO-BRITISH SHIP STORE CO., LTD. v. COMPAGNIE DES CHARGEURS FRANÇAISE (1926), 42 T. 487a. —— —— ——.]—By a contract dated Oct. 19, 1928, pltf. agreed to sell to deft. all her right, title, & interest in a licensed house known as T. of which she was the licensee. The contract provided that the purchase-money should be paid "on or about" Nov. 10, 1928, & that deft. should forfeit the deposit of £120 which he had paid if he should fail to fulfil his part of the contract ; also that either party refusing to comply with or neglecting to perform any part of the agreement should pay to the other, on demand, the sum of £200. On Oct. 3, 1928, deft. had given to the brewers who were the freeholders of T. references which they had accepted by Oct. 10. He went to the magistrates' clerk & signed the ordinary notices on reference to a request for a temporary transfer on Nov. 10, & for full transfer on Dec. 8. At least a week before Nov. 10 deft. knew that he would be unable to complete the purchase of T. unless he could raise a loan. His brokers acting in the matter sent him a notice to attend on Nov. 10. He did so, & first saw the brewers, telling them that he could not complete, & that the notice of application for transfer would have to be withdrawn & another one given. He then arranged with pltf. that completion should take place on Dec. 8. Deft., however, did not attend to complete. On Dec. 22 deft. stated that he would complete on Jan. 30. In an action by pltf. for a declaration that the contract had been rescinded & the deposit of £120 forfeited, & for damages :—Held : under the terms of the contract, the sum of £200 damages was in the nature of a penalty, & therefore not recoverable.—LOCK v. BELL, [1931] 1 Ch. 35 ; 100 L. The terms of the agreement are to be drawn partly from the written document & partly from all the surroundings of the written document, such as the nature of the transaction with regard to which the document is brought into life; (3) the Crown is not bound by the error or inadvertence of its officers, nor by any deliberate intention of its officers without proper authority to alter the terms of a written agreement.—R. v. PEAT FUELS, LTD., [1930] Ex. 1735a. Incorporation of guarantee clause—Identity of clause uncertain—Clause not available.]—Pltfs., a ship-repairing co., requiring a new intermediate pressure cylinder for the engines of a steamer which they had contracted to repair, obtained a quotation from defts., marine engineers. At the head of defts.' letter was a printed notice, "All offers are subject to our usual strike & guarantee clauses, accidents, etc." Pltfs. ordered the cylinder, but after it had been delivered & fitted it was found to be defective. A new cylinder was subsequently supplied by defts., but owing to the delay pltfs. were not able to complete the repairs in accordance with their contract with the shipowners & had to pay them damages. In an action to recover the amount of the damages defts. alleged that the contract for the supply of the cylinder was made subject to "our usual" guarantee clause & that their guarantee clause provided (inter alia) that "the contractors shall not in any case be liable for any detention of the vessel or other consequential damages howsoever arising" :—Held : as it was not clear what guarantee clause was incorporated, since the clause suggested by defts. was the clause in their usual engine agreement which was drawn to meet the case of engines being supplied to a shipowner & not to meet such a case as the present, & as it was not proved that defts. had made it clear that they intended to limit their liability, pltfs. were entitled to recover.—ALISON (J. The deed was registered under the Hong Kong Land Registration Ordinance, 1844, with a memorial which, as required by the Ordinance, was verified on oath & gave full particulars of the deed, including the receipt. In 1929 B. mortgaged a half interest in the property to applt. as security for an advance of $25,000 ; the mtge. was registered under the Ordinance. Before the advance was made, applt.'s solr. inspected the registered memorial of the deed of 1917, but he did not demand production of the original. B., unknown to applt. or his solr., was a son of resp. Resp. brought an action claiming to be entitled to the property freed from the mtge. By his evidence, which the cts. in Hong Kong accepted as reliable after an objection to its admissibility, resp. stated that the name A. was an alias for himself, that there was no consideration for the deed of 1917, & that it had remained in his possession, no beneficial interest being intended to be conveyed to his son B. :—Held : the action failed, both because resp.'s evidence was inadmissible to contradict the plain terms of the deed, & because the registered memorial estopped resp. from alleging a trust ; having regard to the full particulars contained in the statutory memorial, there was no negligence in not having required production of the deed itself.—TSANG CHUEN v. LI PO KWAI, [1932] A. Right of Crown to legislate for protectorate—Notwithstanding grant of territory within protectorate.]—The legislative authority over the territory of a Crown Protectorate belongs to the Crown & is controllable only by the Imperial Parliament.

Under the Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), the prerogative power of legislation in respect of Protectorates is exercised by Orders in Council, & these Orders have statutory effect. A grant of land in a Protectorate by the Crown is an executive & not a legislative act, & cannot by itself impose a fetter on the legislative power of the Crown. Where therefore by a subsequent Order in Council the Crown has exercised legislative powers in respect of the land previously granted, the legislative power so exercised is valid. The doctrine of derogation from grant cannot be applied in the case of a grant by the Crown so as to deprive it of its paramount right to legislate for the Protectorate in which the subject of the grant is situate. The Crown cannot renounce or fetter its legislative authority by the mere fact that in the exercise of its prerogative it makes a grant of land within the territory over which the legislative authority exists.—NORTH CHARTERLAND EXPLORATION CO. 10a. —— ——.]—An extension of British jurisdiction in a British protectorate by Orders in Council may be referred to an exercise of power by an act of State, unchallengeable in any British ct., or to statutory powers given by Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), under which the jurisdiction acquired by the Crown in a protected country is indistinguishable in legal effect from that acquired by conquest. The Crown cannot, except by statute, deprive itself of freedom to make Orders in Council, even such as are inconsistent with previous Orders.

Before the conquest & annexation of the South African Republic Swaziland was an independent native State, treated as a protected dependency of that Republic, by which it was administered under a Convention made in 1894 between Great Britain & the Republic. The Convention provided for the preservation of native law, & the agricultural & grazing rights of the natives. The annexation did not extend to Swaziland. Subsequently under Orders in Council certain lands in Swaziland were expropriated to the Crown, to the extinguishment of the use & occupation of them by natives under native law, certain lands being allotted exclusively to the natives:—Held: the Orders in Council were effective, even if they were not within the powers recognised by the Convention.—SOBHUZA II. v. MILLER, [1926] A. 17a. Order imposing liability to penalty—Power to make action void—Ceylon.]—An Order in Council of 1923 made provision as to the Legislative Council in Ceylon, but reserved to His Majesty power to revoke, alter or amend the Order. Applt., as common informer, brought an action to recover penalties under the Order from resp., who he alleged had sat and voted after his seat had become vacant under its provisions by reason of his having a pecuniary interest in a contract with the Govt. In 1928, after the action had been brought, but before its trial, an amending Order in Council was made providing that the action should be dismissed; it also amended the Order of 1923 so as to except the office held by the respondent from its operation:—Held: the Order of 1928 was valid, having regard to the power reserved by the Order of 1923, & was an effective defence to the action, although it was retrospective in its operation.—ABEYESE-v. JAYATILAKE, [1923] A. 20a. Power of expropriation in mandated territory.]—By the Mandate for Palestine, dated July 24, 1922, the Council of the League of Nations, acting under art. 22 of the Covenant of the League, entrusted to Great Britain the administration of Palestine. Art. 2 of the Mandate provided that Great Britain should be responsible for "safeguarding the civil & religious rights of the inhabitants of Palestine irrespective of race & religion." In 1923 an Order in Council authorised the High Comr. for Palestine to promulgate such ordinances as might be necessary for the peace, good order, & government of the country, & were not inconsistent with the Mandate. The High Comr. promulgated an ordinance expropriating certain springs for the purpose of supplying water to Jerusalem, with certain provisions for compensation.

In an action by the owners of the springs the Supreme Ct., sitting as a ct. of first instance, held that the ordinance was ultra vires, on the ground that it was inconsistent with the Mandate in that the provisions for compensation were inadequate. Special leave to appeal was granted, all questions of jurisdiction being left open. An Order in Council had made provision for appeals to the Privy Council, but only from orders of the Supreme Ct. sitting as a Ct. of Appeal:—Held: (1) the appeal was competent, since the jurisdiction under the Mandate was jurisdiction in a foreign country within the description in the preamble to Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37); (2) it was the right & duty of the ct. to consider whether the ordinance was consistent with the Mandate, but art. 2 had been misconstrued, & the ordinance was valid; (3) art. 2 did not mean that in every case of expropriation for a public purpose full compensation must be given. Natural justice required that in the absence of exceptional circumstances, fair provision should be made for compensation, but that depended not upon civil right, but upon the principles of sound administration, & it was not within the province of the ct. to consider whether an ordinance was within those principles. Further, the ordinance did make adequate provision for compensation.—JERUSALEM-JAFFA DISTRICT GOVERNOR v. SULEIMAN MURRA, [1926] A. C. 321; 95 L. J. P. C. 46; 134 L. T. 609; 42 T. L. R. 299, P. C.

In 1923 applts. not having then constructed any works, the provincial Govt. granted to resps. a lease of the water power & bed of the river within limits which overlapped those referred to in applts.' letters patent. Applts. brought an action against resps., claiming a declaration that applts. had a vested right in the river to construct dams, & an injunction:—Held: the action failed, since the letters patent contained no grant of a proprietary right in, or power to take possession of, any part of the river or its bed.—UNITED MANUFACTURING CO. v. ST. Those are matters of which the Governor-General is sole judge; he is not bound to give any reasons for promulgating an Ordinance under the sect. An Ordinance so promulgated constituting a special tribunal for the trial of a criminal case is not invalid in that it deprives the accused of the right of appeal to the High Ct. which they would otherwise have had.—BHAGAT SINGH v. KING EMPEROR (1931), 58 L. There must be an "emergency" to justify the exercise of the power; the power can only be exercised for the peace & good government of British India or any part thereof; the Ordinance must not go beyond the power of the Indian Legislature to make laws. There being nothing in the language of sect. 72 to indicate that the Governor-General's opinion on the points referred to above is to be taken as final, the initial presumption is that a ct. of law will have jurisdiction to go into such matters if it becomes necessary to do so, in order to determine any question properly coming before it for decision.—DES RAJ v. R. Under Government of India Act, 1910, s. 72, the Governor-General is the sole judge of the existence of the emergency, & all cts. can do is to inquire whether there was evidence upon which the Governor-General might reasonably conclude that an emergency existed.—EMPEROR v. CHANAPPA SHANTIRAPPA (1930), I. 56a. —— Future exercise—Cannot be fettered.]—Acting within the constitution, the legislature of a self-governing Colony or State is supreme, & no act of the executive Govt. can fetter in any legal sense the future exercise of its powers, or give to any person a title other than such as could be conferred under existing legislation.

When New South Wales Consitution Act, 1855, was enacted, Garden Island, in Port Jackson, was part of the waste lands of the Crown, the entire management & control of which were vested by sect. 2 of that Act in the legislature of the Colony. By notices published in 1865 & 1866, pursuant to Crown Lands Alienation Act, 1861 (N.S.W.), the island was dedicated as a naval depot. It continued to be so used by the Imperial naval authorities until 1913, but since that date it had been occupied by the Commonwealth naval authorities for the use of the naval forces which it provided & maintained. An Imperial Order in Council made in 1899 under Colonial Fortifications Act, 1877, recited an agreement by which the Government of New South Wales were to erect buildings & carry out works, partly on Garden Island, & the Imperial Government agreed that when the buildings & works were completed & the sites "conveyed, granted, or dedicated in perpetuity for the use of Her Majesty's navy in the same way as Garden Island had been," the Imperial Government would surrender certain lands which were not within 1855 Act, s. 2; the Order then, in consideration of the agreement, vested the lands in the Government of New South Wales. In 1923 the Minister administering the Crown Lands Consolidation Act, 1913 (N.S.W.), acting under sect. 25 of that Act, revoked the dedication of Garden Island:—Held: the recital in the Order in Council of 1899 did not preclude the Minister from revoking the dedication in the manner provided by the Act of 1913, & the revocation was effectual under sect. 25 of that Act, although the notice did not state the manner in which it was proposed to deal with the island. Judgment of the High Ct. affirmed, subject to the declaration made, that resp. State was entitled to possession of Garden Island, being varied to a declaration, in the words of Crown Lands Consolidation Act, 1913, s. 25, that by virtue of the revocation the island had become Crown lands within that Act, & liable to be dealt with in accordance therewith.—AUSTRALIA COMMONWEALTH v. NEW SOUTH WALES STATE, [1929] A. 91a. Enactment preventing King in Council from granting leave to appeal—Criminal case.]—Sect. 1025 of the Criminal Code of Canada, if & so far as it is intended to prevent the King in Council from giving effective leave to appeal against an order of a Canadian ct. in a criminal case, is invalid. The legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada as to criminal law & procedure, under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 91, is confined to action to be taken in Canada. Further, an enactment annulling the royal prerogative to grant special leave to appeal would be inconsistent with Judicial Committee Acts, 1833 (c. 41) & 1844 (c. 69), & would be invalid under Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), s. 2. The royal assent to the Criminal Code could not give validity to an enactment which was void by Imperial statute ; exclusion of the prerogative could be accomplished only by an Imperial statute.

According to the well-settled practice of the Judicial Committee His Majesty is advised to intervene in a criminal case only if it is shown that, by a disregard of the power of legal process, or by some violation of natural justice, or otherwise, substantial & grave injustice has been done.

Applt. was convicted in Alberta of an offence under Govt. Liquor Control Act of Alberta, which did not incorporate sect. 1025 of the Criminal Code of Canada, & of an offence under Canada Temperance Act, R. S. Can., 1906 (c. 152). For each offence he was sentenced to a fine, & in default imprisonment. The Supreme Ct. of Alberta, rejecting contentions as to the construction & invalidity of the material sects., affirmed the convictions, but gave leave to appeal to the Privy Council. The Crown petitioned the Judicial Committee to quash the appeals as incompetent, having regard to sect. 1025. Applt. petitioned for special leave to appeal. The petitions were heard with the appeals :—Held : (1) each appeal was in a "criminal case" to which sect. 1025 applied, so far as it was valid ; (2) in the absence of argument to the contrary, sect. 1025 prevented the Appellate Div. from giving effective leave to appeal ; (3) sect. 1025 did not exclude the prerogative right to give leave to appeal ; (4) the cases were clearly not within the category of the exceptional cases in which special leave to appeal was advised in a criminal matter.—NADAN v. R., [1926] A. 108a. —— —— Question of substance, not of form.]—(1) The Parliament of Canada cannot, by purporting to create penal sections under head 27 of the above sect., appropriate to itself exclusively a field of jurisdiction in which, apart from that procedure, it could exert no legal authority; if, when examined as a whole, legislation in form criminal is found, in aspects & for purposes exclusively within the provincial sphere, to deal with matters committed to the provinces, it cannot be upheld as valid.

Reciprocal Insurance Act 1922, of Ontario, authorised any person to exchange, through the medium of an attorney, with persons, whether in Ontario or elsewhere, reciprocal contracts of insurance, subject to provisions as to licences & other conditions; & it was provided that actions in respect of such contracts might be maintained in the cts. of the province. A Dominion Act of 1917 inserted in the Criminal Code (R. S. Can. 1906, c. 146), sect. 508c, by which it was made an indictable offence for any person to solicit or accept any insurance risk except on behalf of a co. or assocn. licensed under Insurance Act, 1917, of Canada. In answer to questions referred by the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario to the Appellate Div.:—Held: (2) the Act of 1922 was intra vires the province, since (a) its provisions were capable of receiving a meaning according to which, whether enabling or prohibitive, they applied only to persons & acts within the territorial jurisdiction of the province, & (b) although it might incidentally affect aliens & dominion cos., it did not deal with them as such, but was an Act dealing with contracts of insurance; (3) the making & carrying out of contracts licensed pursuant to the Act were not rendered illegal, or otherwise affected, by Criminal Code, s. 508c; that sect. was invalid, since, in substance though not in form, it was in regulation of contracts of insurance, subjects not within the legislative competence of the Dominion; (4) the answers under (2) & (3) would be the same if any of the persons subscribing to a reciprocal insurance contract was (a) a British subject not resident in Canada immigrating into Canada, or (b) an alien. In so answering this question no opinion was expressed as to the competence of the Dominion Legislature to enact Insurance Act, 1917, ss. 11 & 12 (1), whereby restrictions were placed upon aliens & British cos. in the matter of carrying on insurance business in Canada; but sect. 12 (2) was held to be invalid in relation to the subject of immigration.—A.-G. 128b. —— Insurance Act, 1927, ss. 11, 12, 65, 66—Validity.]—By sect. 11 of the Insurance Act of Canada, R. S. C., 1927, c. 101, a licence was made necessary from the Minister of Canada for any Canadian co. or any alien to carry on insurance business within Canada, &, by sect. 12, a licence was also required for any British co. or subject not resident in Canada who immigrated into Canada to carry on insurance business, & sects. 65 & 66 imposed penalties for insuring without such licences. The Special War Revenue Act, R. S. C., 1927, c. 179, imposed taxation on persons who insured with insurers so prohibited. British & foreign insurers obtained licences under the Quebec Insurance Act, & the Govt. of Canada required them to take out licences under sects. 11 & 12, & attempted to recover taxes from persons who had insured with them under the Special War Revenue Act. The Lieutenant-Governor of Quebec referred to the ct. the questions: "(1) Is a foreign or British insurer who holds a licence under the Quebec Insurance Act to carry on business within the Province obliged to observe & subject to sects. 11, 12, 65, 66 of the Insurance Act of Canada, or are those sections unconstitutional as regards such insurer? (2) Are sects. 16, 20 & 21 of the Special War Revenue Act within the legislative competence of the Parliament of Canada? Would there be any difference between the case of an insurer who has obtained or is bound to obtain under the Provincial law a licence to carry on business in the Province and any other case?":—Held: the answers must be to the first part of question 1, "No"; & to the second part, "Yes"; to the second question in both branches, "No." The conduct of insurance had been declared to be exclusively subject to Provincial law, & the Insurance Act of Canada, 1927, was not properly framed alien legislation within sect. 91 of the British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), & therefore was not within the legislative powers of the Dominion, neither was that Act properly framed law as to immigration within the meaning of sect. 95 of the Act of 1867. The taxation imposed by the Special War Revenue Act was void in that the tax was linked up with a Dominion licence which had already by this decision been held illegal.—Re INSURANCE ACT OF CANADA, [1932] A. 128e. Customs legislation—Extension of extra-territorial limit—Validity.]—British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), did not in terms impose any restriction on the Parliament of the Dominion of Canada with regard to enacting customs legislation designed to extend the extra-territorial limit. Further, in view of the history of the Imperial legislation in that respect, where plenary powers to pass customs legislation have been conferred on the Dominion Parliament, there is no justification for inferring such a restriction, & accordingly a Dominion statute extending such extra-territorial limit to 12 marine miles from the Canadian coast in the case of vessels registered in Canada was competently enacted before the passing of the Statute of Westminster, 1931, by which the Parliament of a Dominion now has in terms express & full power to make laws having extra-territorial operation.—CROFT v. DUNPHY (1932), 48 T. Parliament therefore had power to enact the proviso to sect. 1036 (1) of the Criminal Code of Canada directing that in the Province of Ontario fines are to be paid over to a municipal or local authority bearing, in whole or in part, the expense of administering the law under which the fine was imposed.—TORONTO (CITY) CORPN. v. R., [1932] A. 130f. Combines Investigation Act, 1927—Validity.]—Combines Investigation Act, R. S. Can., 1927 (c. 26), by sect. 36 makes it an indictable offence, punishable by fine or imprisonment, to be a party to the formation or operation of a "combine" as defined by sect. 2, that is, shortly stated, a combine which is to the detriment of the public & restrains or injures trade or commerce. Inquiries whether a combine exists are to be conducted by appointed officials, who are given powers to examine books, demand returns, & summon witnesses. By sects. 29 & 30, customs duties may be reduced, & licences revoked, where the duties are used to facilitate a combine, or when the holder of a patent uses it so as unduly to limit manufacture or increase the price of any article. The Criminal Code, R. S. Can., 1927 (c. 36), s. 498, makes it an indictable offence, punishable by fine or imprisonment, to conspire, combine, or agree unduly to limit transportation facilities, restrain commerce, or lessen manufacture or competition:—Held: sect. 498 of the Code & the Act, excepting sects. 29 & 30, were intra vires the Parliament of Canada under British North America Act, 1867, s. 91, head 27 (criminal law), & sects. 29 & 30 could be supported under sect. 91, heads 3 & 22. The legislation being in its path & substance within enumerated heads of sect. 91, it was not material that it affected property & civil rights in the Provinces (sect. 92, head 13), or if it affected, which it did not, the administration of justice in the Provinces (sect. 92, head 14). The Dominion could employ its own executive officers to carry out legislation which was within its constitutional authority. It was unnecessary to discuss whether the legislation was intra vires also under sect. 91, head 2 (the regulation of trade & commerce), but the Judicial Committee did not assent to a contention that the power under that head was confined to the furtherance of a general power which the Dominion possessed independently of it. —PROPRIETARY ARTICLES TRADE ASSOCN. v. A.-G. 130g. Aviation—Exclusive power of Dominion Legislature.]—The whole field of legislation in relation to aerial navigation in Canada belongs to the Dominion.

Having regard to (a) sect. 132 of the British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), which gives to the Parliament & Govt. of Canada all powers necessary or proper for performing the obligations of Canada, or of any Province thereof, under treaties between the British Empire & foreign countries, (b) the fact that an international Convention of 1919, a treaty under sect. 132, covered almost every conceivable matter relating to aerial navigation, & (c) the further powers of the Parliament of Canada under sect. 91, heads 2 (trade & commerce), 5 (postal services) & 7 (military & naval services), substantially the whole field of legislation in regard to the subject belongs to the Dominion. Any small portion not vested in the Dominion by specific words in the Act of 1867 is not so vested in the Provinces, & necessarily belongs to the Parliament of Canada under its authority to make laws for the peace, order and good government of Canada. Further, the subject of aerial navigation, & the fulfilment of Canadian obligations under sect. 132, are matters of national interest & importance; aerial navigation is a class of subject which has attained such dimensions as to affect the body politic of the Dominion. Consequently, the Dominion powers under sect. 132 in relation to the obligations under the Convention were exclusive powers, & the Parliament of Canada had authority to enact the Aeronautics Act, R. S. C., 1927 (c. 3), s. 4, & the Air Regulations, 1920, respecting the licensing of pilots, navigators, etc., & the regulation & licensing of all aircraft, aerodromes & air stations.—Re AERONAUTICS IN CANADA (REGULATION & CONTROL OF), [1932] A. 130i. Special War Revenue Act, 1922, s. 17—Validity.]—There is only one Crown, but by legislation assented to by the Crown revenue & property vested in the Dominion are distinguished from revenue & property vested in a Province. There are two separate statutory purses; in each the ingathering & expending authority is different.

By sect. 17 of the (Dominion) Special War Revenue Act, 1915, as amended in 1922, but since repealed, liability to the Crown for the excise taxes thereby imposed was to rank for payment in priority to all other claims of whatsoever kind save administration expenses. By sect. 1357 of the R. S. Que., 1909, all sums due to the Crown in respect of Provincial taxes are to constitute a privileged debt ranking after law costs. By sect. 16 of the Interpretation Act (R. S. Can., 1906, c. 1) no provision in any Act is to affect the Crown unless it is expressly stated therein that the Crown is to be bound thereby. In a bkpcy. in the Province of Quebec the assets were insufficient to discharge both a sum due for tax under the Dominion statute above mentioned & a sum due for Provincial taxes: —Held: that it would have been competent to the Parliament of Canada under the British North America Act, 1867, s. 91, head 21 (bankruptcy), or head 3 (taxation), to enact the statute of 1915 so as to prejudice the rights of the Province, but having regard to sect. 16 of the Interpretation Act the statute had to be read as though it provided that the priority enacted should not operate so as to diminish any right of the Crown in any Province; the result was that the two debts would run pari passu as claimed by the Province.—Re SILVER BROS., LTD., A.-G. 130k. Radio communication—Exclusive power of Dominion Legislature.]—The Parliament of Canada has exclusive legislative power to regulate & control radio communication in Canada.

Great Britain, Canada, & other Dominions & Colonies, having entered separately into a convention on the subject with foreign countries, the Parliament of Canada, under the general powers conferred upon it by sect. 91 of the British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), to make laws for the peace, order, & good government of Canada, had in relation to the obligations under the convention power similar to that which it would have had under sect. 132 if the convention had been a treaty between the British Empire as an entity & foreign countries. The legislative power of the Dominion extended to inter-provincial radio communication on the same grounds that it extended to inter-provincial aeronautics, & because the matter was within "telegraphs" & "works & undertakings connecting the Provinces with any other, etc.," subjects which sect. 92, head 10 (a), excepted from the authority of the Provincial legislatures, & sect. 91, head 29, brought within the Dominion authority.—Re RADIO COMMUNICATION IN CANADA, A.-G. 165 xi. —— Provincial legislation as to foreign companies.]—(1) Since the provincial Legislature's jurisdiction with respect to Dominion cos. is limited, it cannot delegate to an official an unfettered discretion which it does not itself possess. Therefore the power given the registrar by sect. 135 of Companies Act, 1929 (Alta.), which requires certain information to be given by a foreign co. when applying for registration, cannot apply to a Dominion co.

(2) The latter part of sub-sect. (1) of sect. 145 of said Companies Act & sub-sect. (2) of sect. 145, dealing with prospectuses, are invalid with respect to Dominion cos.

(3) A provision that foreign cos. shall pay such fees for registration as may be prescribed by order in council is invalid with respect to Dominion cos., since the fees being subject to order in council, may be altered at any time & may be increased so as to make it practically impossible for foreign cos. to come into the province at all & in that way prevent a Dominion co. from carrying on its business in the province.

(4) Requirements of a provincial Act for the payment of fees by foreign cos. & the furnishing of statements & returns are valid with respect to Dominion cos. if reasonable & uniform & if not such as to prevent such cos. from carrying on business in the province.

(5) Sect. 141 of Companies Act, 1929 (Alta.), requiring the painting, affixing & legible printing of a co.'s name, can be interpreted as intended, although not so expressed, to apply only to transactions within the province & to that extent it is valid with respect to Dominion cos.—Re ROYALITE OIL CO., LTD., [1931] 1 W. 165 xii. —.]—The basic idea underlying the Confederation scheme is that there shall be co-ordinate governments, the Dominion on the one hand & the provinces on the other, dividing between them all legislative power in Canada, the one not subordinate to the other, but each enjoying sovereign power within its own field of legislative competency as fixed & limited by the B. N. A. Act. A provincial Legislature may enact laws, province-wide, of general application in respect of any of the subjects enumerated in sect. 92, & in so doing may completely paralyse all activities of a Dominion trading co., provided that in enacting such laws it does not enter the field of co. law & in that field encroach upon the status & powers of a Dominion co. as such. An enactment of a provincial Legis-latnre, limited in direct effect by provincial boundaries, which relates to a particular trade or business carried on within its boundaries, regardless of whether or not that trade or business is carried on by natural persons or cos., is valid ; but the moment that a provincial Legislature legislates concerning cos. as such, then, if such legislation constitutes regulation or impairment or sterilisation of the powers & capacities which the Dominion has conferred, the legislation is invalid. Such last-mentioned legislation is not saved by the fact that all kinds of cos., provincial as well as Dominion, are aimed at without special discrimination against Dominion cos. The distinction between provincial enactments affecting Dominion cos. that are of general application & those that may be termed co. law is this : In the former case there is no attempt to interfere with powers validly granted to the co. by the Dominion nor with the status of the co. as such. The circumstance that because of the general laws of the province the co. may not exercise those powers does not destroy or impair the powers. In the latter case the enactment prohibits or imposes conditions upon the exercise of the powers of Dominion cos. as such. It is aimed at & affects Dominion co. powers as distinguished from being aimed at & affecting a trade or business in the province which Dominion cos. may happen to be engaged in in common with provincial cos. & natural persons. In the one case the legislation has to do with a provincial matter, Dominion cos. being only incidentally affected ; in the other case the legislation is aimed either at Dominion cos. or at all cos., which includes Dominion cos., & so the province with power to legislate only as to provincial cos. must be said to have entered the Dominion field. Coal Miners' Wages Security Act, 1928 (Alta.), as amended by 1930 (c. 23), s. 2, is intra vires, even with respect to Dominion cos. operating coal mines in the province & shipping coal therefrom to places outside the province. It is legislation provincial in character applicable to all mine owners, whether cos. or natural persons ; it does not affect the status and powers of Dominion cos. as such ; & it does not encroach upon the Dominion's power to regulate "trade & commerce" as judicially defined.—R. v. Arcadia Coal Co., Ltd., [1932] 1 W. which provided that persons professing the Jewish religion should, for school purposes, be treated as Protestants & have the same rights & privileges; that their children should have the same right of education as Protestant children; & that school taxes paid by them should go to the support of the Protestant schools. Under statutes of Lower Canada consolidated in 1861 by 24 Vict., c. 15, there were outside the cities of Quebec & Montreal (the rural area) common schools & dissentient schools, & within those cities Roman Catholic separate schools & Protestant separate schools. British North America Act, 1867, by s. 93, conferred on Provincial Legislatures exclusive power to make laws in relation to education, but, by proviso 1, preserved "any right or privilege with respect to denominational schools which any class of persons had by law," & by proviso 2 enacted that privileges conferred by law on separate Roman Catholic schools in Upper Canada should be extended to dissentient schools of Roman Catholics & Protestants in Quebec:—Held: (1) the word "Protestant" in the statutes consolidated in 1861 could not be construed as "non-Catholic," & so as including Jews; & the Protestant community, though divided for certain purposes into denominations, was itself a denomination & capable of being regarded as "a class of persons" within British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 93 (1); (2) having regard to the provisions of the Act of 1861 as to management & control, the dissentient schools in the rural area, & the separate schools in the two cities, had rights & privileges within sect. 93, proviso 1, but that the common schools in the rural area had not, as although each school might in fact be controlled by persons of the faith of the majority, that was not a right or privilege which "a class of persons had by law"; (3) the Act of 1861 impliedly reserved the right of attendance at dissentient schools in the rural area to children of the religion of the dissentients; in any case sect. 93, proviso 2, of the Act of 1867 had that effect; (4) the provisions as to the management & control of separate schools in the two cities gave them a denominational stamp which could not be effaced by the attendance of a certain number of children of a divergent faith; (5) 3 Edw. 7, c. 16 (Quebec), although otherwise intra vires, was ultra vires so far as it would enable persons professing the Jewish religion to be appointed to the Protestant Board of School Comrs. in the cities of Quebec or Montreal or on any Protestant Board of Examiners, or take part with Protestants in the establishment of a dissentient school outside those cities, & except so far as it would confer the right of attendance at dissentient schools outside those cities upon persons of religious faith different from that of the dissentient minority; (6) it would be possible to frame legislation for establishing separate schools for non-Christians without infringing the rights of the two Christian communities, & that legislation so limited would be valid.—HIRSCH v. MONTREAL PROTESTANT SCHOOL COMRS., [1928] A. The right of a resident of a province to export therefrom & sell elsewhere grain grown therein is not a matter of "Property & Civil Rights within the Province," within clause 13 of sect. 92 of B. N. 178c. —— Security Frauds Prevention Act, 1930 (Alta.).]—Security Frauds Prevention Act, 1930, of Alberta, provided that no person might trade in securities unless he was registered with the approval of the A.-G.; a corpn. could be registered, & in that case its officials did not need registration. In effect, the Act precluded a public co. from selling its shares unless it did so through a registered person or was itself registered. By sect. 9 the A.-G., or his delegate, could examine any person or co. to ascertain whether any "fraudulent act," which was very widely defined, had been, was being, or was about to be, committed. The Act imposed penalties for breaches of its provisions, & by sect. 20 made it an offence to commit any "fraudulent act" not punishable under the Criminal Code of Canada:—Held: the Act was within the scope of the powers of the Provincial legislature under sect. 92 of the British North America Act, 1867. It was not invalid in relation to Dominion cos., as it did not wholly preclude them from selling their shares unless they were registered, but merely subjected them to competent provisions applying to all persons trading in securities. Nor was it, as a whole, a colourable attempt to encroach upon the legislative power of the Dominion as to the criminal law; so far as sect. 20 was invalid as so encroaching it was clearly severable.—LYMBURN v. MAYLAND, [1932] A. 179a. Trade disputes.]—Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1907, of Canada, provided that upon a dispute occurring between employers & employees in any of a large number of important industries in Canada the Minister for Labour for the Dominion might appoint a board of investigation & conciliation. The board was to make investigations, with power to summon witnesses & inspect documents & premises, & was to try to bring about a settlement; if no settlement resulted, they were to make a report with recommendations as to fair terms, but the report was not to be binding upon the parties. After a reference to a board, a lock-out or strike was to be unlawful & subject to penalties:—Held: the Act was not within the competence of the Parliament of Canada under British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3); it clearly was in relation to property & civil rights in the provinces, a subject reserved to the provincial legislatures by sect. 92 (13), & was not within any of the overriding powers of the Dominion Legislature specifically set out in sect. 91; the Act could not be justified under the general power in sect. 91 to make laws "for the peace, order, & good government of Canada," as it was not established that there existed in the matter any emergency which put the national life of Canada in anticipated peril.—TORONTO ELECTRIC COMRS. v. SNIDER, [1925] A. Appointment of judges.]—Judicature Act, 1924, of Ontario, s. 2 (2—6), & s. 4 (1) & (2), are ultra vires the legislature of the province, since their effect is to authorise the Lieutenant-Governor of the province to assign, that is to say to appoint, certain judges of the High Ct. Div. of the Supreme Ct. to be judges of the Appellate Div. of that ct., & also to designate, that is to say to appoint, certain judges to hold the offices of Chief Justice of Ontario & Chief Justice of the High Ct. Div., & consequently the provisions are inconsistent with British North America Act, 1867 (c. 3), s. 96, under which the powers of appointment referred to are given to the Governor-General of Canada. Sect. 4 (3), however, which provided that upon a vacancy occurring among the judges of the Appellate Div. or of the High Ct. 192a. Bill relating to abolition of Legislative Council—Condition precedent to presentation.]—The Constitution Act, 1902, enacted by the legislature of New South Wales, was amended in 1929 by adding sect. 7A, which provided that no Bill for abolishing the Legislative Council should be presented to the Governor for His Majesty's assent until it had been approved by a majority of the electors voting upon a submission to them made in accordance with the section; & that the same provision was to apply to a Bill to repeal the section. In 1930 both houses of the legislature passed two Bills, one to repeal sect. 7A & the other to abolish the Legislative Council. By Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), s. 5, the legislature of the State had full power to make laws respecting the constitution, powers & prodecure of the legislature, provided that the laws should have been passed in such "manner and form" as might from time to time be required by any Act of Parliament, letters patent, Order in Council, or colonial law in force in the colony:—Held: the whole of sect. 7A of the Constitution Act, 1902, was within the competence of the legislature of the State under Colonial Laws Validity Act, 1865 (c. 63), s. 5; the provision that Bills of the nature stated must be approved by the electors before being presented was a provision as to "manner & form" within the proviso; & accordingly the Bills could not lawfully be presented unless & until they had been approved by a majority of the electors voting.—A.-G. 234b. Bechuanaland Protectorate — Magistrates' Court—Limited to criminal matters.]—By a proclamation issued in 1891 pursuant to Foreign Jurisdiction Act, 1890 (c. 37), Magistrates' & other cts. were established in the Bechuanaland Protectorate. By clause 8 the jurisdiction of the cts. was not to extend to any matter in which natives only were concerned, unless exercise of the jurisdiction was necessary in the interests of peace, or for the prevention or punishment of acts of violence. By clause 9 where jurisdiction was exercised the decision was to follow the laws & customs of the natives concerned, unless those laws & customs were incompatible with peace, order, & good government. Three natives were parties to an armed & murderous attack upon their tribal chief. As punishment the chief, after consulting & with the approval of his native council, caused their houses to be burnt. The action of the chief was in accordance with the custom of the tribe in the case of an armed rebellion. Two of the natives were convicted by a Magistrate of attempted murder, & sentenced to imprisonment; the sentences were reduced, as the houses of the accused had been burnt. Subsequently the three natives brought civil suits in the Magistrates' ct. against the chief for damages in respect of the house burning, & the chief counter-claimed:—Held: the ct. had no jurisdiction in the civil suits having regard to clause 8 of the proclamation, as the matter was one in which natives only were concerned, & there was no evidence of the probability of any further breach of the peace or acts of violence.

Semble: the custom of house burning, above referred to, was incompatible with peace, order, & good government within the meaning of clause 9.—KHAMA v. RATSHOSA, [1931] A. C. 784; 100 L. J. P. C. 229; 145 L. T. 657, P. C.

238a. Rule of English law as to parliamentary control of revenue—Application in New Zealand.]—It is a principle of the British constitution, inherited in the constitution of New Zealand, that no money can be taken out of the Consolidated Fund into which the revenues of the State have been paid, except under a distinct authorisation by Parliament itself; a payment made without that authority is illegal & ultra vires, & the money, if it can be traced, can be recovered by the Govt.

An agreement made in 1913 provided (inter alia) that the Minister of Railways of New Zealand, representing the Crown, should pay to applts. £7,500 when applts. granted a lease to B. & Co. The making of the agreement had been authorised by an Act of 1912, which empowered the Minister, without further appropriation, to pay to applts. out of the Public Works Fund such sum as might be payable in accordance with the agreement. Owing to an alteration in the scheme to which the agreement related, the Minister did not require applts. to grant the lease, & it was not granted. Nevertheless the £7,500

Even if a treaty of cession stipulates that certain inhabitants shall enjoy certain rights that gives them no right which they can so enforce. The meaning of a general statement in a proclamation that existing rights will be recognised is that the Govt. will recognise such rights as upon investigation it finds existed. The Govt. does not thereby renounce its right to recognise only such titles as it considers should be recognised, nor confer upon the municipal cts. any power to adjudicate in the matter.

345a. Canada—United Church of Canada—Decision not to enter union—Subsequent decision to enter in accordance with provincial legislation—Invalid.]—By an Act to come into force on June 10, 1925, the Dominion legislature incorporated the United Church of Canada so as to give effect to an agreed basis of union between the Presbyterian, Methodist, & Congregational Churches throughout Canada. The congregations of the uniting Churches were to become congregations of the United Church, & their property was to vest therein. By sect. 10, however, if any congregation voted at a meeting held within six months before June 10, 1925, not to enter the union it was not to be affected by the Act, &, by sect. 4 (c), it was to be deemed not to have become a member of the United Church. The legislature of Nova Scotia had passed an Act, to come into force upon the United Church being incorporated, enacting that property of uniting congregations in the Province should vest in the United Church. Sect. 8 (a) provided that if a congregation, at a meeting held within six months after the incorporation, voted not to enter the union its property was not to be affected, but that if the congregation decided later to enter the union the Act was to apply to it & its property. A Presbyterian congregation in Nova Scotia voted at a meeting held within six months before June 10, 1925, not to concur in the union, but at a meeting held within six months after that date voted to enter the United Church:—Held: as by the Dominion Act which incorporated the United Church of Canada the effect of the earlier vote was that the congregation was not a constituent member of that body, it could not by virtue of Provincial legislation become a member, nor could its property vest upon the footing that it was so; further, that the later vote could not be treated as a decision to apply to the United Church for admission, with the effect that, if the application was acceded to, its property vested therein under s. 8 (a). The earlier vote, however, did not necessarily for ever debar the congregation from entering the United Church, as the Dominion Act recognised that a non-concurring congregation might become a member at a later time, though the Dominion legislature at present had not provided means whereby a later union could be effected.—ST. s i. —— Requisites of conversion to Hinduism.]—In the Indian Succession Act (XXXIX. of 1925), the term "Hindu" is used in a theological, as distinguished from a national or racial sense. A person of non-Hindu origin can become a Hindu by conversion. Membership of a caste is not a necessary pre-requisite for being a Hindu. It is a question of fact in each case whether a given person is a Hindu or not. A European does not become a Hindu merely because he professes a theoretical allegiance to the Hindu faith, or is an ardent admirer & advocate of Hinduism, & its practices; but if he resides long in India, abdicates his religion by a clear act of renunciation, & adopts Hinduism by undergoing formal conversion, gives up, along with Christianity, his Christian name & deliberately assumes a Hindu name, marries, in accordance with Hindu religious rites, a person who is a Hindu by race & religion, & cuts himself off from his old environments, & takes to the Hindu mode of life, in such a case the Ct. may justly come to the conclusion that he is a Hindu within Indian Succession Act. A European who becomes a Hindu is governed by Hindu law, the test in such case being not domicil, but religion.—MORARJI v. ADMINISTRATOR-GENERAL OF MADRAS (1928), I. L. R. 52 Mad. 160.—IND.

The Dominion Lands Act, 1872, & sect. 21 of the Alberta & Saskatchewan Acts, 1905, were therefore validly enacted by the Parliament of Canada. —Re NATURAL RESOURCES (SASKATCHEWAN), [1932] A. e iii. .]—By a document dated Mar. 10, 1821, "the British Indian Chiefs of St. Regis,' "for themselves & on behalf of their tribe, whom they represent," purported to lease to C., his heirs & assigns, certain land, part of Crown land reserved for the Indians, & not ceded or surrendered to the Crown by the Indians, on Cornwall Island in the river St. Lawrence, for 99 years, "& at the expiration thereof for another & further like period of 99 years & so on until the full end & term of 999 years shall be fully ended & completed." The Chiefs covenanted "that they are the representatives of the said tribe of St. Regis as well as trustees of their estate & as such that they have a perfect right" to make the lease. The consideration was $100 cash & a yearly rent of $10. C. entered into possession on Mar. 10, 1821, & possession was continued in successive assignees, & it was admitted in this action that deft. was in possession as assignee of whatever rights C. had under the lease. The rent was paid yearly to Mar. 10, 1920, when the Crown refused to accept further rents. From about 1875 the rent was paid to the Department of Indian Affairs, for the benefit of the Indians. The lease was registered at the Department of Indian Affairs in 1875. There was in evidence a letter of Feb. 26, 1875, from an official of the Department to one B., an Indian, in reply to a letter from B., not produced, in terms apparently recognising rights of C. under the lease. The Crown notified deft. to give up possession at the expiration, Mar. 10, 1920, of the term of 99 years; &, deft. not complying, it took proceedings to recover possession of the land, as ungranted Crown lands reserved for the Indians :—Held : the Crown was entitled to possession. The appellate ct. in India made a decree dismissing the suit & refused to certify under Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, s. 110, that the case was a fit one for appeal to the Privy Council in that it would "involve, directly or indirectly, some claim or question to or respecting property" of Rs. 10,000, or upwards. Question of jurisdiction of colonial court—To issue mandamus to inferior court.]—The Supreme Ct. of Ontario has jurisdiction to mandamus a county ct. judges criminal ct. to try, according to the procedure provided by Criminal Code of Canada, s. 827, a person against whom an indictment has been found by a grand jury for the county. The fact that no rules have been made as to the issue of a mandamus in a criminal matter does not preclude the Supreme Ct. from exercising its full powers.

Special leave to appeal to the Privy Council was granted upon a petition alleging two grounds : (1) that the Supreme Ct. had not jurisdiction to issue a mandamus in the circumstances above referred to, & (2) that under the Criminal Code the persons indicted had not the option given by sect. 827 to be tried without a jury. Special leave was granted on the first ground ; the question whether the appeal could be entertained was reserved :—Held : the appeal should be dismissed, since the ground upon which special leave was given failed, & the second ground was merely a question of procedure & was not one upon which an appeal would be entertained.—A.-G. 564a. Trial for murder by judge alone—Trial by jury impracticable or not permitted by local circumstances.]—Applt. was convicted of the murder of his wife, & sentenced to death upon a trial in Ashanti without a jury. By sect. 9 of Ashanti Administration Ordinance, 1902, "so far as it is practicable & local circumstances permit" the procedure, civil & criminal, in the Ashanti ct. was to be the same as in the Supreme Ct. of the Gold Coast Colony ; in that ct. it was imperative by Ordinance that a trial for murder should be with a jury. The trial judge had not stated that a trial with a jury was not practicable or not permitted by local circumstances. It appeared on the appeal that there never had been trial by jury in Ashanti. The death of applt.'s wife resulted from a wound inflicted by a shot from a revolver while she & the applt. were together alone in a room. By a dying declaration she had stated that the revolver had been fired accidentally by herself in a manner which she described. The applt. in his evidence also attributed the wound to an accident by her. There was applts., to obtain an injunction against each of them to prevent them from keeping their taxicabs painted in such a manner as to be calculated to deceive the public into thinking that their cabs were those of resps. The actions came on for trial & injunctions were granted against both applts. Defts. appealed, & the Ct. of Appeal in April last allowed the appeals in both cases & dissolved the injunctions. Resps. moved for conditional leave to appeal to the Privy Council against this order :—Held : proposed appeal did not directly or indirectly involve a claim or question to or respecting a civil right of the value of £500, & the motion should accordingly be dismissed.—NICHOLSON v. BLACK & WHITE CABS, LTD., [1928] N. The last of the brothers & sisters died in the widow's lifetime:—Held: the widow's estate would be entitled upon her death, as a result of the intestacy consequent upon the widow's survival, to a sum of £1,000, with interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum from the date of testator's death, under Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 25), s. 46, but the widow was not entitled to have the reversion expectant on her death sold & the proceeds of sale invested, in order that she might enjoy the interest on such investments during her life as part of testator's estate devolving as upon an intestacy.—Re MCKEE, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. MCKEE, [1931] 2 Ch. 145; 100 L. She died at the home on Feb. 1, 1929, a spinster & intestate, aged seventy-six:—Held: her real estate went to her heir-at-law under Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 51 (2), which exemption section, read with the definition section, sect. 55 (1) (viii.), was not confined to cases where a lunatic or defective had a committee or receiver.—Re GATES, GATES v. GATES, [1930] 1 Ch. 199; 99 L. On Jan. 1, 1926, the Settled Land Act, 1925 (c. 18), came into operation, & under sect. 1 (2) S. was treated as deriving his title under the settlement deemed to have been made by the intestate, his mother's right to dower being preserved by sect. 1 (3). On Oct. 8, 1930, S. died an infant & unmarried:—Held: Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 51 (3), applies to the case of a notional settlement on intestacy, so that S.'s interest had become an entail & ceased on his death as an unmarried infant. Consequently the estate went to S.'s younger brother as next heir of the intestate & not to S.'s mother under Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 46 (1) (iv.).—Re TAYLOR, PULLAN v. TAYLOR, [1931] 2 Ch. 242; 100 L. In 1794 the master had reported that the lunatic had no heir-at-law or next of kin. In 1798 & 1801 the Crown made ex gratiâ grants of the funds to certain persons & obtained an indemnity in respect of the grants. In 1926 a petition was presented by persons claiming to be the next of kin of the lunatic for the payment to them of the whole of her personal estate. The parties sought a determination of the following questions: (1) whether the petition was maintainable on the assumption that no part of the funds ever came into the hands of or was dealt with by his present Majesty or his nominees or grantees or was carried to the Consolidated Fund; (2) whether the petition was barred by any Statute of Limitations; (3) whether in view of Petitions of Right Act, 1860 (c. 34), s. 5, suppliants could proceed without serving the petition upon the successors in title of the persons to whom the ex gratiâ grants had been made:—Held: the first question must be answered in favour of suppliants.—Re MASON, [1928] Ch. 385; 97 L. The underlease contained a covenant by these defts. that they would not assign, transfer or part with possession of the demised premises or any part thereof without the consent of the underlessor, & that in case of the breach of such covenant it should be lawful for the underlessor to re-enter upon the demised premises, & that thereupon the demise should absolutely determine. Pltf., the purchaser of the reversion on the underlease, brought an action to recover possession of the premises. By his statement of claim he alleged that the first defts., in breach of their covenant, had transferred, underlet or parted with the possession of the premises to the second defts., &/or the third defts. By their respective defences defts. traversed the allegations in the statement of claim. On a summons taken out by pltf. asking that the second defts. might be ordered to file a full & sufficient affidavit of documents, the judge, considering himself bound by Powis (Earl) v. Negus, No. 127, made the order asked for :—Held : there was one issue only between pltf. & the three defts., namely, whether the underlease, subject to which pltf. as he alleged derived his title to the possession of the land in question, was still subsisting or had been determined by the exercise by pltf. of his right of re-entry, & that being so, the well-established rule that the ct. would not assist a forfeiture by ordering discovery of documents applied, & the order made against the second defts. must be discharged. Powis (Earl) v. Negus, No. 127, overd.—SEDDON v. COMMERCIAL SALT CO., LTD., [1925] Ch. 187 ; 94 L. 437b. ——.]—Before the hearing of the action, an application by pltfs. that deft. be ordered to make a further & better affidavit of documents, or in the alternative, that an order be made, under R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 19A (3), was refused by the master, on the ground that such an order would be contrary to practice. Pltfs. appealed. It appeared from certain letters that had been disclosed that there were certain letters relative to the issues in the action, as well as other documents, which had not been disclosed; but it was contended on behalf of deft. that, since the coming into operation of the rule, it was no longer open to a pltf. in such a case to ask for a general further & better affidavit, but that he was confined to the remedy given to him by the rule. It was held by ROMER, J., that the rule did give to persons objecting to an affidavit of documents certain rights which did not exist before the rule was framed; but that it should not be read as interfering with the rights which were possessed before it came into force; & that it sought to examine the pltf. for discovery, the action being about to come on at the assizes for assessment of damages. R. 489 states that the examination of pltf. by deft. may take place at any time after such deft. has delivered his statement of defence:—Held: deft. could not examine pltf.—ASHLEY v. BRENTON (1889), 13 P. A Provincial Div. having granted the application:—Held: as the real dispute between the parties was whether resp.'s ill-health was occasioned in the discharge of his official duties or not &, as it was only when the cause of his ill-health had been established in his favour as a fact, that the necessity for the inspection of the certificate might arise, the application was premature & should have been refused.—UNION GOVERNMENT MINISTER OF DEFENCE v. VAN ZYL, [1929] App. D. 131.—S. They objected to produce this document on the ground that it was a copy of a confidential document made in discharge of their duty to the Crown & that it was privileged inasmuch as it could not be disclosed without injury to the public interest. The deponent also produced & verified a copy of a letter written by him to the Minister of Transport, & the reply thereto of the Minister to the effect that reports made in pursuance of sect. 6 of the Act aforesaid were furnished for his own information & guidance & that it was his practice in the public interest to decline any request to inspect these reports or to obtain copies of them :—Held : it was the practice of the ct. to accept the statement of a Minister of the Crown upon the question whether production of a document would be contrary to the public interest; & consequently the document in question was privileged from production.

PART III. SECT. 15.

1311 ii a. ———.]—Ord. 31, r. 14, sub-r. (2), of the South Australian Rules of Court—which, like R. S. C., Ord. 31, r. 19A, sub-r. (2), of the English rules, provides that where on an application for an order for inspection privilege is claimed for any document, it shall be lawful for the ct. or a judge to inspect it for the purpose of deciding as to the validity of the claim, applies where privilege is claimed for an official document on the ground that its disclosure would be contrary to the interests of the public, even though the claim is supported by a statement to that effect by the Minister responsible. The ct. has always had in reserve the power to inquire into the nature of the document for which protection is so sought, & to require some indication of the injury which would result from its production. When a State, being a party to litigation & bound to give discovery, claims privilege for documents upon the ground above stated, the claim should be made under oath by a responsible Minister whose mind has been directed to the material question. A claim to protection in the case of documents relating to the trading, commercial or contractual activities of a State can rarely be sustained, especially in time of peace. That documents would prejudice the case of the State in the litigation, or assist the other party, is a compelling reason for their production only to be overborne by the gravest reasons of State policy or security. Applt. brought an action in the Supreme Ct. of South Australia against resp. State claiming damages for alleged negligence in the care of wheat placed in the control of the State under Wheat Harvest Acts, 1915–17. Upon an order for discovery the respondent State, by an affidavit made by a civil servant, claimed privilege in respect of 1,892 documents tied in three bundles, & stated to be State documents, comprising communications between officers administering the department concerned; there was exhibited to the affidavit a minute by the responsible Minister stating (inter alia) that disclosure of the documents would be contrary to the interests of the State & of the public :—Held : the minute was inadequate to support the claim of privilege, as it was too vague in the circumstances of the case, & was not a statement on oath showing that the Minister had himself considered each of the documents, or indicating the nature of the suggested injury to the interests of the public; & the Supreme Court should exercise its power under Ord. 31, r. 14, sub-r. (2), to inspect the documents, that course being less likely to cause delay than an order for a further and better affidavit of documents.—ROBINSON v. SOUTH AUSTRALIA STATE (No. 2), [1931] A. 1705a. Shares—Refusal of company to register transfer—Grounds for refusal.]—Art. 27 of a co.'s arts. of assocn. was as follows: "The directors may without assigning any reason decline to register any transfer of shares not fully paid up made to any person not approved by them or made by any member jointly or alone indebted or under any liability to the co." Pltf. was the holder of 10,000 partly paid cumulative preference shares of £1 each in the co., & in Dec. 1925, executed a transfer of 8,000 of these shares to a transferee. Registration of the transfer was refused, & pltf. brought an action claiming a declaration that deft. co. was not entitled to refuse registration of the transfer & rectification of the co.'s register accordingly. Earlier in 1925 the co. had issued debentures secured by a debenture trust deed, in which the co. covenanted with the trustees that it would not in regard to 100,000 preference shares register until the shares were fully paid any transfer of any of them to any proposed transferee not approved by the trustees, & would not, except with the previous written consent of the trustees, release any of the holders of these shares from any money payable or which might become payable in respect of such shares. Pltf. alleged by his statement of claim that deft. co. had wrongfully refused to register the transfer, that the directors did not exercise any proper discretion under the arts., & that they had abdicated their discretion by entering into the above covenant with the trustees. Defts. by their defence claimed to have exercised the discretion under the art. bonâ fide. Pltf. sought to interrogate deft. co. by asking: (1) Whether the co. said that the directors had declined registration in exercise of the power to decline to register any transfer made to any person not approved by them or in exercise of the power to decline to register any transfer by a member jointly or alone indebted to the co.; (2) whether they said that the transfer was to a person of whom the directors did not approve; (3) whether they said pltf. was in fact a person jointly or alone indebted to the co.; (4) whether the debenture trust deed was referred to by any one at any meeting at which the question of registering the transfer was discussed:—Held: all the interrogatories were proper to be allowed. Pltfs. administered to defts. the following, among other, interrogatories: (1) "Were not all or some or one & which of the said bills drawn by" the German co. "or their agent or agents duly authorised in that behalf?" (2) "Were not all or some or one & which of the said bills indorsed by" the German co. "or their agent or agents duly authorised in that behalf to the order of" certain named indorsees? (3) "Was not" the German co. "at all material times a corpn. duly incorporated under the laws of the German Republic?" Appended to the interrogatories was a direction that defts. should answer them by their secretary to the best of his knowledge, information & belief. To each of them the secretary answered simply: "I say that I do not know":—Held: the answer was insufficient, inasmuch as other officers of defts. might in the course of their duties have acquired the requisite information; if they had, this would have been the information of the co., & it did not appear from the answer whether the secretary had made any inquiries to ascertain whether such information was available.—BANK OF RUSSIAN TRADE, LTD. v. BRITISH SCREEN PRODUCTIONS, LTD., [1930] 2 K. m i. —— Based on price of gasoline.]—Pltf. leased an automobile service station from deft. oil co. at a rental of $200 per month payable in advance. A few days later it was agreed that the rent should be paid by the addition of a charge of two & a half cents per gallon, payable on delivery, to the price of the gasoline to be bought by the lessee from deft. The lease provided that it should be at the pleasure of the lessor & determinable forthwith on the delivery of a written notice to the lessee. The original lease provided that the first payment of rent should be on July 1, but pltf. went into occupation on June 16 & agreed to pay one-half of the previous tenant's rent for that month. On Aug. 1, seizure was made under a warrant of distress stated to be for one & a part month's rent due on July 1, & pltf. being unable to pay the amount demanded, agreed to deft.'s demand that he take a certain amount for his goods from a suggested new tenant who was then present. Out of this amount the alleged rent was paid & pltf. drove away. The written notice provided for in the lease had not been given to pltf. In an action for illegal distress & eviction :—Held : even if the sum mentioned in the warrant was due for rent on Aug. 1, the distress was wrongful. The distress was expressed to be for rent due on July 1, but under the arrangement varying the lease no fixed rent fell due & payable on any day & no sum was in fact due & payable on July 1, & since the rent for the part of June had been all paid at the time of the seizure it was wrongful to include it in the distress.—DENYER v. BRITISH AMERICAN OIL CO. 424a. —— ——.]—The tenant of a dwelling-house hired goods from pltfs. under a hire-purchase agreement, by which he agreed to pay punctually the instalments & also the rent of the premises on which the goods might be. By a clause of the agreement, in case of any breach, the owners might, by written notice, forthwith determine the agreement, & thereupon neither party thereafter should have any rights under it. The instalments being in arrear, pltf. served on the hirer a notice terminating the agreement, & claiming a return of the goods. A distress was subsequently levied on behalf of the landlord, & the goods the subject of the hire-purchase agreement were seized. In an action by the owners for illegal distress, the county ct. judge gave judgment for pltfs.:—Held: as soon as the notice terminating the agreement was given the right of the hirer to possession of the goods was at an end, & neither party to the agreement had any rights under it. When the distress was levied there was therefore no hire-purchase agreement in force relating to the goods, & they were not at that time "comprised in any hire-purchase agreement" within Law of Distress Amendment Act, 1908 (c. 53), s. 4. & the distress was illegal.—SMART BROS., LTD. v. HOLT, [1929] 2 K. sk. Covenant to summer-fallow—Forfeiture clause on execution.]—A lease of farm lands on the crop-payment plan also provided by a clause following the habendum that the lessee should pay yearly a certain sum per acre for each acre of the portion agreed to be summer-fallowed which should not be summer-fallowed, & a further sum per acre at the expiration of the term for every acre not left ploughed as agreed. A forfeiture clause provided that in the event (inter alia) of the goods of the lessee being taken in execution or a writ of execution being issued against them, the then current year's rent should immediately become due & payable & the term should immediately become forfeited & void. On a motion, in an action for wrongful distress, to continue an injunction until trial:—Held: assuming but without deciding that the clause following the habendum was part thereof, the forfeiture clause could not be applied so as to render immediately payable the amount agreed on as payable for failure to summer-fallow; such amount did not fall due until the day after the latest day the lessee had to do the work, &, since that period had not expired when the lessor distrained with respect to said amount, the distress was semble illegal.—GARROW v. BAIRD, [1931] 1 W. 482 ii. ——.]—8 Anne, s. 7, when continues the right to distrain for six months after the expiration of the term if the landlord's title & the possession of the tenant continue, is inapplicable where the term has been put an end to by a forfeiture. The question whether a tenant's term has been ended does not depend upon the fact of possession but upon the continued existence of his right to possession. The taking by a vendor of an order for specific performance of the agreement for sale & for a writ of possession is inconsistent with the continuance of the relationship of landlord & tenant created by the agreement between him & the purchaser; & a distress made after the issue of the writ of possession is wrongfully made. — SWENSON v. MCILMOYLE, [1930] 2 W. sg. Suspension of poinding—Grounds for.]—Complainer, who resided in Scotland, was assessed to Income Tax, Sched. E., for the year 1928-29, by a body of General Comrs. in England in respect of director's fees received from an English co. He duly appealed against this assessment & it was averred by the resp. that a notice was sent to complainer summoning him to a meeting of the Comrs. for the hearing of his appeal. Complainer denied that such a notice was sent to, or received by him. He did not attend the appeal meeting & the assessment was confirmed by the Comrs. Subsequently, the Comrs. issued a certificate that complainer had been duly assessed & charged with the tax, which was unpaid, &, upon application by the collector of taxes for the Galashiels district of Selkirk, the sheriff-substitute for the county issued a warrant for recovery. Goods belonging to complainer having been poinded by the sheriff officer, complainer presented a note of suspension in the Bill Chamber in terms of sect. 21 of Exchequer Court, (Scotland) Act, 1856. The note having been duly passed, it was thereafter enrolled as an exchequer cause. In the note complainer craved the ct. to suspend the notice of poinding on the following grounds : (a) that complainer had duly appealed against the assessment under which the tax was charged, & that since, as he alleged, no notice of the hearing of the appeal had been sent to or received by him, the appeal had not been determined according to law, & the tax charged was not recoverable ; (b) that the sched. of poinding served by the sheriff officer upon complainer was defective in that it stated that the goods poinded would be sold in default of payment of the tax within four days instead of five days, as prescribed by Income Tax Act, 1918 (c. 40), s. 166 (3) :—Held : the note of suspension fell to be refused on the ground that the decision of the General Comrs. confirming the assessment upon complainer could only be set aside by an order of an English ct. & the poinding was not invalid by reason of the inaccurate statement in the sched. of poinding.—RUTHERFORD v. LORD ADVOCATE (1931), 16 Tax Cas. 145.—SCOT.

196a. —— Right reputed to be enjoyed with land.] —Pltf. at the date of the action was the owner in fee simple of certain plots of land in the village of C. in the county of Sussex, numbered on the Ordnance Survey Map 634, a portion of 635 & 636 ; also of a strip of land coloured brown on the plan on the conveyance to pltf., leading from the plot 634 & part of 635 to the high road running from C. to a common. Deft. became in Oct. 1926, the owner of other plots, numbered 652, 653, 654 & 618 in the same parish. Pltf. had previously purchased the strip coloured brown in 1925, the parcels being as follows : " All that strip of land leading from W. Fields "—which were the plots 652 & 653— " to the high road running from the village of C. to . . . C. common in the parish of P. . . ."; the habendum being to pltf. in fee simple " to the use that the vendor his heirs & successors in title owner or owners . . . of the hereditaments coloured red "—which were the plots 634, 653 & 652—" . . . shall have full right & liberty . . . to pass & repass . . . over & along the piece of land coloured brown on the said plan . . ." Pltf. subsequently, in June, 1925, purchased at an auction sale the plots referred to above, 634, part of 635, 652 & 653 ; deft. also bought the plots numbers 618 & 654. The plots purchased by pltf., being Lot 24 in the sale, were described as including a right of way for all purposes over the brown strip. By that purchase pltf., having become the legal owner of the dominant & servient tenements, the right of way became merged. Pltf. subsequently contracted to sell plots 653 & 652 to deft. In the draft conveyance submitted to pltf.'s solrs. by deft.'s solrs., a right of way was inserted in favour of the purchaser (deft.) over pltf.'s land to the brown strip. This was struck out by the solrs. for the vendor (pltf.) ; & no grant was shown in the conveyance ultimately executed by the parties in Oct. 1926, of any right of way. Pltf. found later that deft. was passing over a track in plot 634 in order to make use of the brown strip for the purpose of taking farm carts from his own land over pltf.'s property to the high road ; & he claimed a right of way. Pltf. sought a declaration that deft. was not entitled to any such right of way as he claimed, & further that the conveyance to deft. of plots 652 & 653 might be rectified by the express exclusion therefrom of any implied right of way which might arise under Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 62 :—Held : though the right to use the track was one reputed to be enjoyed with the land, that was plots 653 & 652, & to that extent deft. was entitled to succeed, yet pltf. was entitled to have the conveyance rectified. The evidence showed that neither pltf. nor deft. intended that any such right should pass on the conveyance of plots 653 & 652. The conveyance therefore would be rectified by the insertion therein of proper words limiting the implication of any right of way which might arise under the Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 62.—CLARK v. BARNES, [1929] 2 Ch. 368 ; 99 L. 196b. What amounts to " assurance of property or of an interest therein "—Agreement for lease exceeding three years.]—By an agreement in writing dated Oct. 10, 1923, J. agreed to demise to pltf. The Gardens, " with the paddock, orchard, & adjoining gardens." for seven years from Sept. 29, 1923. These premises were situate in a large park called Wood Green Park, & were not approached by any public road. The agreement did not expressly reserve any right of way to pltf. In 1926, J. executed a lease to deft. of The Hall, & the remainder of the park, for fourteen years from Mar. 25, 1926. The Hall had previously been let to H., who had surrendered his lease. A carriage drive ran from a public highway called Silver Street, through Wood Green Park, by the side of the front door of The Gardens, & on to The Hall. At the date of the agreement of Oct. 1923, J. was constructing, & afterwards completed, an unmetalled way from Silver Street to the back of The Gardens : but after that date pltf. constantly used the drive. Deft. obstructed pltf. in his use of the drive. In an action by pltf., claiming to be entitled to a right of way over the drive :—Held : (1) an agreement for a lease exceeding a term of three years is not an " assurance of property or of an interest therein," within Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 205 (1) (ii), & therefore cannot be deemed to include the general words of sect. 62 of that Act ; (2) the tenant was in the same position as if the ct. had granted specific performance of the agreement, i.e., in regard to rights of way, as if, before the coming into force of the Conveyancing Act, 1881, the property had been demised with no mention of rights of way; &, in the circumstances, a demise to pltf. of a right to use the drive upon terms must be implied.—BORMAN v. GRIFFITH, [1930] 1 Ch. 493; 99 L. 204a. —— Intention of parties—No evidence of intention to determine status quo.]—Two adjoining houses, originally belonging to one person, subsequently became vested in pltf. & deft. respectively. For some years before the severance of ownership, a creeper had been growing in what was now deft.'s garden with its foliage spreading along the wall of pltf.'s house. Also, again before the severance of ownership, the post of a gate leading from what was now deft.'s garden had been fastened by plugs & nails into pltf.'s wall. The growth of the creeper had from time to time reached pltf.'s gutter, & he had been obliged to cut it back. Pltf. brought an action for trespass in respect of the two above-mentioned acts, & the county ct. judge found both acts to be trespasses:—Held: both the growth of the creeper on pltf.'s wall & the fastening of the gate to pltf.'s wall would amount to trespasses, unless they could be justified by the existence of an easement; the implied reservation of an easement in a grant of property depends on the common intention of the parties; here there was no evidence that it was not the intention of the parties to the conveyance that creeper & gate-post should remain, & therefore an easement in each case was impliedly reserved; there was, however, a duty on the part of the grantee to use care that the grantor's property was not unduly interfered with; deft. in allowing the creeper to obstruct pltf.'s gutter had failed to use necessary care, & as to this part of the case the award as to damages must stand.—SIMPSON v. WEBER (1925), 133 L. T. 46; 41 T. L. R. 302, D. C.

210a. —— —— Matter of convenience & not necessity.]—Where real property is severed by the grant of a part of it, there can be no implied reservation, in favour of the property retained, of an easement of convenience; but only of an easement of necessity.

Two adjoining messuages in a terrace, Nos. 28 & 30, in common ownership, were leased on a ninety-nine years' lease, which, in 1896, was assigned to G., who in 1901 assigned the lease of No. 30 to pltf.'s predecessors in title, without reserving expressly in favour of No. 28, the property retained, any right of way across the garden of No. 30. In 1904 G. assigned the lease of No. 28 to deft.'s predecessor in title. Pltf. claimed in the county ct. an injunction restraining deft. from crossing on a path across the garden of No. 30 from a gate in the fence between the two properties, to a gate opposite, which led into a passage-way giving access to the road in front of the terrace. Deft. claimed a right of footway across this path by reason of her occupation of No. 28. The county ct. judge found that both at the time when there was unity of possession of Nos. 28 & 30, & from the time when the lease of No. 30 had been assigned, the path had always been used for the limited purpose of removing dust & refuse & for bringing in coal, & for no other purpose. But he did not find whether this user was by pltf.'s leave & courtesy, or whether there was an apparent & continuous easement from some certain time. Confusing the dates & thinking that the lease of the alleged dominant tenement, No. 28, was first assigned, when in fact the lease of No. 30 was first assigned, he held that although deft. had no unrestricted right of way across the path, yet, in 1901, there was an implied grant of an apparent quasi-easement enuring to deft. for the limited purpose of removing refuse & bringing in coal, & he made a declaration to that effect:—Held: there was no evidence that on the grant in 1901 to the pltf.'s predecessor in title where was an implied reservation of a right of way in favour of deft. across the garden of pltf. for the removal of dust & refuse & the delivery of coal.—ALDRIDGE v. WRIGHT, [1929] 2 K. § i. —— —— —— Land bounded by private road.]—Pltf., a lessee, claimed to be entitled to a right of way over a private road existent at the time of the lease & maintained by the lessor, owner of adjoining lands, as one of the approaches from the highway to his own house, & permitted to be used by tenants in prior years without objection. The leased property as described in the lease did not embrace this road, but the lessee claimed that be & prior occupiers of the leased house had the use of it, &, as one of the named boundaries was the roadway, the lease impliedly gave him a right of way over it:—Held: the lessee was not entitled to the right-of-way.—BREADY v. MCLENNAN (No. 2), [1924] 3 W. W. R. 924; 33 B. C. R. 460.—CAN.

§ ii. —— —— —— Land bounded by lane.]—A conveyance or lease of land described as abutting on, or bounded by, a lane or right of way, or a conveyance by reference to a plan indicating that the land in fact abuts on, or is bounded by, a lane or right of way, is equivalent to a grant to the conveyee or lessee of access to & fro over that lane or right of way, if the ownership of the same is vested in the conveyor or lessor.—COWLISHAW v. PONSFORD (1928), 28 S. R. N. S. W. 331; 45 N. S. W. W. N. 94.—AUS.

§ iii. —— —— ——.]—The decisions in England prior to 1881 were not uniform on the question whether a right of way was a continuous easement or not; but the Indian Easements Act adopted the view that it was not. Hence on a partition of two tenements, a right of way even over a well-formed & metalled road does not pass to the grantee as a continuous easement. It is this view, as enacted in the Act, that must govern wherever the Act is in force, in preference to the now well-established view in England. The way may, however, pass to the grantee if it is an easement of necessity; but an easement of way cannot be termed "necessary" though the way was used as a way before the partition or even though it may be the most convenient or reasonable means of access, if in fact there is another way.—NARAYONA GAJAPATIRAJU v. RATNAYAMMAJI (1929), I. 252a. —— —— ——.]—Pltf. was the owner of a cottage & farm land (the pink land) under two conveyances made to his predecessors in title in 1919, & deft. was the owner of adjoining land (the blue land) conveyed to her in 1929 by the same common owners. More than forty years ago the common owners constructed a collecting tank for water, mainly on the pink land, which fed a tank (Tank Z) on the edge of the blue land. Tank Z was used as a drinking trough for cattle & horses, & it had no outlet, but was tipped towards the south so that it overflowed on to the pink land through a wall between the pink & the blue land. The overflow was then conducted by a stone drain to an open watercourse along which the water flowed to the southern boundary of the pink land. The watercourse then turned & flowed along inside the southern boundary, being joined at the bend by a natural stream. At least from the bend the watercourse was a natural stream, & at two points along it were dipping points, one used for watering pltf.'s cattle & the other used by cottagers & other persons, including the occupants of the cottage on the pink land & of two other cottages near by which also belonged to pltf. In Feb. 1920, deft. substituted for Tank Z a covered brick tank connected by an underground pipe laid along the southern boundary of the blue land to a ram which pumped water to deft.'s house. There was also an overflow outlet to the new tank by which the overflow still passed through the boundary wall on to the pink land, but the flow was substantially diminished. In laying the pipe along the southern boundary of the blue land in a trench, springs were tapped & damage was said to have resulted from the escape of this water on to the surface of the pink land :—Held : (1) as Tank Z had been constructed simply for supplying water to cattle & horses grazing on the blue land & not for the benefit of the pink land, there could be no expectation that the overflow from it would be other than temporary, & the right to the continuance of the overflow did not pass under the general words implied in the conveyances of the pink land in 1919 by Conveyancing Act, 1881 (c. 41), s. 6, now Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 62 ; (2) pltf. had no prescriptive right to have the water naturally flowing in the stream along the southern boundary of the pink land augmented by the overflow from Tank Z along an artificial watercourse which had been constructed for a temporary purpose only.—BARTLETT v. TOTTENHAM, [1932] 1 Ch. 114 ; 101 L. 273a. —— Right to take water from artificial channel—Limited to capacity of channel at time of grant.]—In 1894 the Crown, by an Ontario patent, granted to applts. the banks & bed of a natural outflow from a very large lake, & the adjoining water power. The grant provided that it was not to be construed as conferring exclusive rights elsewhere upon the lake or upon other streams, nor as authority to restrict any powers or privileges therebefore enjoyed by the Crown. Applts. used water power from the outflow to work an electrical power plant. In 1892 & 1891 the Crown had similarly granted to resps.' predecessors in title land the boundaries of which, in each case, included a mill & an artificial channel from a bay of the lake. The mills had been erected & the channels made by the grantees with the approval of the Crown ; the grants mentioned the mill races, but did not expressly include water power. Resps. used water power from the channels to work their mills. Water passing through the channels & the mill sluices, when open, flowed into the river formed by the outflow at a point below applts.' works. Applts. brought actions to restrain resps. from diverting water from the lake :—Held : having regard to the circumstances in which the grants of 1892 & 1891 were made they each conferred an easement upon the respective resps. to use water from the channel for the purpose of working a mill, & the grant to applts. was subject to that easement. The easement was limited only by the capacity of the respective channels when granted, not by the size or character of the mill then existing thereon ; although the water could be used only for working a mill, it could be used to develop electrical power to work or light a mill.—KEEWATIN POWER CO., LTD. v. LAKE OF THE WOODS MILLING CO., LTD., [1930] A. Deft. pleaded that there had been no such user or enjoyment of the way claimed by pltf. as supported a prescriptive right or claim thereto, & alleged (inter alia) that deft.'s predecessor in title had no knowledge of the alleged claim, & further, that pltf. during the said period of 20 years had himself claimed the ownership of part of the land over which the way was claimed to have been enjoyed:—Held : deft.'s predecessor in title in any event had had a reasonable opportunity of becoming aware of the enjoyment by pltf. of a right over his land & for that reason the enjoyment of the right of way could not be alleged to be secret.—HOUGH v. TAYLOR, [1927] W. Deft. used the way for all the purposes for which he required to use it in connection with his farm. This user commenced at a time when pltf.'s farm was owned by deft.'s brother & continued through subsequent changes of occupancy until & since pltf. became the owner & occupier of the farm. 515. For the paragraph in the original volume substitute the following paragraph :—

—— Acquiescence in obstruction of way.]—In 1870 a row of houses was put up for sale by auction in eleven lots. One of the conditions was that a strip of land fifteen feet in width, running the entire length of the lots & being the rear portions of the back gardens of the houses, was intended to form a right of way from the back garden of each house into Church Road, which bounded the side of lot 1 on the south, & that the lots would be sold subject to & with the benefit of such right of way, & that the respective purchasers should at the earliest possible moment remove the fifteen feet of end garden wall & form the right of way. This condition was recited in each of the conveyances. Lot 1 was conveyed subject to the right of way of the owners of the other lots & lots 2 & 3 with the benefit of & subject to the right of way. The purchaser of lot 1 let it for a term of fifty years, which expired on June 15, 1922, subject to the right of way. In 1904 pltf. took an assignment of this lease, & in 1911 he purchased the fee simple of lots 2 & 3, with the benefit & subject to the right of way. Deft. was the present owner of lot 1. For fifty years from the date of the original sale no attempt was made to form the proposed roadway, the garden walls dividing the several lots remained intact, & the wall separating lot 1 from Church Road was not breached. Church Road was six feet above the level of the back gardens. In 1883 the original lessee of lot 1 in the course of erecting some stables

There was a dispute as to the westerly 15 feet, as to which deft. alleged that pltf.'s right of way had been abandoned :—Held : the evidence did not justify the inference that the right of way had been abandoned, although it was first used by deft. or her predecessor only.—BAKER v. HARRIS, [1930] 1 D. in his back garden raised the surface of the strip of land at the end of his lot to the level of Church Road, with the result that there was a drop of six feet from that strip into lot 2. In 1919 pltf., in anticipation of the expiration of his lease, proposed to build a garage on lots 2 & 3. With that object in view he pulled down part of the wall which separated the rear portion of lot 1 from Church Road & erected gates there, & he also raised the level of the rear portion of lot 2; & subsequently he caused a car to be driven through the gates over the strip in lot 1 into lot 2. On the expiration of the lease deft. blocked up the gates & obstructed the way. In an action by pltf. as owner of lots 2 & 3 to enforce his right of way against the deft.:—Held: (1) until the land was cleared there could be no effectual creation of a right of way; (2) having regard to the time which had elapsed before any purchaser attempted to assert his rights under the original conveyance, the inevitable inference was that the arrangement made in 1870 had been abandoned by common consent.—SWAN v. SINCLAIR, [1925] A. 620 vi. —.]—A side door in the wall of the back garden of pltf.'s premises opened into an avenue leading to deft.'s house. Pltf. claimed a right of way from this door, along the avenue, to the avenue gates. Pltf.'s premises were the end house of a terrace of six similar houses, which formed the base of a triangle in the apex of which stood deft.'s house. The avenue from the latter house ran alongside the garden wall of pltf.'s house, & its gates opened on the same street as the front entrance of the terrace of houses. All seven houses had been built by the same person, & continued for some years in the ownership of members of his family. But, by the will of his daughter, who died in 1919, a severance of ownership as between pltf.'s house & deft.'s house was created; &, subsequently, pltf. purchased the fee simple of his house. He gave evidence that he had entered the premises in 1917 under an agreement for a twelve-months' letting, & continued as tenant until he acquired the fee simple interest; & that he had used the door in the garden wall for the purpose of bringing in coal & manure, & of bringing bicycles in & out. Evidence was also given by the tenant of the premises from 1899 to 1907 that he received the key for the door or found it hanging in the premises, that he used the door for the purpose of getting in coal & for porters delivering goods, that his original landlord, who died in 1905, used to get a little path connecting the door with the avenue cindered, & that he gave up the key on the expiration of his tenancy; & evidence was given by the tenant from 1911 to 1916 that he used the door for bringing goods in & out & for getting in coal & manure. Pltf.'s tenancy agreement was not proved, nor was there evidence of any agreement as to a right of way or easement. Only one other house in the terrace of six houses had a back entrance, & this back entrance, which also opened into deft.'s premises, had become disused before action brought. There was no evidence as to its previous user, nor was there any evidence as to the origin of either back entrance:—Held: pltf. had failed to establish his claim.—M'DONAGH v. MULHOLLAND, [1931] I. 934b. ——.]—A right of light by prescription to a room in a residential house is not to be measured by the use to which the room has been put in the past.

Pltf. owned a freehold house built in & occupied since 1907, & continuously having adequate light to the windows & openings, including kitchen & scullery windows, on its north side, on which it was bounded by deft.'s house. Up to Jan. 1929, the two houses were separated by narrow passages on either side of a dwarf boundary wall belonging to deft., which was also the boundary wall between the back gardens. At the beginning of Jan. 1929, without intimation to pltf., building operations were begun on deft.'s premises, the boundary wall being raised to form a side wall of the new building. On Jan. 28 pltf.'s solrs. wrote to deft., her builders & her architect, asking that the work should cease at once. Two days later the building was still proceeding, & on Feb. 4 the wall was 15 feet high. On the next day pltf. issued a writ, & on Feb. 15 a motion came before the ct. By that date the wall had been raised to its full height of 23 feet, & an undertaking by deft. not to raise it further was useless. In an action by pltf. for a mandatory injunction & damages: —Held : (1) pltf.'s right of light to the scullery windows was not limited by the use to which the scullery had been put in the past; (2) in the circumstances, the case was not one for a mandatory injunction.—PRICE v. HILDITCH, [1930] 1 Ch. 500; 99 L. 987a. —— Increase of burden on servient tenement.]—An owner of ancient light cannot so diminish his ancient-light area as to increase the burden on the servient tenement.

The observations of LORD LINDLEY in Colls v. Home & Colonial Stores, No. 830, to the effect that in considering whether a proposed obstruction would amount to a nuisance, non-ancient light from other quarters of which the dominant owner might be deprived at any time ought not to be taken into account were not intended to interfere with this paramount principle. If, therefore, the dominant tenement is rebuilt in such a way that the area of coincidence between an old & new window is much smaller than the old window, so that the ancient-light area is greatly diminished, the dominant owner cannot ask the ct. to measure the nuisance, if any, by treating the rest of the new window, rendered obstructible by his own act, as blocked up.—NEWS OF THE WORLD, LTD. v. FAIRHEAD (ALLEN) & SONS, LTD., [1931] 2 Ch. 402; 100 L. ——.] — Chancery Amendment Act, 1858 (c. 27), s. 2, confers on the Ct. of Ch. jurisdiction to award damages in lieu of an injunction in the case of a threatened injury. Notwithstanding the repeal of that Act by Statute Law Revision & Civil Procedure Act, 1883 (c. 49), the combined effect of Jud. Act, 1873 (c. 66), s. 16, & Statute Law Revision Act, 1898 (c. 22), s. 1, is to maintain in force the jurisdiction conferred by Chancery Amendment Act, 1858, s. 2.

Div. for an injunction to restrain an obstruction of ancient lights, & the ct. found that defts.' buildings when completed would cause an actionable obstruction to pltf.'s lights, but that no such obstruction had yet taken place :—Held : the ct. had jurisdiction to award damages in lieu of an injunction.—LEEDS INDUSTRIAL CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY, LTD. v. SLACK, [1924] A. 1399a. ——.]—In an action brought by pltf. against deft. society for an injunction & damages in respect of an alleged obstruction of ancient lights, the judge found that defts.' buildings when completed would cause an actionable obstruction to pltf.'s lights, but that no such obstruction had yet taken place, & he expressed the opinion that the interference with pltf.'s legal rights when the building was completed would be small, & could be adequately compensated by damages, but held, contrary to his own opinion, that he was bound by the opinion of the Ct. of Appeal in Dreyfus v. Peruvian Guana Co. (1889), 43 Ch. D. 316, that there was no jurisdiction under Chancery Amendment Act, 1858 (c. 27), to give damages in lieu of an injunction where the injury was threatened but had not been sustained, & he therefore granted an injunction. The Ct. of Appeal, without going into the merits, by a majority, upheld the view that the ct. had no jurisdiction in such a case to award damages in lieu of an injunction. The House of Lords, by a majority, reversed this decision, & remitted the case to the Ct. of Appeal to deal with it on its merits :—Held : the findings of the judge brought the case within the "good working rule" suggested by A. L. SMITH, L.J., in Shelfer v. City of London Electric Lighting Co., No. 1356, ante, as that which might guide the ct. in exercising the discretion given it by Chancery Amendment Act, 1858, to award damages in lieu of an injunction; that was still the rule to be adopted by the ct. as a guide & was not affected by anything that was decided in Colls v. Home & Colonial Stores, No. 830, ante; therefore, there being evidence to support the findings of the judge, the injunction granted by him, contrary to his own opinion, ought to be discharged, & in lieu thereof an inquiry directed as to damages.—SLACK v. LEEDS INDUSTRIAL CO-OPERATIVE SOCIETY, LTD., [1924] 2 Ch. 475; 94 L. 1a. Church Assembly—Legislative Committee.]—Neither the Legislative Committee of the Church Assembly, nor the Church Assembly itself, is a body to which a writ of certiorari or of prohibition will issue, as neither of them is a body which is under a duty to act in a judicial capacity.—R. v. CHURCH ASSEMBLY LEGISLATIVE COMMITTEE & CHURCH ASSEMBLY, Ex p. HAYNES SMITH, [1928] 1 K. 2a. Compulsory acquisition of freehold in premises used for "public religious worship"—Part of public only admitted.]—Two tenements known respectively as "the Salvation Army Hall" or "the Citadel of the Salvation Army, Weston-super-Mare" & "the Young People's Hall" & comprised in one lease were held under a trust deed executed after the lease upon trust to be used as a place of worship. The Salvation Army Hall was in fact used for religious worship: the rooms in the upper part of the Young People's Hall were used for teaching. The two buildings were separated by a yard. The lessees, in pursuance of the powers given by Places of Worship (Enfranchisement) Act, 1920 (c. 56), gave to the lessors notice in writing requiring the lessors to treat contract & agree with the lessees for the sale to the lessees of all the lessors' estate & interest in the premises, subject to the provisions of the Act, & to give particulars of the lessors' estate & interest in the premises & of their claims in respect thereof & of their claim for compensation. The lessors contended that under the trust deed the premises demised by the lease were not held on trust for the purposes of a place of worship, either at the date of the notice or at the date of the Act. In an action by the lessors claiming a declaration that the lessees were not entitled, under the Act or otherwise, to acquire the freehold reversion in all or any part of the premises, & an injunction to restrain them from proceeding under the notice:—Held: (1) "public religious worship" may include worship to which, on any or all occasions, only certain sections of the public are admitted; (2) a trust for the use of premises for the purposes of public religious worship is carried out although minor parts of the premises are not so used.—STRADLING v. HIGGINS, [1932] 1 Ch. 143; 101 L. The patrons then commenced an action in the Ch. Div., claiming that the bishop was bound to admit & licence X. to the benefice. The bishop not having entered 2717a. Appointment of commission under Benefices (Ecclesiastical Duties) Measure, 1926, s. 3 (1)—Necessity for notice to incumbent—In respect of what duties.]—By Benefices (Ecclesiastical) Duties) Measure, 1926, s. 3 (1), where the bishop has reason to think that the ecclesiastical duties of a benefice are inadequately performed he may appoint a commission to inquire into the facts, & on their report that the inadequate performance of the duties is due to the negligence of the incumbent, has power under sect. 5 (1) to inhibit him. By sect. 2 (a) "ecclesiastical duties" include the observance of ordination promises, & also (iii) "an obligation binding the incumbent to manifest in his acts, conduct & course of life, due respect for his sacred office, & a due solicitude for the moral & spiritual welfare of his parishioners." A commission reported to the bishop that the ecclesiastical duties of a benefice were inadequately performed owing to the negligence of the incumbent, & also found certain charges proved which were a violation both of the ordination promises of the incumbent & of the provisions of sect. 2 (a) (iii). By sect. 2 (b): "No incumbent shall be deemed to have been negliegnt in the observance or performance of any of his ordination promises . . . unless such observance or performance has been required of him in writing by the bishop, who shall give him opportunity of replying, before issuing any commission under the provisions of section three of this Measure." No such requirement was made: —Held: the commission had jurisdiction to hold the inquiry, although the above notice had not been given, because the inadequate performance of ecclesiastical duties charged was that of ecclesiastical duties not expressly set out in sect. 2 (b), it being in respect of the inadequate performance of the latter only that such notice is required. The requirement in sect. 2 (b) applies only where the neglect charged is that of ordination promises, as such, or of duties imposed by the Rules for the Representation of the Laity, as such, & the charges against applt. were not charges of this character.—HUNTLEY v. NORWICH (BISHOP), [1931] P. 210.

—— —— Approval of decorations & fittings.]—On the hearing in the Consistory Ct. of London of a petition as to the furniture & fittings of the Church of St. Magnus-the-Martyr, in the City of London, a faculty was granted for, amongst other things: (1) a second Holy Table; (2) an image of the Virgin & Holy Child placed behind the second Holy Table; & (3) a crucifix fixed to a pillar at a considerable height from the floor & near the pulpit. On appeal the Ct. of Arches dismissed the appeal as to (1) & (3), but allowed it as to (2):—Held: (1) the law was the same for every kind of sacred image in a church, including a crucifix or rood, & although such an image was not illegal per se, it could not lawfully be placed in a church without a faculty.

On an application for such a faculty, the question to be considered is whether, if the faculty be granted, there is or is not, in the particular case, a danger of the image being used for purposes of worship or adoration condemned by Article of Religion 22. After discussion of the kind of evidence proper to this inquiry:—Held: (2) there was a danger of the proposed image of the Virgin & Holy Child being so used; (3) an image used for purposes of worship or adoration was an ornament & was illegal, because not included amongst the ornaments of the church sanctioned by the Ornaments Rubric in the Book of Common Prayer; (4) a faculty authorising the erection of an image in a church should not be absolute, but until further order.

(5) The other matter of appeal is the second Holy Table. The church holds, or will hold, between three hundred & four hundred people, & there are a large number of celebrations every week. In those circumstances it would be a matter of course to allow a second Holy Table, but for the exceptional character of the ceremonial & services of this church. I am not, however, disposed to interfere with the exercise of the learned Chancellor's discretion in this part of the case. I think there ought to be full plans & particulars of the decorations & fittings of & surrounding the second Holy Table, & these fittings ought to be subject to the approval of the learned Chancellor & to be specifically included in the faculty (SIR LEWIS DIBDIN).—VINCENT v. ST. In an action by the owners of tithes against the occupiers of premises in the City for tithe at the rate prescribed by the Act :—Held : (1) the onus was on defts. to prove that the tithe paid before 1545 in respect of the premises was less than the sum prescribed by the Act; (2) defts. had not discharged the onus.—BUSBY v. AVGHERINO, [1928] A. 3466a. —— Meaning of " rectory with cure of souls "—Sinecure.]—Pltf. having been instituted & inducted to a rectory by the Bishop in 1917, read himself in & presented himself to the vicarage. He was the only person in the parish with cure of souls, & since his institution he had been in receipt of the tithes in respect of the vicarage & also of the rectory, & had resided throughout in the parish. Since 1849 the rectory & vicarage had been held by the same person, & for many years the rectory had been what is commonly called a sinecure. If the rectory was a benefice with cure of souls the tithe rentcharge attached to the rectory would vest in Queen Anne's Bounty & be paid to pltf. free of rates; if not, pltf. would be liable for certain rates. In an action by pltf. against Queen Anne's Bounty for a declaration that by the Tithe Act, 1925, the rectorial tithe rent which was attached to the benefice was transferred to & became vested in defts. for all the interest therein & for the purposes of the Act :—Held : though pltf. was the vicar with cure of souls, yet, since the expression " rectory with cure of souls " in Tithe Rentcharge (Rates) Act, 1899 (c. 17), meant a real cure of souls actualiter & did not include a rectory which was a sinecure, & since a sinecure could not be turned by residence into a rectory with cure of souls, pltf. was not a rector with cure of souls within the definition of " benefice " in Tithe Rentcharge (Rates) Act, 1899 (c. 17), & the action failed.—GREENING v. QUEEN ANNE'S BOUNTY, [1932] 1 Ch. 348; 101 L. 3492a. —— Abortive sale by auction—Second distress & sale by auction—Jurisdiction to order.]—Upon the application of the tithe owners a county ct. judge made an order for the recovery of tithe rentcharge issuing out of certain lands, & he directed that an officer of the ct. should distrain upon those lands for the sum. The officer of the ct. distrained & offered the goods seized for sale by auction. A number of persons attended the sale & by their conduct prevented it from being successful, not bidding themselves & preventing others from bidding. The tithe owners thereupon applied to the county ct. for a further order for the recovery of the same tithe rentcharge, together with the costs & expenses of the abortive sale. The county ct. judge accordingly made an order that a second distress be levied for the recovery of the same tithe rentcharge, together with the costs, & directed that the goods seized should be sold by tender. A rule nisi for certiorari was obtained to remove the second order of the county ct. judge into the High Ct. upon the ground that he had no jurisdiction to entertain or adjudicate upon the application or to make the order:—Held: (1) the county ct. judge had not exceeded his jurisdiction in ordering a second distress, in view of the fact that there was a combination of persons to prevent the sale on the first distress from being effective, or in ordering that the goods seized should be sold by tender; (2) the application for the second distress was properly made by the tithe owners, & it was not necessary that it should be made by the officer of the ct.—R. v. CLEMENTS (JUDGE), Ex p. FERRIDGE, [1932] 2 K. 3513b. Cost of investment of redemption money—Compulsory redemption—Jurisdiction of court to deal with.]—By a settlement dated in 1893 certain tithe rentcharges payable out of lands situate at W. were settled, subject to certain life interests which had determined, to the use of H. for life with remainders over. The settlement contained a proviso appointing the trustees of the settlement trustees for the purposes of the Settled Land Acts, & providing that a sole trustee should be competent to act for all the purposes of the Acts, including the receipt of capital money. In 1899 H. assigned his life interest in the rentcharges to C. In 1905 C. died, having by his will devised his real & personal estate to resps. & appointed them his exors. In 1922 applt., who was the owner of the land out of which certain of the tithe rentcharges were payable, in exercise of the power given him by Tithe Act, 1918 (c. 54), s. 3, applied to the Ministry of Agriculture & Fisheries for the redemption of certain of these charges, amounting to £48 10*s.* 8*d.* & 5*s.* respectively, & for the determination by the Minister of the amount of the consideration money payable in respect thereof. On Sept. 20, 1922, resps., in exercise of their option under Tithe Act, 1846 (c. 73), s. 9, signed a form of consent which had been sent to them by the Ministry to the payment of the consideration money to the surviving trustee of the settlement of 1893. A month later they wrote to the Ministry revoking their consent & requesting that the money might be paid into ct. The Ministry thereupon wrote to applt. directing him to pay the money into ct., which he accordingly did. On Feb. 12, 1923, resps. took out an originating summons for an order that the fund in ct. might be invested & the income therefrom paid to resps. or the survivor of them as & when received during the life of the tenant for life:—Held: (1) on an application to invest money paid into ct. representing compensation paid under the Tithe Acts on the redemption of rentcharges, there was no general principle that required the ct. to direct that the person exercising the compulsory powers under the Acts should bear the burden of the costs, but the costs were, under Jud. Act, 1890 (c. 44), s. 5, in the discretion of the ct. entirely unfettered by any such general principle; the ct. below ought to have exercised its discretion by holding that applt., who had been brought before the ct. solely for the purpose of making him liable for costs, was not so liable, & to have dismissed the application as against him with costs.

(2) Semble: there is no power in the Tithe Acts which enables a tithe owner who has once exercised the option given him by the Act of 1846, s. 9, to revoke or alter the exercise of it.—Re WARTLING TITHE REDEMPTION, [1924] 2 Ch. 123; 93 L. This congregation continued to use the church, &, some of the original trustees having died, appointed new trustees to act with the survivors, & these trustees refused to give up possession to the representative of what had been declared to be the true body :—Held : the trustees must be treated as being trustees for the true body, who were entitled to enforce the trust & to have possession of the church, & it was not necessary to organise another congregation & appoint new trustees for that congregation under Religious Institutions Act.—Brewster v. Hendershot (1900), 27 A. During the game the infant pltf., who was taking the part of a " horse," fell on the wooden floor & seriously injured his arm. Part III.—Schemes as to Powers and Duties.

24a. For organisation of education—What amounts to "scheme."]—In determining whether proposals put forward by a local education authority for the development & organisation of education in its area & submitted to the Board of Education for approval constitute a "scheme" within Education Act, 1921 (c. 51), s. 11, so as to render necessary to its validity the performance by the authority of the conditions precedent to the submission of a scheme specified in sect. 14 (2) of the Act, the test to be applied is whether both the education authority & the Board of Education intend that which is put forward to be a "scheme" within sect. 11 so as to make the education authority bound, under sect. 15 (1), to give effect to it. The magnitude & quality of the proposals are not material considerations.—R. v. EAST HAM BOROUGH COUNCIL, Ex p. HUNT, [1930] 2 K. B. 64; 99 L. J. K. B. 497; 143 L. T. 709; 94 J. P. 135; 46 T. L. The expenses so incurred were disallowed by the district auditor on the ground that the local education authority had no statutory authority to expend money on alterations or improvements of a schoolhouse not provided by them. On a case stated by the Minister of Health under Audit (Local Authorities) Act, 1927 (c. 31), s. 2 :—Held : the concrete paving or flagging of the playgrounds was not an alteration or improvement in the buildings, & that therefore the obligation to pay for such work was not thrown upon the managers of the schools by Education Act, 1921 (c. 51), s. 29 (2) (d), but the local education authority were bound to pay for such work under their obligation to maintain & keep efficient all public elementary schools within their area which are necessary.—LANCASTER (COUNTY PALATINE) COUNCIL v. CROWE (No. 1), [1929] 1 K. 45a. Variation of order as to foundation managers —Powers of Board of Education.]—The Board of Education has power under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 11 (8), to make an order varying any order previously made, & this power, subject to due observance of the conditions of the sect., is practically unfettered. Therefore, when under a trust deed of 1860 the vicar & wardens of a parish were made managers of a non-provided school, & by an order of the Board made in 1903 it was provided that there should be four foundation managers of the school, one of which should be the vicar as ex officio manager, it was not ultra vires the Board to make in 1922 a varying order under Education Act, 1902 (c. 42), s. 11 (8), excluding the vicar & appointing as managers one warden & three nominees of the Archdeacon of Suffolk. The provisions of sect. 11 (1), (2), did not make the order of 1903 part of the trust deed in such a way that it was impossible to vary that order without showing that all the provisions of the trust deed as to managers were insufficient, inapplicable, or inconsistent with the Act.—FALCONER v. STEARN, [1932] 1 Ch. 509; 101 L. st. Taranaki scholarships—Meaning of "worthy."]—The University Senate, in exercise of the powers conferred by New Zealand University Amendment Act, 1914, s. 18, enabling it to make regulations for the carrying out of the objects of sect. 17 of that Act, which established Taranaki Scholarships that were to be awarded on the conditions set out therein, made a regulation containing the words that "no scholarship shall be awarded to a candidate unless he obtains credit in the examination & is deemed worthy by the Council." Pltf. qualified for a scholarship within sect. 17 by obtaining credit in an examination, but the Senate refused to award him one. On a claim by him for a declaration that he was entitled to a scholarship, the funds available being sufficient for the purpose, it was contended for defts. that the word "worthy" in the regulation meant worthy from the scholastic point of view :—Held : granting the declaration as prayed, the word "worthy," if so interpreted, would make the regulation invalid, as being inconsistent with the provisions of sect. 17, & must be construed in its primary sense as meaning worthy from the point of view of character, &, the Senate having misinterpreted its regulations, pltf. was entitled to the relief sought.—SYME v. NEW ZEALAND UNIVERSITY, [1931] N. from the public elementary schools, & a great proportion of its governing body were nominated by the local education authority, &, further, the school was largely maintained by public moneys, & in the view of the Board of Education the school satisfied the regulation which prohibited any Parliamentary grant to a school conducted for private profit. In accordance with the Board's wishes it was provided that the co should be converted into an educational trust at the end of a period & exceeding fifty years from 1905, & that in the event of a winding up before the end of that period the surplus assets of the co. should be subject to an educational trust & should not be distributed among the shareholders; that during the period above-mentioned the dividend paid on share capital should not exceed a sum equal to 4 per cent. a year. The Comrs. found on the facts the Trust School was a public school, & as such entitled to the benefit of the exemption from income tax:—Held: there was ample evidence on which the Comrs. could find that this school was a public school, & the possibility of profit arising to an individual in the course of carrying on a school did not of necessity prevent the school having the character of a public school.

The existence of a perpetual foundation is not by itself conclusive but only one of the factors to be considered. There is no distinction between money used for a public school raised by debentures at interest, & money raised by preference shares with limited interest. The judgments in Blake v. London Corpn., No. 178, were not intended to lay down a rule that no school from the conduct of which any person could derive pecuniary benefit could in any circumstances be a public school.—GIRLS' PUBLIC DAY SCHOOL TRUST v. EREAUT (INSPECTOR OF TAXES), [1931] A. During the term a pupil rather less than sixteen years old, after having left the school for the day & returned home, smoked a cigarette in the public street, & next day the schoolmaster administered to him five strokes of the cane as a punishment for breach of the rule. On the hearing of an information against the schoolmaster for an alleged assault on the boy the justices found that the rule in question was reasonable, that the father of the boy by sending him to the school authorised the schoolmaster to administer reasonable punishment to the boy for breach of a school rule, & that the punishment administered was reasonable; & they dismissed the information. An order nisi having been obtained calling upon the justices to show cause why they should not state a case on a question of law:—Held: the decision of the justices was right, that no question of law arose on which they could state a case, & that the order nisi should be discharged.—R. v. NEWPORT (SALOP) JUSTICES, Ex p. WRIGHT, [1929] 2 K. 302b. —— —— —— Onus of proof.]—The council of deft. borough, as the local education authority, in pursuance of a recommendation of their education committee, made after exhaustive inquiries & discussion, resolved that the engagements of all married women teachers falling under certain specified categories should be terminated; &, accordingly, notice was given to each of pltfs. to terminate her engagement. Pltfs., three married women, had for several years been engaged under contracts terminable by a month's notice on either side, as assistant certificated teachers in some of defts.' schools, & were admittedly efficient teachers. It was proved that the object of the council in reducing the number of the married women teachers was to create vacancies for unemployed single women teachers whom the council trained for the teaching profession & for whom it was important in the interest of educational efficiency that teaching posts should be provided. In carrying out that policy, the council, with the view of minimising cases of hardship in the selection of married women teachers for dismissal, took into consideration the domestic circumstances & duties of the married women teachers & the earning capacity of their husbands. Pltfs. sought declarations that the notices of dismissal were invalid on the ground that the council in giving them did not act bonâ fide with the intention of discharging their statutory duties of maintaining educational efficiency, but acted with the illegitimate object of providing employment for unmarried women without reference to educational efficiency, of obliging married women teachers to confine themselves to home duties & of preventing those whose husbands were in regular employment from increasing the income of the joint home :—Held : (1) pltfs. failed to discharge the onus which lay upon them of showing that the policy adopted by the council of reducing the number of the married women teachers for the purpose of creating vacancies for unemployed single women teachers, & the steps taken to carry it out, were in excess of their statutory powers or were adopted or taken in pursuance of some illegitimate object; (2) the matters taken into consideration by the council were not irrelevant from an educational standpoint, but were material factors in determining, not only whether the policy ought to be adopted, but the best method of applying it; (3) as defts. had acted bonâ fide & within their statutory powers, the action ought to be dismissed.—FENNELL v. EAST HAM CORPN., [1926] Ch. 641; 95 L. Such "terms, conditions & stipulations" do not mean or include pecuniary terms, conditions or stipulations. (2) The Minister has no power to assess compensation payable to the landowner for a wayleave taken under Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (c. 100), s. 22 (1). The claim of the landowner for compensation is to be determined by an arbitrator under the provisions of the Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (c. 56). & Acquisition of Land (Assessment of Compensation) Act, 1919 (c. 57), but not under Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (c. 18). The enactments with respect to the purchase & taking of lands otherwise than by agreement in Lands Clauses Consolidation Act, 1845 (c. 18), are expressly excepted from incorporation in Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (c. 56), which is to be read with Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (c. 100), as one Act, & therefore cannot be incorporated in these Acts by implication.

33a. —— To "person" requiring supply—Who is —Receiver.]—A colliery co., at the time of the appointment of a receiver in a debenture holders' action, owed a sum of money to an electrical distribution co. for electricity supplied to them. The distribution co. threatened to cut off the supply of electricity from the colliery co. unless payment of the arrears was guaranteed by the receiver. The receiver commenced an action to restrain the distribution co. from cutting off the supply. By South Wales Electrical Power Distribution Company Act, 1900, s. 40, it is provided that: "the co. shall give a supply of energy to any person who requires a supply which may be given by this Act other than a supply in bulk upon that person entering into a binding agreement to take the energy upon such terms as failing agreement shall be fixed by a single arbitrator appointed by the Board of Trade":—Held: the receiver was a "person" within the sect. & was therefore entitled to require a supply of electricity upon the terms set out in the sect.; & the distribution co. must be restrained from withholding or threatening to withhold from him a supply of electricity.—GRANGER v. SOUTH WALES ELECTRICAL POWER DISTRIBUTION CO., [1931] 1 Ch. 551; 100 L. 38a. —— —— General strike—Refusal to employ naval ratings—Agreement with union workers to abandon supply of power.]—Pltfs., who carried on business in S., were entitled, by statute & by contract, to receive from the S. borough council a supply of electrical power, but were deprived of this supply on certain days in May, 1926, when the general strike was in operation. In respect of this deprivation of supply pltfs. sued defts., who were the members of the Electricity Supply Committee of the S. borough council, to whom the council had lawfully delegated the management of the electricity supply, alleging that defts. had wrongfully & maliciously conspired & combined among themselves & with the London District Committee of the Electrical Trades Union to procure & induce the borough council, its servants & agents, to discontinue the supply of electrical power to pltfs. The writ in the action was issued on Jan. 13, 1927. Defts. denied pltfs.' allegations, & pleaded Public Authorities Protection Act, 1893 (c. 61). At the trial it was proved that at the end of Apr. 1926, when the general strike was threatened, the Govt. made preparations for the maintenance of essential services & offered to provide naval ratings to take the place of workers who might go on strike. The Govt. also issued an Emergency Order relieving the S. borough council from its obligation to supply the whole of the previous requirements of consumers of power by 50 per cent. Defts. did not accept the Govt.'s offer of naval ratings to work the electricity plant, considering it unwise to do so in view of the likelihood of disorder in the borough; but they discussed the position with the Trades Union Council & eventually resolved that if the union workers would continue the supply of light they would abandon the supply of power. The result of this was that the supply of power to pltfs., as to all other occupiers of premises in the borough, was discontinued, whereby pltfs. suffered damage. The jury found that defts. in making the agreement whereby power was not supplied to pltfs. were not acting in good faith & in the honest belief that they were carrying out their statutory duties, & that they were actuated by an indirect motive to injure pltfs. & to further the interests of those taking part in the strike. 42a. —— Supply to premises partly outside area—Point of supply within area.]—Defts. were authorised by the County of London (Northern Extensions) Electric Lighting Order, 1897, made under Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 (c. 56) & 1888 (c. 12), to supply electricity within an area adjoining the relators' area of supply. Sect. 6 of the Order prohibited the supply of energy by defts. beyond their area of supply, & Electric Lighting Act, 1909 (c. 34), s. 23, contains a general prohibition against supplying energy outside an authorised area. Defts. entered into a contract to supply a firm having a small part of its premises within defts.' area of supply & the remainder of the premises in the relators' area of supply. For the purpose of this contract defts. erected their apparatus on the part of the premises of the firm within their area, & the consumers' terminals, that is, the point where the electricity was passed from defts.' service lines to the lines on the firm's premises owned & controlled by them, were also on that part of the premises. The use of electricity on this part of the premises was trivial. In the circumstances the A.-G. brought an action on the relation of the relators to restrain defts. from supplying energy to the firm outside their area :—Held : the point of supply was the consumers' terminals, & as the firm's terminals were within defts.' area, defts. had not committed any breach of the prohibitions in their Order & the Act of 1909.—A.-G. v. COUNTY OF LONDON ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO., [1926] Ch. 542 ; 95 L. —— Not incompatible with performance of statutory duties.]—By a Provisional Order of 1898 the B. Council were constituted electricity undertakers in B. with power to charge up to a certain maximum price, but with authority to make special agreements with particular consumers as to price. By a transfer deed of Dec. 31, 1901, approved by the Board of Trade, the B. Council transferred the undertaking to defts. with a provision for retransfer if defts. made default in their obligations as undertakers. By a supplemental deed of same date, made without the approval of the Board of Trade, defts. agreed with the B. Council not to charge higher prices than those charged in the adjoining borough of S. In 1911 the B. district & the contractual rights of the B. Council were transferred to pltfs., the S. Corpn., but defts. still remained electricity undertakers in B. Defts. having recently begun to charge higher prices than pltfs., pltfs. brought an action to restrain their breach of agreement. Defts. contended that their agreement was ultra vires both under Electric Lighting Act, 1882 (c. 56), s. 11, which prevented them from divesting themselves of their statutory powers without the consent of the Board of Trade, & also under the general law applicable to statutory undertakings :—Held : the agreement was a business transaction into which defts. might reasonably enter ; it did not fetter the powers of defts. & was not incompatible with the performance by them of their statutory duties, & was not therefore ultra vires.—SOUTHPORT CORPN. v. BIRKDALE DISTRICT ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO., [1925] Ch. 794 ; 94 L. The co. entered into an agreement with an authorised undertaking at N. to take electricity in bulk from that undertaking, & ceased itself to supply electricity from the date of the agreement. The co. then dismissed the claimant, having no further need for his services. He claimed to be entitled to compensation under Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (c. 100), s. 16, on the ground that he had suffered loss of employment in consequence of an agreement between authorised undertakers within that sect.; & he based the amount of his claim on the fact that he had been in receipt of an annual salary. The referee held, subject to the opinion of the ct. on a special case, that the claim of the claimant was correct, & that the amount of compensation to which he was entitled was £1,160:—Held: on argument of the special case, (1) although at the time when the agreement was made between the P. co. & the N. undertaking the co. was not an authorised undertaker, it had since become an authorised undertaker & was one at the time when this claim arose, & it was therefore covered by the reference in sect. 16 to authorised undertakers; & (2) on the facts, the claimant was employed at a weekly & not an annual salary, & the compensation due to him must be calculated accordingly.—NAYLOR v PEACEHAVEN ELECTRIC LIGHT & POWER CO., LTD. 103c. —— Meaning of "scheme."]—Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (c. 100), s. 16, provided that "if . . . within five years from the date when under this Act . . . a scheme for the improvement of the supply of electricity in any district has come into operation," any servant who has been regularly employed in any authorised undertaking proves that in consequence of the scheme he has suffered loss of employment or diminution of wages he shall be entitled to compensation. The Electricity Comrs., in order to provide for the improvement of the existing organisation for the supply of electricity in a district, made an Order under sect. 7 of the Act of 1919, constituting an electricity district & establishing an Electricity Advisory Board for that district. The Order, which provided that the Scheme set out in the Sched. to the Order should operate & have effect, came into operation on June 4, 1924, having been previously confirmed by the Board of Trade & approved by resolutions passed by both Houses of Parliament. Under the Scheme set out in the Sched. the Advisory Board could only make recommendations to the constituent bodies composing it & to the Electricity Comrs. Para. 11 of the Scheme provided as follows: "(1) The main outlines of the Technical Scheme for the improvement of the supply of electricity in the district, to which the general approval of the Comrs. is hereby given, are set forth in the Second Annex hereto, which Annex shall be deemed to form part of this Scheme & shall have effect accordingly. (2) The Board shall take all steps within their power to secure the carrying into effect of the Technical Scheme, which may be modified or varied with the approval of the Comrs." The main outlines of the Technical Scheme in the Second Annex provided that certain generating stations, including a new one belonging to the Leicester Corpn., should be utilised under the Scheme & extended as might hereafter be determined, & that certain generating stations, including two belonging to the Leicester Corpn., should be utilised until the load could be transferred to the new stations. Those two stations were closed down in Aug. & Sept. 1930, & a number of workmen employed therein in consequence lost their employment or suffered a diminution of wages, & on Nov. 5, 1930, they claimed compensation from the Leicester Corpn. under Electricity (Supply) Act, 1919 (c. 100), s. 16. It was contended on their behalf that the word "scheme" in that section referred not to the Scheme in the Sched. to the Order, under which the Advisory Board was established, but to the Technical Scheme set out in the Annex, which provided for the closing of the two generating stations & under which they were closed:—Held: the word "scheme" in sect. 16 meant the Scheme for the improvement of the existing organisation for the supply of electricity in any district which the Electricity Comrs. had to approve or formulate under sect. 5 of the Act of 1919, & the Order giving effect to which in the present case came into operation under sect. 7 of that Act, as soon as it was confirmed by the Board of Trade & approved by resolutions of both Houses of Parliament, the last of which in the present case was June 4, 1924, & consequently the claims for compensation were out of time. Further, even if the word "scheme" in sect. 16 meant Technical Scheme, inasmuch as para. 11 of the Sched. provided that the Second Annex, in which the main outlines of the Technical Scheme were set out, should be deemed to form part of the Scheme & should have effect accordingly, therefore it came into operation on the same date as the Scheme.—BETTS v. LEICESTER CORPN., [1932] 1 K. 106a. Time for ascertaining value of property.]—Under an Electric Lighting Confirmation Order Act, it was directed that a co. should sell, & a local authority might, & should purchase that part of the undertaking & business of the co., which was situate in the area of the local authority. After a notice to treat had been given the co. incurred a considerable amount of further capital expenditure in respect of the undertaking. The purchase-price having been left to arbitration & the arbitrators referring it to an umpire, the umpire in fixing the purchase price considered that the adjustment of the rights of the parties in respect of such capital expenditure, did not come within the award, & fixed the price without considering it. On an action brought by the co. for specific performance, it was submitted by the local authority that the co. could not show a good title to certain property comprised in the purchase. At the time of the hearing of the action the local authority were endeavouring to obtain leave to borrow the purchase money on the security of their rates:—Held: the High Ct. in this action was the proper party to adjust the rights of the parties as to the additional capital expenditure, that an inquiry must be directed on the matter of the additional expenditure, the local authority being entitled to the undertaking of the co., as it was at the date of purchase subject to necessary fluctuations before completion, & that it could not have thrust on it an unduly enlarged undertaking. —METROPOLITAN ELECTRIC SUPPLY CO., LTD. v. MARYLEBONE CORPN. 106b. ——.]—By the Oxford Electric Lighting Order, 1890, which was a provisional order granted by the Board of Trade under the Electric Lighting Acts, 1882 (c. 56), & 1888 (c. 12), power was given to the predecessors of applt. electric co. to supply electricity in O. In 1892 applt. co. became the successors of the undertakers named in the order of 1890. Under sect. 63 of the order the local authority, resp. corpn., could within forty-two years give notice requiring the undertakers to sell, subject to all subsisting rights & contracts, at a price to be ascertained by either of two methods, the one selected in this case being by capitalising the net profits of the undertaking at 5 per cent. per annum upon the capital of the co. shown by the books of the co. to have been properly expended on the undertaking at the date of the notice requiring the undertakers to sell. Sect. 4 provided that if the undertaking was purchased in accordance with the provisions of the order the local authority should from the date of such purchase be the undertakers. By sect. 8, the undertakers were required to keep accounts of the capital employed for the purpose of the business distinct from any other accounts. In accordance with sect. 63 notice was given by the corporation on Dec. 3, 1928, to the co. to sell. An action was brought by the corpn. to determine what was the proper method for ascertaining the purchase price to be paid by the corpn., & what was the date as from which the sale was effected & the corpn. became entitled to take the profits of the going concern. The corpn. claimed that the price should be arrived at by capitalising upon a basis which the order did not fix, a sum of 5 per cent. upon the capital of the co. shown by their books to have been properly expended upon the undertaking, upon the footing that that sum represented the annual net profits of the co.'s undertaking, & that they were entitled to the profits as from the date notice was given, namely, Dec. 3, 1928. The co. asserted that the price ought to be fixed by capitalising the annual net profits of their undertaking upon a 5 per cent. basis, in other words, to first ascertain what the annual net profits were & then the capital sum which, if invested at 5 per cent., would produce those profits, & that they were entitled to retain the profits down to the date when the purchase money had been ascertained, & the obligation of the corpn. to pay it had arisen. The judge accepted the view of the corpn. on both points, holding that the date from which the purchase was to take effect was not dependent on the fixing thereof by the Electricity Commissioners under Electric Lighting Act, 1888 (c. 12), s. 2, but was to be ascertained by reference to the provisional Order of 1890 alone:—Held: there would be difficult calculations necessitated by the co.'s method of arriving at the purchase price, & sect. 8 might be used as indicating that the method suggested by the corpn. was right & would simplify the calculation. Where there was no special indication of the date when property was to change hands the date of the transfer would be that of taking possession after a good title was shown, but here there were certain indications. The co. relied on sect. 4 of the order as showing that the date must be when the local authority acquired their rights & responsibilities upon payment of the purchase-money, but sect. 4 dealt with a different matter to sect. 63, & did not elucidate the interpretation of sect. 63, subclause 1, the clause elected as the basis for arriving at the price. The words "at the date of such notice" in that sect. showed that to be the crucial date.—OXFORD CORPN. v. OXFORD ELECTRIC CO., LTD. (1930), 143 L. T. 577; 94 J. P. 229; 29 L. G. R. 1, C. A.

This action was brought on May 20, 1924, against the exors. of B. & against G., to whom the exors. had, in May, 1924, agreed to sell the same land ; & the M. co., to which the land was (by direction of G.) conveyed by the exors. of B. on July 13, 1924, was added as a deft. Pltf. co. claimed specific performance of its agreement with B., a declaration that its rights were paramount to the rights of defts., in the land, & in the alternative damages for delay in carrying out the agreement & for breach thereof. A certificate of lis pendens was registered on May 21, 1924. On May 20, 1924, which was after the making of the second agreement, but before its registration on that day, defts. received notice of the claim made by pltf. co. Defts. H., a dealer in motor cars, agreed to buy a car from the owner thereof for cash provided pltf. co. would finance the purchase. Accordingly, under an arrangement made with pltf. co. he had a lien contract executed by the owner as vendor & himself as purchaser. This contract, which was assigned by the owner to the co., was discounted by it. H. then sold & delivered the car to one K. under a lien contract which deft. co., having no notice of pltf. co.'s rights, discounted on H.'s assignment & delivery of the contract to it. H. absconded & the present action between the two cos. was brought to determine which of them was entitled to the unpaid portion of the purchase-price due from K.:—Held: K. was entitled to enforce his contract of purchase even as against pltf. co., & as between the two cos. deft., having the possession & the right to retain the possession of H.'s contract with K., had the superior right to receive the payments thereunder.—IMPERIAL FINANCE CORPN., LTD. v. FIDELITY TRUST CO., [1930] 2 W. property to his two sons, charged with an annuity in favour of his widow of £300 per annum. In 1923, the sons, who were also the exors. of the will, formed a co., & " as beneficial owners " conveyed the property to the co. In 1925 the co. sold the property to J. The conveyance recited that the co. were seised in fee simple in possession, free from incumbrances, & it purported to convey a like estate to J. The co. afterwards became insolvent. The annuitant claimed that the co. were liable to pay the annuity, & also that J. held the property subject to the charge, by reason of the fact that the circumstances attending the conveyance to him should have put him upon inquiry as to its existence :—Held : (1) the co. had notice of the charge & were liable, & debenture holders of the co. could not take the co.'s assets free from the liability, but (2) J. had not been put upon inquiry either (a) because the sons had purported to convey not as executors but as " beneficial owners " ; or (b) by the fact that the assignment to the co. was one not only of testator's freeholds & leaseholds, but also of leaseholds acquired since his death ; or (c) because in the deed assigning to the co. there was a recital which showed that a leasehold had been deposited with a bank to secure an overdraft ; or (d) because in the deed of 1923, the seal of the co. as purchasers, was fixed in the presence of two directors, one of whom was one of the sons. These facts did not amount to constructive notice to J. that the sons were not selling as exors., & he was therefore entitled to hold the property freed from the annuity.—PARKER v. JUDKIN, [1931] 1 Ch. 475 ; 100 L. 815a. Fines & Recoveries Act, 1833 (c. 74), s. 71.]—Testator, who died in 1875, specifically devised an undivided share in freeholds to his son P. for life with remainders which never took effect & devised the residue of his real estate upon limitations which in 1878 were held by the ct. to give testator's son W. an estate tail therein. In 1877 the freeholds, the undivided share in which was devised to P. for life, were sold under Leases & Sales of Settled Estates Act, 1856 (c. 120), & the proceeds of sale representing such share were paid into ct. After the sale W., who had previously executed a disentailing deed dealing in general terms with the lands devised to him by testator's will, executed another disentailing deed dealing in terms with the undivided share & the money in ct. resulting from the sale thereof. Neither of these deeds was executed with the consent of P. as the protector of the settlement. W. died in the lifetime of P. having by his will devised his residuary real estate to applt. & bequeathed his personal estate to resps. At the death of P. in 1920 applt. petitioned for payment out of ct. of the money, claiming that it had passed to him as residuary devisee of W. :—Held : the money retained the character of real estate inasmuch as Fines & Recoveries Act, 1833, s. 71, did not convert disentailed money into personal estate for all purposes, but merely directed that it should be treated as personal estate for the purpose of the form of a disentailing deed.—Re DICKSON'S SETTLED ESTATES, [1921] 2 Ch. 108 ; 90 L. I., Part IV., & sect. 35, the real property became subject to a trust for sale, with the result that testator's interest became, on the passing of the Act, personal property by reason of the conversion so effected, &, therefore, passed under the gift of personal estate & not to the devisee.—Re KEMPTHORNE, CHARLES v. KEMPTHORNE, [1930] 1 Ch. 268 ; 99 L. On Jan. 1, 1926, the Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 35, & Sched. Testatrix by her will made in 1923 devised her undivided share in certain lands to her son absolutely. By a codicil made in 1927 she made certain alterations in the will, subject to which she confirmed it. The codicil did not affect the devise. Testatrix died in 1930. By the operation of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), Sched. The trustees declined to accept the trust. All the cestuis que trust then executed a deed of trust, by which they agreed to divide the property into two classes. Class 1 was to be sold immediately, to pay testator's debts. 1283a. Reconversion by foreclosure—Effect of Conveyancing Act, 1911 (c 37), s. 9—Intention to accept reconversion.]—Testator, who died in 1861, devised his real estate in strict settlement & empowered the trustees, with the consent of the tenant for life, to sell the same or any part thereof, & directed them with such consent to invest the proceeds of sale in the purchase of freehold land or in the public funds or on real securities to be respectively settled & held to & upon such uses & trusts corresponding as nearly as might be with the uses & trusts therein declared concerning the land sold, with power for the trustees from time to time with the like consent to vary such investments. In the events which happened the material limitations of the will resulted as follows: To the use of E., T. & J. successively for life in the order named, with remainder to the use of E., T. & J. as tenants in common in tail general, with cross-remainders between them in tail general, with remainders over. In 1867 part of the land was sold & the proceeds invested in mtge. of freehold land. In 1871 E. died leaving an only daughter. In 1881 T. died a bachelor. In 1898 the surviving trustee foreclosed, & in 1899, by a deed appointing a new trustee to which J. was party, the foreclosed land was conveyed to the uses & upon the trusts of the will as if the same had been thereby specifically devised. On the death of J. in 1916 without issue, his executrix, who was also executrix of T., claimed that the foreclosed land in fact represented personalty & was subject to a trust for sale by Conveyancing Act, 1911 (c. 37), s. 9, & that she was entitled to two-thirds of the proceeds. The only daughter of E. claimed the foreclosed land as tenant in tail under the limitations of the will, E., T. & J. never having disentailed :—Held : (1) owing to the power to vary investments, the crucial time for determining the character of each investment was the death of J., the surviving tenant for life, & that the mtges. having been then foreclosed the mere foreclosure operated as a reconversion of the property into realty, & that there was no equity on the part of any cestui que trust under the will to have the personal character of the investment restored to it; (2) by the deed of 1899, to which all the parties able to control the character of the investment of the trust fund were parties, the foreclosed land was duly adopted as real estate & settled to the uses of the will; (3) although Conveyancing Act, 1911 (c. 37), s. 9 (5), may apply to land foreclosed before the commencement of the Act & remaining at the passing of the Act in the condition determined by the foreclosure, it would be unreasonable to extend the retrospective operation of the section to a case like the present where previously to the commencement of the Act the foreclosed land had been definitely accepted & settled as land & rights acquired thereby; (4) even if, by virtue of sub-sect. 5, Conveyancing Act, 1911 (c. 37), s. 9, was to be deemed to apply to foreclosed lands as from the date of foreclosure, the terms of both sub-sects. 3 & 4 had in the present case been complied with sufficiently to prevent the reconversion of the land into money under sub-sects 1 & 2; (5) the foreclosed land had become legally vested in the daughter of E. in tail as the heir in tail of E.—Re BOGG, ALLISON v. PAICE, [1917], 2 Ch. 239; 86 L. 1316a. Contingent reversionary interest—In personalty.]—Testator, who was entitled in reversion expectant upon the determination of his wife's interest &, contingently upon no issue of the marriage living to attain a vested interest, to the proceeds of sale of certain real estate conveyed by him, upon his marriage in 1880, to trustees upon trust for sale, died in 1886 in his wife's lifetime, having devised the real estate, which had remained unsold, to the use of his wife for life with remainders over by way of legal limitations in strict settlement. There was no issue of the marriage. The real estate was not sold in the lifetime of the wife, who accepted the benefits under her husband's will & died in 1921 :—Held : inasmuch as at his death testator's interest was a contingent reversionary interest in personalty, contingent upon the event of no posthumous child being born who might attain a vested interest, & reversionary because it was expectant upon his wife's life interest, testator was not competent to effect a reconversion by his will, because he never became entitled to an absolute interest in the property before his death, & the property passed under his will as personalty.—Re STURT, DE BUNSEN v. HARDINGE, [1922] 1 Ch. 416; 91 L. sc. Gift made within three years before death—Money spent on improving house —Whether gift to wife.]—A husband & wife, with their children, lived together in a house which belonged to the wife ; each enjoyed a separate income. The husband paid to a builder with whom he had made contracts about £2,000 for improvements & repairs to the house. A few months later he died at the age of fifty-three. It was found that the transaction was not entered into with intent to diminish the value of the husband's estate, but that the object was simply to improve the family home in accordance with their means & station in life ; & that there was no reason to believe that the husband would not enjoy the normal span of life, or that he would necessarily predecease his wife :—Held : the payments did not constitute a gift to the wife of the deceased within Death Duties Act, 1921, of New Zealand, ss. 38, 39, so as to be deemed to be part of the husband's estate for the purposes of that Act.—FINCH v. STAMP DUTIES COMR., [1929] A. 68a. —— —— —— Disentailing deed & resettlement.]—By a disentailing deed & a deed of resettlement, A. & his mother appointed property to trustees upon trust for the mother for life, & then upon certain trusts for management. There followed a discretionary trust in favour of A., his wife or children, with remainder in trust for A.'s sons, & with ultimate remainder to E. The mother died in 1925, & estate duty was paid on the value of the settled property. The trustees, under their discretion, then paid £50 a month to A. & the balance of income to E. In 1926 A. died, unmarried, & estate duty was claimed:—Held: A., in executing the disentailing deed & resettlement, had acted as a person "competent to dispose of property" within 1894 Act, s. 22 (2) (a), & the discretionary trust in his favour was a reservation by him of an "interest" in the property within Customs & Inland Revenue Act, 1881 (c. 12), s. 38 (2) (c). Therefore, by that sub-sect. read with 1894 Act, s. 2 (1) (c), the property was deemed to have passed on A.'s death & estate duty was payable.—A.-G. v. FARRELL, [1931] 1 K. B. 81; 99 L. J. K. 67a. —— Contingent succession—Accumulations.]—By a settlement dated Mar. 24, 1924, the settlor directed the trustees thereof to hold the capital of the trust funds upon trust for all or such of his children then living or thereafter to be born as he should appoint, & that during his life the income pending any such appointments should be accumulated & added to the capital. On his death the capital went as to two-fifths to his son & as to three-fifths equally between his three daughters if they survived him. The trust on the settlor's death in favour of the son was not expressed to be contingent, but there was a proviso that if the son died before the settlor his two-fifths should go over to the daughters, again only in the event of their surviving the settlor. The son & daughters survived the settlor, who had no more children after the date of the settlement. On the question whether, under the trusts of that settlement, on the death of the settlor on Mar. 11, 1928, without having exercised the power of appointment, the trust property passed on his death to the four children within Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 1, & thus became liable to estate duty, & also devolved on the death so as to create a succession under Succession Duty Act, 1853 (c. 51), s. 2, & was liable to succession duty:—Held: (1) before the death of the settlor, the beneficial interest of the children in the trust property was indefinable, since in certain events they might never have become entitled, & the settlor had reserved full control both of capital & income until his death; but, on his death, the son became indefeasibly entitled to two-fifths & each of the three daughters became beneficially & indefeasibly entitled to one-fifth; & accordingly the capital of the trust funds passed on the death as also the accumulations of income; (2) the capital of the trust funds was also liable to succession duty on the death of the settlor, & no distinction could be made between capital & accumulations of income which were the fruit borne by the corpus of the settled funds.—A.-G. v. ADAMSON, [1932] 2 K. 90a. —— —— Trust established in England.]—By his will, made in English form, testator, who declared that the instrument was to take effect according to the law of Hong Kong where he was domiciled, devised & bequeathed his property, which was situate out of the United Kingdom, to trustees on trust to invest a sum to produce an annuity for his wife, to pay certain legacies & to stand possessed of the residue to pay the annual income thereof to his sons or son during their or his lives or life, & on the death of the last survivor of his sons in trust for his son's children. The tenant for life, who was the only son of testator living at his death, wished to borrow money &, at the request of the lenders, he appointed, in England, four new trustees of the will, three of whom were resident in England. Between 1913 & 1922, owing to the tenant for life's dealings with the trust funds, proceedings in the Ch. Div. were instituted & orders were made in connection with the administration of the trusts of the will. In 1922 the tenant for life died, leaving him surviving his widow & two infant sons, who were domiciled in Hong Kong but had been made wards of ct.

p i. —— —.]—By an indenture T., who was entitled in fee simple to certain lands subject to certain leases then current, conveyed the lands to A., his daughter, for life, or until the happening of certain events, with remainder to her children, in consideration of covenants by her to make annual payments to him & his wife during their lives, & to indemnify him in respect of covenants contained in the unexpired leases. T. & his wife predeceased the daughter, & she died leaving children. Her life estate had not determined in her lifetime:—Held: the lands comprised in the indenture did not form part of the dutiable estate of A. by virtue of sect. 102 (2) (k) of "Stamp Duties Act, 1920–24." The dominant words of that provision are "under or by virtue of any agreement made by the deceased," & they mean that the passing of the property shall proceed from the volition of deceased.—ANGUS v. COMR. se. Reservation of life interest to settlor—On surviving wife.]—By a marriage settlement made in 1876, £30,000 was settled upon trust to pay the income to the settlor's wife for life, after her death to the settlor for life, & after the death of the survivor upon trust for the children or remoter issue as they should by deed jointly appoint, or in the absence of a joint appointment as the survivor should by will or deed appoint, & in default of appointment for the children as therein provided. The settlor died in 1925, without having exercised the joint power of appointment, leaving his wife & children him surviving. For the purpose of death duty under the Stamp Duties Act, 1920–1924, of N. S. W.:—Held: as the settlement contained a trust to take effect "after the death" of the deceased settlor & in reference thereto, his property was to be "deemed to include" the property subject to the trust, without deducting the value of his widow's life interest therein.—RABETT v. STAMP DUTIES COMR., [1929] A. sf. —— Jointly with wife.]—In 1896 a husband settled property in N. S. W., directing that the income therefrom should be paid to his wife during their joint lives, & upon the death of either of them to their daughters equally for their respective lives. The settlor died in 1914, & was survived by his wife:—Held: the settlement contained a trust "to take effect after his" (the settlor's) "death" within Stamp Duties Act, 1898, of New South Wales, s. 58, & accordingly upon the death of the settlor duty under that sect. became payable.—THOMSON v. STAMP DUTIES COMR., [1929] A. by virtue of the proceedings in the Ch. Div. & the orders made therein. The trust property was situate abroad:—Held: the succession of the infants to testator's residuary estate was at his death a succession by virtue of Hong Kong law & to Hong Kong property, & it had never lost that character or fallen within 1853 Act, s. 2, & the property was not liable to estate duty under 1894 Act, s. 2 (2). —A.-G. v. BELILIOS, [1928] 1 K. 96a. —— —— Shares.]—Testator, a German subject, was, at the outbreak of the European War, entitled to stocks, shares, & securities in English, South African, & American cos. The certificates were in all cases situate in London, & the securities themselves were transferable in London at the outbreak of war, & at the date of testator's death. Testator died in 1915, in Berlin, being domiciled in Germany. By his will three-fifths of his property were bequeathed to German & Austrian beneficiaries, & two-fifths to British & Polish beneficiaries. In 1915 the will was proved in Germany by the exors. named therein. In 1922, grant of administration in England was made to pltf. By virtue of Treaty of Peace Orders, the whole of the interests of the German & Austrian beneficiaries became charged with & subject to the claims of the Custodian of Enemy Property. In 1922 all the South African securities were transferred to the South African Custodian, an exor. dative was appointed in South Africa to administer testator's South African estate, & estate duty in South Africa was paid by him in respect thereof. Some of the American securities were transferred to the American Alien Property Custodian, administration of testator's American estate was granted in America, & the securities were transferred to the American Custodian to be distributed by the American administrator among the beneficiaries. All the remaining American securities, with the exception of a small balance, were released to pltf. by the English Custodian. In May, 1924, pltf. filed a corrective affidavit, including therein those of the American securities which had been released to him at that date, & he paid estate duty & interest in respect thereof:—Held: (1) all the shares were locally situate in England & the administrator was bound to include them as property of which testator was competent to dispose, & was accountable to the extent of the assets he had received for the estate duty in respect thereof; (2) the basis of valuation of such shares was the price similar shares would fetch in the open market at the date of testator's death.—Re ASCHROTT, CLIFTON v. STRAUSS, [1927] 1 Ch. 313; 96 L. At her death in 1918 the furniture was sold for £45,000, & the Crown claimed succession duty & estate duty upon the difference between the two sums from the trustee of the settlements:—Held: (1) the transaction was a bonâ fide sale between mother & son, & no succession duty was payable; (2) as to the claim for estate duty, there had been a "purchase for partial consideration" within 1894 Act, s. 3 (2), the consideration paid represented four-fifths of the value of the property at the date of such purchase, & estate duty was payable only upon one-fifth of the value as at the date of the death of the tenant for life; (3) "partial consideration," in sect. 3 (2), meant something less than the full & fair value as between buyer & seller.—Re BATEMAN (BARONESS), [1925] 2 K. In the marriage contract the son accepted the obligations therein contracted by his father as in full satisfaction in any event of all legal claims for legitim or otherwise he might have upon his father's estate. At the date of the marriage contract & of the bond the only claim to legitim possible to the son was in the event of his elder brother predeceasing his father. That event happened, & at the father's death the amount of legitim to which the second son would have had a claim, had he not discharged it, was £25,000:—Held: the bond could not be regarded as a debt incurred by the father for full consideration in money or money's worth wholly for deceased's own use & benefit in the sense of 1894 Act, s. 7 (1), & did not form a proper deduction in determining the value of his estate for the purposes of estate duty.—LORD ADVOCATE v. WARRENDER'S TRUSTEES (1906), 8 F. PART II. SECT. 4, SUB-SECT. 2.

ss. "Interest in business"—What is —1914 Act, s. 15.]—A father & two of his sons carried on business in partnership. By a re-arrangement of the partnership relations the father accepted £124,646 in full of his whole rights in the old firm & its assets, & agreed to allow this sum to remain as a loan to the new firm at 4 per cent. interest, on condition that, if called up by him, or in any event on his death, it was to be repaid by ten yearly instalments. The father contributed no capital to the new firm apart from the loan, but had an interest in the profits to the extent of a one-tenth share. He died in 1922, leaving a will by which he bequeathed the residue of his estate, including the loan, to his family, & estate duty was duly paid thereon. The two sons came to an arrangement with their father's exors., under which the sons agreed to repay the loan at once in return for a certain discount; & in settling with the exors., they retained in the business the respective shares of the loan falling to them, by crediting themselves with the amounts in the books of the firm. Within two years of the father's death one of the sons died, & estate duty became payable on his estate. His exor. having claimed a reduction, under the above sect., of the estate duty payable on the sum credited to the son in the firm's books in respect of his share of his father's loan:—Held: the father's right to repayment of the loan was not an "interest in the business" within the sect., & the sum standing in the son's name in the books of the firm was an interest in the assets of the firm, & was not identical with his father's interest in the jus credit of the loan.—GLEN v. INLAND REVENUE, [1926] S. In 1892 the redemption of the annuity for a sum of £55,890 was agreed upon, & that amount was paid into ct. & invested in the purchase of Consols. The fifth Viscount E. died in Aug. 1922, & the sixth Viscount in Feb. 1923. Questions having arisen as to the payment of estate duty, the ct. was asked whether estate duty became payable (a) upon the capital of the sum of Consols, or (b) upon the value of the interest of the successor to the title in such sum of Consols, & if estate duty became so payable, then whether, for the purpose of determining the rate of estate duty, such sum of Consols ought (a) to be aggregated with the other property, or (b) to be treated as an estate by itself:—Held: "chattels" in collocation with settled lands in 1894 Act, s. 5 (5), did not suggest personalty generally, but those particular items of it which were usually settled upon trusts that followed the devolution of the settled land, & the sum of Consols was not "chattels" within the sub-sect., & must be aggregated with the other property for the purpose of paying estate duty.—Re EXMOUTH'S ANNUITY, [1925] Ch. 280; 94 L. 132 i. Aggregated property—Whether property aggregated more than once on same death.]—Testator, who had two sons, H. & J., by his will devised certain real property to his son, H., in trust for H. for his life, with remainder to H.'s children as H. should appoint, &, if there should be no son of H. who should attain the age of 21 years, then in trust for his, testator's, other son, J. Testator died in 1893, & H. entered into possession of the lands under the trusts of the will. J. died intestate & unmarried in 1897, leaving his brother, the said H., his heir-at-law. By an order of the ct. made in 1908 it was declared that on the death of J., H. took an estate for life, with a vested absolute interest in remainder, subject to being divested if he left issue, in the freehold lands devised by his father's will, &, accordingly, that H. could make a valid testamentary disposition or otherwise dispose of his estate or interest in the lands. On the death of J., H. took out a grant of administration, & paid duty in respect of the personal property which passed on the death of J., but he did not pay any estate duty in respect of the contingent interest in the lands which had been devised to J. by his father's will, & which passed to him, H., as his brother's heir-at-law. H. died without issue in 1920, & estate duty was paid by his exor. on the value of the property which passed on his death, including the lands in question:—Held: the Revenue Comrs. were entitled to claim estate duty on the death of J. in respect of his contingent estate in the lands which passed on his death to H., & the rate of estate duty was to be calculated according to the value of that interest when it fell into possession on the death of H., together with the value of the rest of the estate of J.—Re O'CONNOR'S ESTATE, HENDRICK v. REVENUE COMRS., [1931] I. PART II. SECT. 7, SUB-SECT. 1.

m i. —— ——.]—Testator was, at the time of his death, chairman & managing director of a co. carrying on business as tea & wine merchants. The business had been established by testator's grandfather many years ago, & had been carried on by his family ever since. The business had been turned into a limited co. in 1898, with a share capital of £30,000, divided into 30,000 shares of £1 each, of which 23,007 had been issued, & it was turned into a private co. in 1908. At the date of his death the testator held 18,501 shares, & his son, the assistant managing director, held 4,251. The shares were transferable, subject to the right of the directors to refuse to register any transfer of shares upon which the co. had a lien, or a transfer to a transferee of whom the directors did not approve. The co. was a solvent one; the last balance sheet, prior to the date of the death of the testator, showed a surplus of assets over liabilities of £36,399, the principal asset consisting of the stock-in-trade, valued in the last balance sheet at £23,329. The shares, which were all held by members of testator's family, had never been dealt with on the Stock Exchange, & therefore they had no market quotation. As the co. was a private co., in which practically no one was interested except the directors, the profits could be divided up either as salaries or dividends as the directors chose, & they decided to give the profits as salaries. At the time of his death the salary of testator was £2,000 & that of his son £1,000 per annum. For the six years previous to testator's death the actual dividend paid averaged 5–3 per cent. on the issued capital of £23,007. Both testator & his son had special knowledge of the business, to which they gave constant daily attention. Testator's exors. when making their return for the purpose of estate duty, valued testator's shares at 15*s.* each, basing their estimate of value on the average dividend for the preceding period of six years & the market price of similar shares, a valuation which they subsequently offered to increase to 17*s.* 6*d.*, but the Revenue Comrs. declined to accept these values :—Held : the co. could be fairly regarded as capable of earning on a commercial basis 10 per cent. on its capital, but, taking this as the principal test of value, it must be subject to the consideration, on the one hand, of the restriction upon the transfer of the shares, &, on the other, to the added value by reason of the security of the co.'s position. Also, the Comrs.' contention that testator's shares would be most likely sold en bloc to a single purchaser, & that their value should be fixed accordingly, was unsustainable as the possibility of the shares being divided up among several purchasers, either members of testator's family or of the public, must be considered, for Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 7 (5), does not contemplate in the term " open market " not only a market which is hypothetical, but also only hypothetical purchasers wanting a block of shares.—SMYTH v. REVENUE COMRS., [1931] I. 209c. —— Incorporation of Form 8 of Statutory Will Forms, 1925.]—Testator by his will, after making specific & pecuniary bequests, gave to his wife absolutely any freehold or leasehold house belonging to him & in which he should be residing at his death. He declared that all legacies thereby given should be free of all death duties & devised & bequeathed all his residuary real & personal estate to his trustees, & declared that (inter alia) Form 8 of the Statutory Will Forms, 1925, should be incorporated in his will so far as it was applicable to his residuary estate. The only real estate testator possessed at the time of his death was a freehold house in which he was then residing. Questions arose: (a) whether having regard to Form 8, clause 4 (c), of the Statutory Will Forms, 1925, the estate duty payable in respect of testator's freehold house on his death should be borne by the testator's widow or by the residuary estate, & (b) whether upon the true construction of the will, the estate & succession duties payable by reason of the testator's death in respect of the freehold house were payable out of the residuary estate:—Held: (1) although the exor. was by reason of the provisions of Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 16, now accountable for estate duty on realty, the incidence of the duty remained unchanged & was still charged by virtue of the Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 9 (1), on the realty in respect of which it was paid. Form 8, clause 4 (c), therefore, had no application, & apart from the question of construction the estate duty on the freehold house must be borne by the widow; (2) on the true construction of the will testator had used the word "legacies" not in its strict sense, but as including the gift of the house in which he was residing at his death, although that house was of freehold tenure. The estate & succession duties payable by reason of testator's death in respect of the freehold house in question were therefore properly payable out of the residuary estate. Re PREVITÉ, STURGES v. PREVITÉ, [1931] 1 Ch. 447; 100 L. The question having been raised whether the duties payable on the deaths of testator's daughters under Finance Act, 1914 (c. 10), s. 14, were charged under or by virtue of clause 7 of the will on the shares bequeathed by that clause :—Held : what testator contemplated by clause 7 was an immediate process under which the shares were to be sold & applied in paying duties which were presently payable, & under which, after those duties had been paid, the residue of the shares or the proceeds were to be handed over to G.—Re Fenwick, Lloyd's Bank, Ltd. v. Fenwick, [1922] 2 Ch. 775 ; 92 L. 265a. Bequests to several charities successively—Intention to exonerate earlier charities.]—By his will dated 1911 a testator devised & bequeathed his residuary real & personal estate to his exors., the Public Trustee & another, upon trust for sale & conversion &, after payment of his debts & funeral & testamentary expenses, he desired the balance (called his residuary trust fund) to be placed with the Public Trustee & the income paid to his wife for life. Testator then directed that after his wife's death four capital sums amounting to £10,000, free of estate duty & settlement estate duty but not free of legacy duty, should be set apart & the respective income paid to certain life tenants respectively. By clause 9 testator directed that on the cesser of the respective life tenancies the respective capital sums should be paid to 216 i. Gift inter vivos—Gift within three years of settlor's death.]—Testator, after devising & bequeathing all his real & personal estate upon certain trusts, declared that " all probate & estate duties shall be paid by each beneficiary in proportion to the value of the share or interest taken by him or her under this my will." Within three years prior to his death testator disposed of a certain sum by way of gift to his wife, & after his death that sum had been assessed for State death duty :—Held : the death duty payable in respect of the gift inter vivos fell within the words " all probate & estate duties " in the declaration in the will.—Ashby v. Hayden (1931), 31 S. thirteen charities thereinafter named "in the order of priority in which the names appear in this my will as far as the money will go, no. 1 being first paid; no. 2 next & so on, that is to say:" Testator then enumerated thirteen consecutive charities, giving nos. 1 to 10 £500 apiece; no. 11, £1,000; & nos. 12 & 13 £2,000 apiece, thereby exhausting the £10,000. The residue, after providing for the settled £10,000 was given to a daughter. Testator died on June 11, 1914, before Finance Act, 1914 (c. 10), s. 14, abolishing settlement estate duty & the relief thereby conferred, was passed. The estate was cleared & the residuary trust fund paid to the Public Trustee, who paid the income to the wife till her death on July 1, 1928, & then set apart the £10,000 settled legacies. One of these was immediately distributable, without further payment of estate duty, owing to the life tenant having predeceased the wife; but on the cesser of subsequent life tenancies estate duty would be payable, & the Public Trustee therefore issued a summons to determine how it was to be borne, as between the successive charities:—Held: clause 9 conferred an absolute priority as between the successive charities, & was sufficient as between the earlier & the later charities to exempt the former from their primâ facie statutory liability to contribute to the estate duty under Finance Act, 1894 (c. 30), s. 8 (4).—Re LOMER, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. VICTORIA HOSPITAL FOR CHILDREN, [1929] 1 Ch. 731; 98 L. 265b. Devise with option to sell to specified person—Purchaser to pay annuities & road charges—No reference to death duties.]—Testator, by his will, devised land to P. subject to the payment of certain annuities, of road-making charges for which testator was liable, & of estate & other death duties, & subject also to the proviso that if within twenty-years of testator's death P. should desire to sell the land, he was to give the Governors of the N. Grammar School the option of purchasing the land at the price of £300 an acre, such offer to be subject to the payment by the Governors of the said annuities & road charges, & acceptance to be notified within three months. The land, of about 22 acres in area, was in fact worth £670 an acre at the date of the testator's death. In accordance with the condition P. offered it to the School Governors at £300 an acre, & the offer was duly accepted & the land sold & conveyed to the Governors for £6,688. The value of the land for the purposes of death duties was assessed at £14,720. On a summons being taken out to determine whether the Governors were liable to pay a rateable proportion of the estate & succession duties levied upon the value of the property:—Held: that the Governors having acquired the land, not under any disposition by testator, but by the voluntary act of P. in selling instead of retaining the property, took no benefit under testator's will, & they acquired the land expressly subject to annuities & road-making charges, but impliedly free from any charge for death duties.—Re COCKERILL, MACKANESS v. PERCIVAL, [1929] 2 Ch. 131; 98 L. He also devised & bequeathed the residue of his real & personal estate to his trustees upon trust, after payment of his debts, funeral & testamentary & trust expenses & legacy, succession & other duties, to divide the same into thirty-four equal parts, & to stand possessed of one of such equal parts in trust for each of thirty-four residuary legatees named therein. Completion did not take place, & pltf. demanded the above balance from deft. & brought an action against him to recover it. The vendor claimed that pltf. was liable to him for £100 damages & directed deft. not to pay over that sum to pltf. Deft. thereupon issued an interpleader summons in respect of the £100, & the master directed an issue, & ordered that deft. should pay into ct. the £100 less his costs. On the trial of the issue the vendor's claim was dismissed. Pltf. then obtained leave to sign judgment for £390, for which deft. admitted liability. Pltf. now claimed the additional £100 in full without any deduction of deft.'s costs. Deft. contended that the master's order allowing deft. to deduct his costs was final :—Held : the master's order allowing the deduction of costs was not res judicata, but merely relieved deft. from paying the full £100 until the decision of the interpleader issue & the result of the action, & pltf. was entitled to recover the full £100.—ALLNUTT v. MILLS (1925), 42 T. 253a. Judgment relating to right of set-off—Claim to set off contingent liability under guarantee—Subsequent application as to disposition of dividend—After payment under guarantee.]—F., having guaranteed advances by certain banks to the T. Assocn., in which he was interested, subsequently executed two deeds of arrangement in favour of his creditors. The Assocn. having gone into liquidation, the liquidator lodged a proof against F.'s estate in respect of sums due by F. to the Assocn. The trustee of F.'s estate rejected the proof & claimed to set off the various sums which had been advanced by the banks to the Assocn. for which F. had given his personal guarantee. At that time, although one or more of the banks had proved against F.'s estate under the guarantees, nothing had been paid to any of them. The Assocn. was admitted to prove against F.'s estate for a very large sum, & the trustee declared an interim dividend of 1*s.* in the pound. The banks were paid the dividend in respect of their admitted proofs, which also amounted in the aggregate to a considerable sum. The sums constituting the amount of the banks' proofs represented the amount of the Assocn.'s debt which had been guaranteed by F. The question arose whether the trustee of F.'s estate was under the circumstances entitled to pay to the liquidation of the Assocn. the sum representing the interim dividend declared in respect of the admitted proof. The matter came before the ct. by way of motion on behalf of the trustee, the question being whether this declared dividend was properly payable to the liquidator of the Assocn. or the trustee was entitled to withhold payment of all or any part thereof. On behalf of the Assocn. it was urged that the previous proceedings reported Re Fenton, [1931] 1 Ch. 85, had concluded the matter, that the question was now res judicata, & that, notwithstanding the payment to the banks of the amount of the dividend since that decision, the liquidator of the Assocn. was entitled to the full dividend in respect of the Assocn.'s admitted proof:—Held: the question raised by the motion had not been determined by the Ct. of Appeal in the previous proceedings.—Re FENTON (NO. 2), Ex p. FENTON TEXTILE ASSOCN., LTD., [1932] 1 Ch. 178; 146 L. 296a. Admission.]—Under a will the annual income from an estate in Australia was divisible by the trustees between testator's daughters. The trustees objected to an assessment for the financial year 1918–1919 under Land Tax Assessment Act, 1910–1916, of Australia ; they claimed under sect. 38 (7) of the Act a deduction of £5,000 in respect of the share of each daughter, & a case was stated for the opinion of the Full Ct. of the High Ct. upon the questions : (1) whether the shares of the joint owners, or of any & which of them, in the land were original shares within sect. 38 ; (2) how many deductions of £5,000 resp. should make. The Full Ct. answered these questions as follows : (1) the shares of the six children surviving at the date of the assessment ; (2) six. Upon the assessment for 1919–1920 the comr. allowed only one deduction of £5,000, contending that the beneficiaries were not joint owners within the Act. Upon a case stated the Full Ct. upheld that view, & held that the comr. was not estopped by the previous decision :—Held : the comr. was estopped, since although in the previous litigation no express decision had been given whether the beneficiaries were joint owners, it being assumed & admitted that they were, the matter so admitted was fundamental to the decision then given.—HOYSTEAD v. TAXATION COMR., [1926] A. Judgment against separate estate of married woman—Action to obtain payment into court.] —Where the ct. in giving judgment against a married woman who is a defaulting trustee orders that the judgment be satisfied out of her separate estate & execution proves useless it is not open to pltf. in a new action to obtain against her judgment in a different form for payment of the moneys into ct. As against her the matter is res judicata. But if it appear that she has transferred the moneys to a person with knowledge of the proceedings against her action will lie against the transferee as constructive trustee. Pltf. obtained against the first deft. a married woman judgment for payment out of her separate estate of the sum in dispute & costs. Evidence disclosed that the first deft. had parted with the whole of the sum, having transferred most of it to her sister, the second deft., who was not a party to the proceedings but knew of them at the time. Execution in respect of the judgment thus proving useless pltf. now brought this action alleging that the first deft. had paid the money to the second deft. in order to defeat any judgment for pltf., & that the second deft. received the money as constructive trustee :—Held : in regard to the first deft. the matter was res judicata, as pltf. had already obtained judgment against her separate estate & therefore could not now on the same facts obtain against her another form of judgment for payment of the moneys into ct.—GREEN v. WEATHERILL, [1929] 2 Ch. 213 ; 98 L. Pltf., who had particular charge of the transaction, said that he had forgotten the matter. Deft. twice paid interest to M. on his mtge., they both thinking that it was in effect & that pltfs.' mtge. had been satisfied:—Held: pltfs. were not entitled to enforce their mtge., since they had put in the power of the wrongdoer to commit the wrong, & because they were estopped by the release & by their conduct from asserting that their mortgage had not been paid.—THOM & LAMONT v. WALKER, [1930] 3 W. The grantees purporting to be absolute owners created equitable incumbrances on the property in favour of certain incumbrancers for value without notice of the trusts :—Held : as the settlor's conveyance contained a direct misrepresentation necessarily implying that the grantees were absolute owners, the settlor & the other beneficiaries claiming under him were estopped from denying this statement against the equitable incumbrancers, & their prior equity was therefore postponed.—Re KING'S SETTLEMENT, KING v. KING, [1931] 2 Ch. 294 ; 100 L. The agreement contemplated a transfer of the lease before payment of the whole purchase, & after transfer applt. had the right either to require resp. to give a mtge. or himself to enter a caveat against dealings. Applt. lodged a caveat. 853 i. Operation of rule—Money paid to solicitor producing executed deed—No intention that money should be paid over to party to deed.]—A solr. obtained from pltf., his client, a cheque for $1,100, representing that he would invest it upon the security of a mtge. upon land which had been mortgaged to his sister, whose mtge. would be paid off by the $1,100. In the receipt given to pltf. by the solr. it was stated that the cheque was given to him "re mtge. 10 R. St.", which was a brief description of land upon which defts. had made a mtge. to the solr.'s father's exors. The solr. notified defts. that the exors. desired payment of this mtge., & that he had a client who would advance the money necessary to pay it off. A mtge. by defts. to pltf. upon this land was thereupon prepared by the solr. & executed by defts. in Mar. 1923. They made payments from time to time upon the mtge. by cheque to the solr., who paid off the mtge. held by the exors., & consequently did not obtain a discharge of it. The $1,100 was misappropriated by the solr., who absconded in 1926. It was intended that the mtge. moneys should be paid to the exors. & not to the mtgors., & this pltf. understood. This action was brought to enforce the mtge., & pltf. in her evidence at the trial stated that the solr. showed her the mtge. in Mar. 1923 :—Held : the facts that the mtgor. delivered the mtge. to the solr. & that he showed it to pltf. did not amount to a representation that the moneys advanced by pltf. had been paid to the holders of the first mtge., & that it had been discharged, & it could not be said that the mtgors. were estopped from disputing the fact that the moneys had been advanced to them.—MURRAY v. CROSSLAND, [1929] 4 D. 1054a. Construction of agreement.]—If a person authorises or permits another to make a representation intended to be acted upon & it is acted upon, that person cannot afterwards be heard to say that the representation is not true. This applies when the representation is as to the legal effect of a document if there is no qualification in the representation suggesting that the document & not its effect as represented is to govern the relations of the parties. In a prospectus issued by deft. co. there was a clause referring to an agreement with that co. & purporting to set out its effect. The statements in this clause were made with the knowledge & acquiescence of the other party to the agreement, & were also known to & acquiesced in by the duly authorised agent of that party :—Held : the contracting party & his agent were thereby estopped from setting up any other construction of the agreement than that stated in the clause in the prospectus.—DE TCHIHATCHEF v. SALERNI COUPLING, LTD., [1932] 1 Ch. 330 ; 101 L. Resps. built a house & applt. received a bonus in respect of it. It was a statement of what the Improvement Trust was going to do with regard to the land, which was described to be on the boundary of the plots sold, & did not confer any title on the purchasers of the plots sold, either by express grant or by implication. 1472a. ——.]—In 1925, a certain piece of land, known as B. Lodge, was sold to J. & M. In the conveyance a quantity of timber trees, saplings, etc., was excepted out of the sale by the vendors, who reserved to themselves the right to cut & remove them before Oct. 11, 1927. In 1926 pltf. purchased the timber trees, etc., & proceeded to cut & remove them. A large amount of the cut timber was, however, left on the land after Oct. 11, 1927, & in these circumstances J. & M. stated that pltf. had lost his title thereto & forfeited his right to remove it, & they claimed it as their property. As the result of an action in 1930 against J. & M. it was held that the property in the timber remained in pltf. after Oct. 11, 1927, & a certain sum by way of damages for conversion against J. & M. was at the instance of the judge agreed between all parties to the proceedings & awarded pltf. In the meanwhile J. & M. purported to sell the cut timber to the present defts.

137a. Bequests of shares of residue—Accruer clause—Calculation of value of interest of deceased beneficiary.]—Viscount N. by his will & three codicils thereto disposed by clause 6 of his will of 74¼ hundredths of the income of his residuary estate. By sub-clause 28 he provided that on the death of any of the legatees, his or her share should accrue to the survivors. By sub-clause 29 he provided for the application of the remaining income in payment of other legacies, & these being paid the remainder was to be applied in the same manner as the 74¼ hundredths. By clause 10 it was directed that the capital should go in moieties to charities. By an order made on July 28, 1924, the income was divided into one hundred & thirds. Two of the income beneficiaries had now died. On a summons taken out in these circumstances asking whether the estate duty payable by reason of the death of any person entitled to any share of the income was to be paid upon the value of the share in the capital equal to that of the income previously enjoyed by such person or upon the like proportion of the actuarial capital value of the income during the respective lives of the several persons entitled thereto or other the period during which the trusts in respect of such income should be subsisting or how otherwise the same ought to be calculated & out of what fund the same was payable :—Held : (1) the property which passed on the death of any such person must be taken to be a share of capital in the residuary trust fund, & that estate duty must be paid on the value of such share ; (2) the duty payable on any such death was a first charge on that portion of the residue out of which the income was payable, & must be borne by the corpus of such estate.—Re NORTHCLIFFE, ARNHOLZ v. HUDSON, [1929] 1 Ch. 327 ; 98 L. 161a. —— ——.]—A rentcharge of £50,000 per annum charged on L. settled estates was limited to the use of deft., the fourth Viscount P., for life with remainder to the use of his eldest son during his life, to commence from their respective successions to the title & to be paid without any deduction except for death duties, & a similar rentcharge was limited in remainder, in the event of any other issue of the fourth Viscount succeeding to the title, to the use of the sons of such eldest son & other sons of the fourth Viscount in tail male. Subject to such rentcharge, the L. settled estates were limited to the use of pltf. for life with remainder to the use of his eldest son for life with remainders over. By a deed poll dated Oct. 15, 1913, provision was made for the abatement of the £50,000 rentcharge in certain events. The third Viscount, who was tenant for life of the estates in question, had died in 1923, while nine of the sixteen half-yearly instalments of estate duty payable in respect of the death of the second Viscount, who had died in 1919, remained unpaid. One of the questions for the decision of the ct. at the original hearing of the summons (Re Portman (Viscount), No. 249, post) was as to what proportion of the balance remaining unpaid at the death of the third Viscount of the estate duty, which became assessable on the death of the second Viscount in respect of the L. estates, should be borne by the yearly rentcharge of £50,000, & it was admitted in argument that there was no difference in principle in respect of that unpaid balance between that duty & that which was assessable upon the death of the third Viscount. After judgment had been delivered & before the minutes had been finally drawn up, leave was given to withdraw the admission made in argument as aforesaid, & it was directed that the question with regard to the liability of the rentcharge in respect of the unpaid instalments of estate duty assessable on the death of the second Viscount should be argued :—Held : the effect of 1894 Act, s. 14 (1), was to throw the incidence of the duty ratably & in proper proportions upon all persons

Pltf., who had taken no steps to enforce the order which he had obtained against J. & M., gave notice on June 10, 1930, to defts. that the sale by J. & M. to them was ineffective, as J. & M. had no title to the timber, & requesting the return of the timber to him. Defts. having refused & repudiated liability, pltf. commenced an action, & by his statement of claim asked for a sum by way of damages for conversion; the conversion relied on being the refusal by deft. co. to return the timber in compliance with the notice of June 10, 1930 :—Held : no special circumstances existed sufficient to constitute any confirmation by pltf. of any title to the timber in J. & M., nor did pltf. by accepting judgment in the form he did against J. & M. confer any title on them or deft. co. by estoppel.—ELLIS v. STENNING (JOHN) & SON, [1932] 2 Ch. 81; 101 L. The lorry was seized on L.'s premises. It was the property of pltf., & was in the possession of L. as his agent for sale. L. did not inform the police of pltf.'s claim, & refrained from giving any information of the seizure to pltf. until after the lorry had been sold. 80a. Procedure by judgment summons.]—In an action by pltf. against an unincorporated body & seventeen named persons, described as its committee, in which pltf. claimed damages for libel, judgment was given in the High Ct. for deft. with costs. On a bkpcy. notice founded on that judgment not being complied with, defts. presented a petition in bkpcy. ; but this petition was dismissed by the registrar as being wrong in form, on the ground (inter alia) that the petition was by an agent on behalf of an unincorporated assocn. & others, whereas such an assocn. cannot sue or be sued, either in its own name or by a purported agent. Subsequently, defts. took out a judgment summons in the county ct., & the county ct. judge ordered pltf. to pay by instalments the sum due under the judgment of the High Ct., together with the costs of the summons :—Held : (1) as procedure by judgment summons is a mode of enforcing a judgment & directly in connection with the action, as distinguished from a bkpcy. petition, which is not, the county ct. judge had jurisdiction to make the order :—Held : (2) the death of one of the successful defts. since the judgment did not render it necessary for the survivors to obtain the leave of the ct. before they could enforce the judgment.—BUNDY v. MOTOR CAB OWNER DRIVERS' ASSOCIATION (1930), 143 L. 146a. —— —— Omission to claim costs.]—Where, at the trial, the judge grants a certificate for speedy execution under 1 Will. 4, c. 7, s. 2, pltf. should issue one writ of execution for the amount of the damages & costs. 2059a. Judgment by default—Against dissolved foreign corporation.]—An English firm commenced an action in 1930 against the Moscow Industrial Bank claiming payment of a large sum of money, &, on the strength of an affidavit stating that the Moscow Industrial Bank was domiciled in Russia & that there was no way of effecting personal service on it, obtained leave under R. S. C., Ord. 9, r. 2, to serve notice of the writ by posting it by registered letter to the bank at Moscow where its head office had been. No appearance having been entered, judgment by default was signed against the Moscow Industrial Bank on Nov. 21, 1930. Some days later a letter was received from the London Embassy of the Soviet Republic, stating that notice of the writ could not be delivered, as the Moscow Industrial Bank went out of existence in 1917. After having obtained judgment by default, pltfs. obtained a garnishee order nisi against the Midland Bank attaching money alleged to be due from that bank to the Moscow Industrial Bank, & that order was subsequently made absolute. On appeal by the Midland Bank:—Held: (1) on the evidence of the Russian decrees as to Russian corpns., & of Russian lawyers as to the effect of those decrees, that the Moscow Industrial Bank had ceased to exist as a juristic person in 1930, & therefore that the judgment by default obtained against it by pltfs. was a nullity, & consequently that no garnishee proceedings could be founded upon it; & (2) in any view the garnishee order nisi ought not to have been made absolute, inasmuch as service of notice of the writ on the Moscow Industrial Bank was irregular in that the procedure applicable to service in a foreign country, as prescribed by R. S. C., Ord. 11, r. 8, had not been followed.—LAZARD BROS. & CO. v. BANQUE INDUSTRIELLE DE MOSCOU; LAZARD BROS. & CO. v. MIDLAND BANK, LTD., [1932] 1 K. B. 617; 101 L. J. K. B. 65; 146 L. The assignment had been executed by deft. co. under seal by its president & its secretary-treasurer. The president was the garnishor. The assignment stated that it was made "for valuable consideration," & the accompanying affidavit by an agent of the bank stated that the assignment was "for good or valuable consideration, as set forth in said conveyance or assignment" :—Held : although the assignment was defective because it did not comply with sect. 3 of Bills of Sale & Chattel Mtge. Act, C.A., 1924, which governed the assignment in question, in that the assignment did not set out the full & true consideration for which it was given, nevertheless said defect was of no avail to the garnishor since the right to garnish depends upon the debt belonging to deft. when the order is taken out, & if the debtor has already parted with the debt under an assignment good as between him & his assignee the defect is immaterial.—MCKAY v. BANK OF MONTREAL, [1932] 1 W. The co. had been liquidated in Russia but this liquidation took no account of debts due to the co. by English debtors or by the co. to English creditors, & an order had since been made to wind up the co. in England. The judge refused to do so. Witnesses were then called for the defence. The jury disagreed. Subsequently an application was made to the judge to enter judgment for defts. upon the above ground & also upon the ground that upon all the evidence in the case the jury could not reasonably have found a verdict for pltf. The judge having refused to enter judgment for defts. :—Held : (1) a judge at the trial had power to enter judgment for deft. if upon the case as a whole the evidence of pltf. was so weak that a verdict in his favour would have been set aside as unreasonable.

311a. —— Murder of employer—Books with false entries on which commission payable to employee found by body.]—Applt. was indicted for the murder of his employer, whose dead body was found in the latter's locked garage. Evidence was given (inter alia) that on the seat of a car in the garage at the time of the discovery of the body there were found books which had contained entries or impressions of fictitious orders showing that applt. had been paid commission thereon. These entries or impressions had apparently been made by applt.'s employer, & the leaves had been torn out. Evidence was also given that in the garage there was found a letter written to applt. by his employer & making an appointment. This letter was found open & crumpled, but it was not proved that it had reached applt. The theory of the prosecution was that, the fictitious character of the orders having been discovered by the employer, an altercation had arisen & the applt. had murdered him. Applt. was convicted:—Held: evidence above described was admissible as part of the circumstances of the case, & the conviction must be affirmed.—R. v. PODMORE (1930), 46 T. L. R. 365; 22 Cr. 624a. Agent of predecessor in title—Licensee of copyright.]—(1) By an agreement in writing dated June 30, 1898, one G., the author & sole proprietor of the right to perform a certain play, granted to pltf. the sole & exclusive right to perform, or have performed, the play in Great Britain & Ireland. On Sept. 22, 1898, G.'s agent wrote to pltf. stating that the play had been first performed in Great Britain on a certain date & at a certain place :—Held : a copy of the letter of Sept. 22, 1898, the original having been lost, was admissible as evidence in a copyright action between pltf. & third parties, who claimed a right to produce cinematograph films of the play under an agreement for value with G., dated Sept. 6, 1919, to prove that the first performance of the play took place in this country as stated in the letter since (a) being written by G.'s agent, it constituted an admission by G., a person who, although not named on the record, had a substantial interest in the result ; & (b) it constituted an admission by defts.' predecessors in title.

(2) An entry in the register of first performances of dramatic productions at Stationers' Hall is admissible in evidence as a public register. If such an entry is incorrect, the party producing a certified copy of it may be precluded from relying on it as primâ facie proof of a right to produce or reproduce the play to which it relates, but it can be regarded by the ct. as corroboration of other evidence of title.—FALCON v. FAMOUS PLAYERS FILM CO., LTD., [1926] 1 K. The justices ought to have concluded from the wife's evidence that the marriage in Feb. 1930, was void. Fresh evidence, now admitted, showed that the wife & the previous husband were still living together as a married couple in 1925. In an action against the secretary-treasurer to recover an amount alleged to have been misappropriated by him during 1921, pltf. sought to charge him with the receipt of the sum which was shown by said "reconstructed cash book" as received & said book was submitted in evidence :—Held : said book was not admissible against deft. ; its contents were not obtained in the manner contemplated by Rural Municipality Act &, therefore, it did not, even if it had been wholly compiled by deft., constitute an acknowledgment by him, as the entries in the original cash book would have done ; he had not so recognised or acted upon it as to make its contents evidence against him ; it was not secondary evidence of the destroyed cash book ; &, the necessary foundation not having been laid for the purpose, it was not admissible as secondary evidence of the taxpayers' receipts & cheques.—GLEN BAIN RURAL MUNICIPALITY v. HALEY, [1928] 3 D. 3165a. —— Marriage of parents.]—In an action brought by pltfs., who claimed to be two of the next of kin of an intestate, for administration of her estate, the usual order for inquiries as to the next of kin & heir-at-law of the intestate was made. In taking those inquiries before the master it became necessary to prove the lawful marriage of the parents of the intestate before her birth &, as no record of the marriage could be found, a summons was taken out by pltfs. for the determination of the question whether three certificates of birth of three of the children, including the intestate, of those parents & a certificate of death of one of those children were primâ facie or any evidence of the lawful marriage of the parents :—Held : the certificates were admissible, but not alone sufficient, because taken by themselves they did not identify the persons therein mentioned. It would be for the master at the inquiry to determine whether the certificates, taken in conjunction with the other evidence adduced before him, were sufficient to establish the fact of marriage between the parents in question. Re Wintle, No. 3158, overd.—Re STOLLERY, WEIR v. TREASURY SOLICITOR, [1926] Ch. 284 ; 95 L. Testator stated : " I make no provision for my wife on account of her intemperate habits & other misconduct." The ct. refused to order those words be omitted from the probate.—Re O'REILLY'S WILL, [1927] V. L. R. 533 ; [1927] Argus L. R. 396. —AUS.

1398a. —— Wills not independent.]—If testamentary papers are independent, one dealing exclusively with property within the jurisdiction & the other with property outside it, there is no obligation on a party propounding the first to obtain probate of the second. The question is whether the papers are independent or interdependent.

Testator left two wills, one English, the other American; the latter dealt exclusively with property outside the English jurisdiction, but the two documents were interdependent with regard to the residue, which was liable for English estate duty. The exors. of the two wills were different persons. Testator had expressly directed that the American will should be "probated" in America:—Held: (1) the two wills & a codicil to the English will should all be proved in England; (2) the document to be retained in the English Probate Registry as evidence of the testamentary act of making the American will should be an examined & sealed copy of that will, & after probate the original American will should be handed out to the exors. named therein for probate in America. —In the Estate of TODD, [1926] P. 173; 95 L. The ct. exercised that power under sect. 162 of the Supreme Court of Judicature (Consolidation) Act, 1925 (c. 49), s. 162, as amended by Administration of Justice Act, 1928 (c. 26), s. 9:—Held: in the "special circumstances" the order would be made as prayed.—Re MORGAN (W. 3127a. ——.]—The proviso to R. S. C., Ord. 65, r. 1, that nothing in that rule contained shall deprive an exor. who has not unreasonably instituted or carried on or resisted any proceedings, of any right to costs out of a particular estate or fund to which he would be entitled according to the rules theretofore acted upon in the Chancery Div., governs the case of bare exors. who reasonably propound a will & codicil, even if, though the will is pronounced for, the codicil is pronounced against. The position of such exors. differs from that of persons named as exors. in a testamentary paper which they unsuccessfully propound. Having established the validity of the will, & made good their position as testator's exors., they are entitled to their costs of the litigation out of the estate as between solr. & client, & can be deprived of that right, which rests substantially upon contract, only if they have acted culpably or unreasonably. Until that has been established, their costs are not in the discretion of the ct., & notwithstanding Jud. Act, 1873 (c. 66), s. 49, repealed & re-enacted by Jud. (Consolidation) Act, 1925 (c. 49), s. 31 (1) (h), an appeal lies without leave from an order condemning them in costs or depriving them of costs out of the estate.—In the Estate of PLANT, WILD v. PLANT, [1926] P. 139; *sub nom. 3127b. -.]—The principle of the decision in In the Estate of Plant, Wild v. Plant, No. 3127a, ante, that exors. who have established the validity of their will are entitled to their whole costs of the litigation, although they fail in establishing a codicil, does not extend in all cases to costs incurred by them by reason of their insisting upon probate not only of clauses in a will expressing the testamentary mind of their testator, but also of a clause which is found not to be his testamentary act. If a residuary gift is excluded from probate on the ground of want of capacity the question still arises whether the costs so incurred by the exors. are due to their "violation or culpable neglect of duty." If the ct. finds on this issue that an exor. is a wrongdoer, his primâ facie right to receive out of the estate costs not otherwise provided for is displaced.—THOMAS v. JONES, [1928] P. 162; 139 L. 3692a. -.]—In my view Collis v. Flower, No. 3691, was wrong, for the reasons that I have been stating. The common law tenancy was terminated. The exor. had a common law tenancy, & it was terminated by notice to quit. He did not remain in occupation of the house, &, in my view, the original tenant having no right, as we have now decided, to dispose of the property by will, had no right to give any statutory right to the exor., & the exor., who had not lived in the house, could not claim to be a statutory tenant. In my view, therefore, Collis v. Flower, No. 3691, is no longer an authority.

The administrator case stands on a different footing, because one has to look in all these cases to see what the facts were. The administrator case is the case of Mellows v. Low, No. 3692. There the facts were different. The original tenant was a weekly tenant. It was a common law tenancy, & during her tenancy she died intestate. Consequently, whatever rights she had in her common law tenancy remained to her representatives in an intestacy. No notice to quit was ever given. Consequently the common law tenancy remained. Then the landlord claimed that on the death of the tenant intestate, with no member of her family residing in the house, the tenancy lapsed. It was held that the administratrix was a person who derived title under the original tenant, &, consequently, that the residence could not be interfered with. The point of that case which renders it a right decision is that no notice to quit the common law tenancy had ever been given. The common law tenancy, therefore, remained, & it remained in the person who at common law was entitled to it, & her tenancy had never been terminated. Consequently, Mellows v. Low, No. 3692, on the facts, is right, but if notice to terminate the common law tenancy had been given the ct. could not, in my opinion, have said, unless the matter could be brought within the very curious clause about intestacy to which I have referred, that such an administratrix not being in possession is entitled to be protected by the Act (Scrutton, L.J.).—Skinner v. Geary, [1931] 2 K. A farmer died intestate leaving four dependent infant children. On an application by the administrator for directions as to the disposition of the moneys realised from the sale, the creditors of the deceased, none of whom had recovered judgment, contended that the right of exemption terminated on the deceased's death; that all the assets of the deceased, including the exemptions, were liable for his debts; & that even if the chattels continued to be exempt, the proceeds of their sale was not exempt:—Held : the administrator, who had also been appointed guardian, held the money received from the sale of the exemptions for the benefit of the children.—Re MCKENZIE ESTATE (Man.), [1930] 1 D. 4538a. —— Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 34 (1).]—Under sect. 34 (1), & the rules set out in Part I. of Sched. I., to Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), in the administration of insolvent estates an exor. has no right of retainer of a simple contract debt against the Crown so far as the Crown has priority under the bkpcy. rules affecting debt priorities ; consequently the Crown has priority for a claim for taxes, not exceeding in the whole one year's assessment.

In my opinion there are now only two, or possibly three, degrees of priority of debts, being, first, those which are by the Bkpcy. Act expressly given priority ; secondly, those which are expressly directed to be paid pari passu ; & possibly, thirdly, those mentioned in Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 36, & in sect. 3 of the Partnership Act, 1890 (c. 39), the effect of the latter section being expressly retained in the Bkpcy. Act, 1914 (c. 59), s. 33. It follows that the balance of any Crown debt in excess of that portion which is given priority is now of the same degree as the debt of the executrix in the present case, & that she can retain against such balance (LORD ATKIN).

The right still remains as before, the right to retain against debts of equal degree. Some debts have been put in a higher degree than they were before ; but the exor.'s right always has been subject to changes of that description. What has been affected is not the right, but the classes in respect of which the right is exercised (LORD ATKIN).—A.-G. v. JACKSON, [1932] A. C. 365 ; 48 T. L. R. 261 ; 76 Sol. Jo. 146 ; *sub nom. 5513 i. Whether mixed fund primarily liable—Necessity for direction in will for payment out of mixed fund.]—Since the Wills Act a residuary devise must for the purposes of administration be regarded as a specific devise, & in the order of assets for the payment of debts ranks with specific devises & specific bequests. A residuary devise does not lose its right to contribution from specifically bequeathed personalty for the payment of debts so far as the general personal estate is insufficient, merely by reason of the facts that it is given together with the general personal estate on trust for conversion & the proceeds of conversion are made a mixed fund for the purposes of disposition, & that the whole estate is subject to a general constructive charge for the payment of debts. To entitle specifically bequeathed personalty to be exonerated from such liability by the residuary realty further evidence of testator's intention to that effect is necessary ; such as a direction that the debts are to be paid out of the mixed fund, or that the proceeds of conversion are to be regarded as personal estate.—Re FORSYTH, WYATT v. FORSYTH (1929), 29 S. 5594a. Direction in will for payment of "money secured on mortgage" out of residue—Balance of unpaid purchase-money.]—Testator, who at the date of his will in 1912 was the owner of several freehold properties, one of which was subject to a mtge. & of leasehold & other personal estate, gave & bequeathed all the freehold & leasehold properties of which he might die possessed upon trusts in favour of certain of his grandchildren & great-grandchildren, & the residue of his estate upon trust for sale & conversion ; he then directed that his trustees should out of the money thereby produced pay (inter alia) his debts & legacies, & should out of the residue of such money pay & discharge "any sum of money secured on mtge. of any of my freehold properties," & should stand possessed of the residue of such money in trust to divide same as therein mentioned. After the date of his will testator paid off the mtge. & took a reconveyance of the mortgaged property. Shortly before his death, in June & Oct. 1917, testator contracted to purchase certain freehold properties in respect of which he paid deposits, leaving balances of the purchase-money owing to the respective vendors. On Dec. 23, 1917, testator made a final codicil, by which, after revoking the appointment of one of his exors. & bequeathing a legacy, he confirmed his will in all other respects. Testator died on Dec. 26, 1917, without having completed the purchases or paid the balances of the purchase-money, & shortly after his death his exors. completed the purchases & paid the balances of the purchase-money ; whereupon the question arose whether, as between the persons claiming under testator's will, those balances ought to be borne by the freehold properties of testator in respect of which same were payable, or ought to be satisfied out of his residuary estate :—Held : (1) inasmuch as a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money differs essentially from a mtge., even in the modern & wider sense of that term, upon the true construction of the will in the absence of any context enlarging the meaning of the term "mtge.," the balances of the unpaid purchase-money owing at testator's death were not "sums of money secured on mtge.," & no contrary intention was signified by the direction in the will to pay & discharge such sums out of testator's residuary estate, so as to exclude the operation of 1854 Act, which by virtue of 1867 Act, s. 2, extends to a vendor's lien for unpaid purchase-money ; with the result that the balances in question ought to be borne by & satisfied out of the freehold properties in respect of which same were payable, & the devisees thereof were not entitled to have those balances discharged out of testator's residuary estate ; (2) the confirmation of the will by the last codicil thereto, although executed after the mtge. on testator's freehold property had been paid off & after the vendor's lien had arisen, had not the effect of extending the meaning of the words "any sums of money secured on mtge. of any of my freehold & leasehold properties," so as to include the balances of unpaid purchase-money in question.—Re BEIRNSTEIN, BARNETT v. BEIRNSTEIN, [1925] Ch. 12 ; 94 L. Testator then gave his general residuary personal estate to B. Testator devised his estates in certain places to other trustees as a fund for the discharge of his debts, funeral & testamentary expenses & his pecuniary legacies in aid of his personal estate, with power to his trustees, if they thought it expedient or necessary either before or after his residuary personal estate should be exhausted to raise money for those purposes by sale or mortgage & subject thereto upon trust for B., in fee. The residuary gift of personalty lapsed as regards three equal seventh parts owing to the death of two legatees in the testator's lifetime :—Held : testator by directing that his debts should first be paid out of the residue before division amongst the residuary legatees had shown an intention that in regard to the lapsed shares of residue the order of administration prescribed by Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), Sched. One executor carrying on business in competition with testator's business—Breach of trust.]—By his will testator who, at the date thereof, was carrying on the business of a yacht broker, appointed pltfs., namely, his daughter B. & one W. & deft. exors. & trustees thereof, & directed them to carry on his business after his death; & in the event of a sale thereof by the exors. the whole of the proceeds were bequeathed to B. Testator died on Aug. 1, 1928, & his exors., in pursuance of the directions contained in the will, carried on his business, until Feb. 1, 1929, when, testator's tenancy of the business premises being about to expire, they removed the business to other premises, a lease of which was shortly afterwards granted to deft. alone, of which lease to deft. pltfs. did not become aware until a few weeks after the grant thereof, when deft. claimed the right to hold the lease of the new premises for his own benefit, to exclude pltfs. from the new premises & to set up & carry on his own account a business similar to & in competition with testator's business. Deft. having, since the issue of the writ in the action, assigned the lease of the new premises to B. & the goodwill of the business also having been assigned to her, it became no longer necessary to grant any of the relief claimed & necessary to determine only whether deft. was entitled at the date of the issue of the writ to the right which he then claimed, for the purpose of deciding how the costs of the action ought to be borne:—Held: (1) in face of the claim made by deft. to the benefit of the lease, pltfs. were justified in bringing the action; (2) having regard to the special nature of the business of a yacht broker which necessarily involved competition between every individual broker with all the others, it would have been a breach by deft. of his fiduciary duty towards the beneficiaries under the will, if he had at the date of the issue of the writ set up on his own account an independent business of a yacht broker in competition with pltfs., carrying on their testator's business; with the result that deft. must pay all the costs of the action.—Re THOMSON, THOMSON v. ALLEN, [1930] 1 Ch. 203; 99 L. 6014a. —.]—Testator devised & bequeathed to trustees estate A. & also all & singular his freehold & leasehold estates & effects in H. & W. together with the steam engines & machinery, money in hand, etc., together with all & singular other his real & personal estates & effects, upon trust, that his trustees, etc., should carry on his cotton manufactory in the best & most proper manner they possibly could & he empowered them to retain as much ready money, as a capital in the business, as by them might be considered necessary, with full power to carry on the same, & to keep the whole in good repair, & to renew the machinery: & directed that at the end of every twelve months next after his decease, provided his daughters L. & E. were living, the profits, if any, & the surplus income from his H. & W. estates, after paying certain annuities, after retaining a sufficient capital to carry on the manufactory, should be equally divided between his two daughters, share & share alike; but if his trustees were not inclined to carry on the cotton manufactory, he empowered them to let the same, when he directed the reserved capital to be immediately divided between his two daughters L. & E. share & share alike: & he further directed that the surplus rents of his H. & W. estates, after paying the annuities, were to be equally divided every twelve months after his decease between such two daughters, share & share alike. He directed his trustees to allow his daughter E. to receive all the rents, etc., of his estate A. for her life & declared that at her death her issue were to be entitled to such estates, but if she left no issue then such estates were to go to his daughter L. & if she should then be dead, having left issue, such issue were to take; he then gave to L. an annuity of £600 during her life, & charged the same on all his real & personal estates in H. & W. & bequeathed the same at her death to her issue equally: &, if she should die without leaving lawful issue, his daughter E. if she should be living, was to take the annuity of £600 & the whole of the surplus rents, etc., of his H. & W. estates, both real & personal: & if neither of his daughters left issue, the whole of his estates, both real & personal, were to go to R. H. for life, with remainder to his issue, remainder to his heir at law. L. & E. survived testator: E. & L. both died without issue:—Held: (1) the representatives of L. & E. were absolutely entitled, in equal shares, to all such personal estate as was situate in H. & W. & which was not retained by the trustees as capital for carrying on the manufactory; (2) on the death of the survivor of E. & L. without leaving issue, the whole of testator's personal estate described in his will as situate in H. & of £3,560 12s. 3d. was due at the date of his death:—Held: the equitable doctrine of marshalling applied, & the mtgee. must resort primarily to the protected fund to satisfy the mtge. debt, so as to leave the unprotected portion of the policy moneys available for the unsecured creditors, with the result that the protection afforded by the Act was entirely destroyed.—Re HOLLAND, Ex p. HOLLAND (1928), 28 S. He also directed that all his debts, funeral & testamentary expenses, & the " costs, charges & expenses of carrying into effect the trusts of his said will," should be paid out of the capital of said business :—Held : (1) the widow was entitled for life or until her second marriage, to the whole of the profits made by such business after testator's death; the cash at the banker's & the trade debts being assets or part of the capital of such business; (2) the debts, funeral & testamentary expenses, & the costs of suit, etc., should be borne out of the capital of such business; testator having exonerated his residuary estate from any such or similar charges.—DIXON v. DUTFIELD (1862), 5 L. 6053a. Effect of Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 39.]—The expression " personal representatives " in the Administration of Estates Act, 1925 (c. 23), s. 39, does not include trustees in the ordinary sense, even when the personal representatives themselves become trustees upon an assent. The introductory words of sect. 39, conferring powers on personal representatives " during a minority of any beneficiary or the subsistence of any life interest, or until the period of distribution arrives," are explained by the fact that under the new law of intestate succession the existence of an infant beneficiary or of a beneficiary, such as a widow, entitled to a life interest only may postpone distribution, & that in these cases sect. 33 places the personal representatives substantially in the position of trustees. The provision in sect. 39 (1) (ii), conferring on personal representatives " all the powers, discretions & duties conferred or imposed by law on trustees holding land upon an effectual trust for sale " does not operate referentially to make Law of Property Act, 1925 (c. 20), s. 28 (2), applicable to pure personalty. Accordingly, where under the will of a testator unauthorised investments are retained under a power to postpone conversion, the rule laid down in Howe v. Lord Dartmouth (1802), 7 Ves. 137a, still remains applicable in regard to the income payable to a tenant for life.—Re TROLLOPE'S WILL TRUSTS, PUBLIC TRUSTEE v. TROLLOPE, [1927] 1 Ch. 596; 96 L. Being unable to effect a sale of a certain dwelling-house property which upon its conversion into money would form part of the residuary estate, the exors. leased it for 16 months, reserving to themselves the right to determine the lease if they should wish to sell. A few weeks later they & the tenant entered into an agreement, called an " option to purchase," under which he made a cash payment & agreed to make monthly payments thereafter in addition to rent, & which also provided that on $1,000 being thus paid, or at any sooner time, he would be entitled to a conveyance, the amounts so paid as well as the rent to be credited on the purchase price, & the balance to be secured by mtge. payable in monthly payments. The " option " was stated to be irrevocable within the time for " acceptance " thereof, but was to remain in force only so long as the purchaser remained tenant of the property, & payment of $1,000 at any time during the continuance of the agreement, was to constitute the " acceptance " of the option :—Held : a sale within the power given by the will.—CLOSE v. MCMEANS, [1931] 3 W. 6281a. ——.]—Testator, who died on May 17, 1916, by his will appointed appcts. exors. & trustees, & bequeathed a number of absolute & settled pecuniary legacies. Testator gave all his estate whatsoever unto appcts. upon trust for sale & conversion at such time & manner as they should think fit, with power & discretion to postpone sale & conversion & charged the moneys to arise with the legacies bequeathed by his will. Testator's will contained a residuary bequest, investment clause in wide terms, & a power to appcts. to appropriate any part of the estate in its actual condition in satisfaction of any legacy. The principal asset of testator's estate was a sum of nearly a quarter of a million pounds Irish Three per cent. Guaranteed Stock, & the estate was insufficient for payment in full of all the legacies. The Irish stock could not be sold even at a reduced market value of £151,411 & in the interests of the estate it was inexpedient to realise it at once. sk. Necessity for consideration.]—The mother of pltf. made a will by which she devised certain land with a house on it to pltf., who was at that time living in it with her husband. Before the will was made, according to pltf.'s story, her husband wished to live elsewhere, & her mother said: "Do not leave; stay on here & fix this house up & I will leave it to my daughter (pltf.) at my death." The husband & wife stayed on & made improvements, relying on the promise, & the mother made the will leaving the property to pltf. 6678 i. Personal liability — As assignee.]—In Mar. 1921, pltf. executed a lease of land & buildings to H., & M. covenanting to allow the lessees to erect a partition on the ground floor of the chief building, & himself to contribute $1,000 towards the cost. The partition was built, pltf. contributed the $1,000 & the lessees went into possession. H. died in Jan. 1923, & his wife, deft. A. & deft. co., the executors named in the will, obtained probate thereof. In Oct. 1923, M. made an assignment in bkpcy. & deft. co. was appointed custodian of the bkpt. estate. Pltf.'s claim in this action was to recover a large sum made up of rent, taxes, cost of repairs & interest. He alleged that defts. entered into, & from Jan. 1923 continued in possession & receipt of the rents & profits & claimed payment from them personally:—Held: deft. co. entered upon the premises not merely in its representative capacity as exor., but personally as assignee of the term, & as such was personally chargeable with the amount of rents & profits which it received, & with such further sums as it might have received if it had used due diligence, but not exceeding in the aggregate the full amount of the actual rental value of the premises.—RYCKMAN v. TRUSTS & GUAR. 6770a. Negligence.]—A co. was formed for the purpose of buying the business of a firm of bill brokers, & by the memorandum of assocn. the directors were empowered to buy it upon such terms & under such stipulation as to guarantee or otherwise as might be agreed upon. The prospectus referred to the memorandum of assocn. & to a certain deed of covenant. By that deed the business was assigned to the co., & all accounts, except such as the directors should require to be reserved & excepted, were to be carried on by the co., & the partners in the business guaranteed that all debts due to the firm & taken over by the co. were good. By a second deed of the same date, not mentioned or disclosed to the shareholders, assets of the firm to the nominal value of £4,213,896 were reserved & excepted, & provisions were made for guaranteeing payment by the partners of the balance which, after a certain period & under certain arrangements, should not be got in on this account. The co. carried on business for some time, & then stopped payment. A bill was filed by the co. against the living directors & the exors. of a deceased director stating these facts, & that the co. had lost £1,500,000 by taking the liabilities of the business, & by the insufficiency of the guarantee, & charged that the directors had been guilty of a breach of duty in buying the business without obtaining the sanction of a general meeting, & in not taking mtges. on the property of the partners in order to secure the guarantee, but no fraud was charged against the directors :—Held : on demurrer by the exors. of the deceased director, that as regarded any loss beyond the money placed in the directors' hands, the remedy, if any, was at law, by an action of negligence, which would not survive against exors.—OVEREND, GURNEY & Co. v. GURNEY (1869), 4 Ch. suspended from practice, & who obtained from the first pltf. the Post Office Savings Bank deposit book & the Savings Certificates. Deft. heard for the first time of the solr.'s suspension three months later, when the first pltf. told him of it. Under deft.'s written authority, a warrant valued at £62 4*s.* had been issued in favour of the solr.'s firm, & the first pltf. wrote to deft. objecting to his having taken that course. Later, the first pltf. asked deft. to employ another solr., but deft. did not do so, as the solr. was then promising to settle the matter. Ultimately the solr. absconded, & the sums of £14 14*s.* 5*d.* & £62 4*s.* were not recovered. In an action by pltfs. for a declaration that deft. was guilty of a breach of trust in permitting the sums to be retained by the solr., & for payment of them, deft. in his defence relying upon Trustee Act, 1925 (c. 19), s. 23 :—Held : Trustee Act, 1925 (c. 19), s. 23 (1), authorised deft. in signing the authorities to the solr.'s firm to collect the sums ; (2) by virtue of sect. 30 (1) of the Act, trustees are not liable for losses due to the default of " any banker, broker, or other person with whom any trust money or other securities may be deposited " unless the losses are caused by the trustees' own wilful default ; (3) an exor. employing an agent to receive moneys belonging to the estate & relying on sect. 23 (1), will not be liable if the money is lost through the agent's misconduct, unless the exor. has himself been guilty of wilful default ; (4) deft. was guilty only of an error of judgment which, where losses are due to a solr.'s dishonesty, does not amount to " wilful default " on the part of an exor.—Re VICKERY, VICKERY v. STEPHENS, [1931] 1 Ch. 572 ; 100 L. 74a. —— ——.]—Applts. were brought before a magistrate in Trinidad under sect. 5 of the French Guiana Extradition Ordinance of Trinidad charged with being fugitive criminals from French Guiana, where there is a penal settlement. At the hearing it was proved that they had each been convicted in France of a specified crime, & had each received a sentence of imprisonment which was unexpired. The magistrate made an entry in his magistrate's book against their names "extradition ordered." He did not, however, make, as he should have done, an order under Extradition Act, 1870 (c. 52), s. 10 (made applicable by sect. 5 of the Ordinance), for committal to await the Governor's warrant for surrender. Instead another magistrate, who had not heard the case, made a detention order under sect. 3 of the Ordinance, which section applies to suspected fugitives. Upon habeas corpus proceedings :—Held : the appellants should be released : (1) because under the terms of the extradition treaty with France they could be extradited only if the crimes of which they had been convicted were committed in French territory, & there was no evidence that that was so, nor was it necessarily involved in the convictions ; (2) because sects. 11 & 12 of the local Summary Conviction Offences (Procedure) Ordinance did not make the entry in the magistrate's book equivalent to an order under Extradition Act, 1870 (c. 52), s. 10, & the irregularities with regard to the order signed prevented the detention of applts. from being warranted.—KOSSEKECHATKO v. A.-G. He was convicted in England on a charge of fraudulent conversion based upon the facts contained in the information upon which the claim for extradition was made:—Held: (1) the onus of showing that he had been surrendered in accordance with the extradition treaty between this country & France lay on applt., & he had failed to discharge that onus; (2) Extradition Act, 1870 (c. 52), s. 19, which, in effect, enacts that a person extradited may be tried for any offence which can be proved by the facts upon which the surrender was grounded, was not abrogated by the provisions of Art. 68a. —— ——.]—Resps., the occupiers of a factory, provided adequate guards for securely fencing the mill-gearing, & exhibited a notice prohibiting workmen from removing any guard without special instructions. The workmen removed nine guards for the purpose of setting the rollers, &, having replaced only eight of the guards, started the rollers. Owing to their neglect, one workman, who slipped & fell, was dragged into the coupling gear & was killed. An information against resps. under 1901 Act, s. 136, for neglecting to observe the provision of sect. 10 (1) (c) that the mill-gearing must be securely fenced, was dismissed, on the grounds that resps. had taken all adequate precautions by providing the necessary guards, & that it was the fault of the workmen that caused the accident :—Held : under sect. 10 it was the duty of resps. not merely to provide guards, but to fence the machinery securely, & as they had not performed this duty, the justices ought to have convicted them.—THOMAS v. BOLTON (THOMAS) & SON, LTD. She received compensation under the Workmen's Compensation Act for a time, & then accepted £20 in purported settlement on the promise by the employer to re-employ her. No memorandum of this agreement was recorded. She worked at this employment for five years, when, by reason of trade conditions, she was discharged. She then commenced an action against the employer for damages for personal injuries resultant from the employer's alleged breach of statutory duty to fence the machine. The action was tried by a judge alone, who found that the injury had been caused by the employer's breach of statutory duty to fence, & that there was no contributory negligence on the part of pltf. He, however, also found, having regard to the fact that the infant had received employment for five years after her accident under the agreement, that the agreement to accept compensation, though not registered, was for her benefit & therefore binding, with the result that the action was barred by Workmen's Compensation Act, 1925 (c. 84), s. 29, of the Act. The infant appealed :—Held : (1) without deciding whether the agreement was for the infant's benefit or whether further proceedings might be taken under the Workmen's Compensation Act, the action for breach of statutory duty failed because, on the evidence, the machine was not a dangerous machine within Factory & Workshop Act, 1901 (c. 22), s. 10, & therefore there was no duty on the employer to fence it ; (2) on the evidence, the accident was caused by the negligence of pltf., which was a complete defence to the action even if such negligence had only been of a contributory character.—HIGGINS v. HARRISON (1932), 25 B. 76a. —— Machinery equally safe fenced or unfenced—Overhead shaft.]—Resps. were the occupiers of a factory in which was a machine driven by a pulley fixed on a horizontal shaft, which formed part of the mill gearing. The driving belt slipped off the pulley & an employee of resps. attempted to put it back while the shaft was running & sustained injuries. The shaft & pulley were about thirteen feet from the floor & they were not fenced or guarded. In attempting to put on the belt the workman stood on a beam about seven feet from the floor, & was acting contrary to resps.' instructions. Resps. were summoned for not having the shaft fenced, but the justices, being of opinion that any fence would have been useless owing to the shaft being thirteen feet above the ground, dismissed the case :—Held : the finding of the justices was not equivalent to a finding that the shaft was " in such position or of such construction as to be equally safe to every person employed or working in the factory as it would be if it were securely fenced," which was the requirement of 1901 Act, s. 10 (1) (c), & there would have been no evidence to support the latter finding.—ATKINSON v. LONDON & NORTH EASTERN RY. 98a. Duty to keep in repair & free from obstruction —Part of factory in occupation of lessee.]—The supply of mechanical power referred to in Factory & Workshop Act, 1901 (c. 22), s. 149 (1), is not limited to the case of supply by the owner of the building, & there is no reason to read into the sub-sect. after the word " supplied " the words " by the owner."

X. owned a building which was a factory where more than forty persons were employed, & carried on business as a shirt manufacturer in the basement & on the ground & first floors. The second floor was unoccupied. The third & fourth floors were let to Y., who carried on business there as a blouse manufacturer, employing more than forty persons. The factory of X. & that of Y. were respectively worked by separate & distinct electric motors, driven by electricity generated & supplied by the electricity undertaking of a municipal corpn. & each factory had a separate meter. Without this supply of electricity the electric motors could not be driven :—Held : mechanical power, namely, electrical current, was supplied to different parts of the same building within sect. 149 (1). Accordingly, as the building was a tenement factory, etc., the owner, was responsible under sect. 14 (6), (7) of the Act that the means of escape in case of fire provided throughout the factory, including the two floors occupied by Y., should be maintained in good condition & free from obstruction.—MUMBY v. VOLP, [1930] 1 K. 76a . . . Defts. were the occupiers of a factory. A workman in their employment, following his daily duties, climbed up a ladder to the shafting in the dye-house to fix a belt on a pulley, & was caught in the shafting, whirled round & killed. No one actually saw the occurrence, but, as portions of deceased's clothing were on the shaft, they probably got caught in it. An information against defts. charged that, contrary to Factory & Workshop Act, 1901, s. 10 (1) (c), a part of the mill gearing, namely, a line of shafting, was neither securely fenced nor in such a position nor of such construction as to be equally as safe to every person employed or working in the factory as if it had been securely fenced. The justices dismissed the information, but stated a case for the opinion of the K. B. D. :—Held : defts., in failing to fence the line of shafting, had contravened Factory & Workshop Act, 1901, s. 10 (1) (c), & should be convicted.—MINISTRY OF LABOUR FOR NORTHERN IRELAND v. COWDY & SONS, [1929] N. The jury returned a general verdict for deft. :—Held : in the particular circumstances there should be a new trial, there having been a misdirection on the question of contributory negligence upon which the jury might have acted.—COFIELD v. WATERLOO CASE CO., LTD. By sect. 105 the provisions of the Acts with respect (inter alia) to fines in respect of death or injury are applicable as if any premises on which machinery worked by steam, water, or other mechanical power is temporarily used for the purpose of the construction of a building or any structural work in connection with a building were included in the word "factory," & as if the person who by himself, his agents or workmen, temporarily uses any such machinery for the before-mentioned purpose were the occupier of a factory. The Secretary of State, in pursuance of s. 79, made certain regulations casting upon employers of workmen the duty of fencing floor-openings with a suitable guard rail & toe board or other efficient means :—Held : (1) the words "temporarily used" are not confined to the actual moment when the machinery is in use, but extend to the whole period during which the machinery is available for use in the constructional work, & therefore that persons who had brought such machinery upon the premises were liable to conviction as the occupiers of a factory in respect of the death of a workman who fell through an unfenced shaft at a time when the mechanical hoist for which the shaft was made was not in use ; (2) the words "employers of workmen" imposed upon sub-contractors, engaged in laying floors in a building in course of erection, liability in respect of the death of one of their workmen who fell through an unguarded well hole which the sub-contractors had left for a staircase in the construction of which the sub-contractors were not concerned.—BARNETT v. CAXTON FLOORS, LTD., BUTLER v. KLEINE PATENT FIRE RESISTING FLOORING SYNDICATE, LTD. 180b. —— Extensive building site—House on site completed.] -Injuries were sustained by two workmen in the employ of resps., who were contractors engaged in the erection of a number of houses on a large area of unenclosed land. At one point on the building site was a mortar mill driven by a petrol engine, & there was also on the site a concrete mixer on wheels, which was moved about the site as occasion required. In the first case the workman injured himself while working on the roof of a house which had almost been completed. The mortar mill was 100 yds. distant from the house, & was not within its curtilage or precincts. In the second case the accident occurred in a completed house from which the mortar mill was 25 yds. & the concrete mixer about 400 yds. distant ; neither of these machines had any connection with the accident. In both cases the workmen were disabled for more than three days, but resps. did not send written notice to the inspector of the district. Informations for failing to give notice were preferred against resps. under the Notice of Accidents Act, 1906 (c. 53), as amended by Workmen's Compensation Act, 1923 (c. 42). The justices dismissed both informations :—Held : (without deciding whether an extensive building site may be a "factory" within Factory & Workshop Act, 1901 (c. 22), s. 105 (1)), the question of the extent of "premises on which machinery . . . is temporarily used for the purpose of the construction of a building" was one of degree & therefore of fact ; & the justices had not misdirected themselves in holding that a house on such a site, when completed, or nearly completed, became a separate set of premises, which could not be deemed to be a "factory" within the Act.—PEASE v. SIMMS (W. The evidence showed that it had been the practice of the mill for many years to make deductions for work not done with reasonable care & skill, the deductions not exceeding in amount the loss sustained by the employers & often not being exacted. A similar usage existed in the bulk of the mills carrying on the Lancashire weaving trade, though some of the mill owners were trying to do without deductions :—Held : this practice was not rendered illegal by the Truck Act, 1831 (c. 37), s. 3, as it did not involve a deduction for bad work from ascertained wages, but a deduction for bad work made in calculating the wages.—SAGAR v. RIDEHALGH (H.) & SON, LTD., [1931] 1 Ch. 310; 100 L. Defts. denied pltfs.' right to free access to the school over the approach :—Held: as the old highway consisted of the approaches to the ferry plus the passage across the river, & the substituted highway consisted of the approaches to the bridge plus the bridge, & as the old approaches were highways to which owners would be entitled to access, the substituted approaches were highways by which adjoining owners had similar rights of access, & defts.' claim was ill founded.—YORKSHIRE, EAST RIDING, COUNTY COUNCIL v. SELBY BRIDGE CO. By sect. 56 of the Act they were empowered to establish, maintain, work & use a ferry service for passengers, animals vehicles & goods between the Sandbanks & South Haven Point within Poole Harbour. By sect. 62, passed for the protection of the Poole Harbour Comrs., pltfs. were required to establish or acquire & thereafter continuously work the ferry by means of a vessel propelled by steam on a chain cable system, & by sects. 62, 97, passed for the benefit of certain landowners, they were required to provide from seven o'clock in the forenoon when summer time should be in force & from eight o'clock in the forenoon at all other times of the year until one hour after sunset on every day a minimum hourly service of vessels from each shore. The two sects. contained provisions enabling Poole Harbour Comrs. & the landowners respectively to exercise certain powers & rights in case pltfs. should cease working the ferry or fail to work it continuously & efficiently. They established a ferry service in accordance with these provisions :—Held: the Act did not confer on pltfs. an exclusive right of ferry, & that they were not entitled to an injunction restraining defts., who for many years before the Act had in fact carried passengers between the Sandbanks & South Haven Point without claiming any franchise entitling them to do so, from carrying passengers bicycles & goods across the mouth of Poole Harbour within or near the limits of pltfs.' said ferry.—BOURNEMOUTH-SWANAGE MOTOR ROAD & FERRY CO. v. HARVEY & SONS, [1930] A. sr. Duty to erect grating in tail race of mill—Although banks of adjoining owner affected.]—Deft. was fined at petty sessions for failing to erect a grating or lattice across the tail race of his mill at a point where the tail race re-enters the river " F." The river " F." is a river in which there are salmon. For a certain distance before & at the point where the tail race re-enters this river it is bounded on both sides by lands that belong to an adjoining owner, & not to the deft., the owner of the mill. There was no grating or lattice on the tail race where it diverged from or re-entered the river ; to construct the grating or lattice, it would be necessary to erect piers that would project into the banks, on the side of the tail race, the property of the adjoining owner. Deft. had started the necessary work of erecting the grating, but had abandoned it in consequence of the objection of the adjoining owner to any trespass on his lands. Deft. had the use of the tail race from the moment it left his own lands until it reached the river :—Held : deft. was under a statutory obligation by 5 & 6 Vict. c. 106, s. 76, to erect the grating even though it entailed an interference with the banks of the adjoining owner.—R. Deft. alleged in defence that the sum claimed had been paid to him as wages ; &, further, that the county ct. had no jurisdiction, the question between the parties being a dispute concerning wages within Merchant Shipping Act, 1894 (c. 60), s. 387, which could only be dealt with by a superintendent thereunder. At the trial it was found as a fact that the sum claimed had been lent to deft., & that there was no real dispute concerning wages : —Held : (1) the county ct. had jurisdiction to entertain the action notwithstanding the section, inasmuch as that ct. had all along had jurisdiction to entertain an action for money lent & the section did not either expressly or by implication exclude that jurisdiction ; (2) the jurisdiction of the superintendent under the sect. did not arise until a party to the dispute called him to decide it, & here no party had called upon him to do so.—STURLEY v. POWELL, [1930] 1 K. Moreover under this Statute, rules & regulations might be made by Order in Council, & the same were made providing that such licence could be granted only to "Canadian built" vessels, & that after Apr. 1932, none but such would be eligible for licence, & further providing that after Apr. 1, 1930, a licence fee of one cent a pound on the fish caught should be payable. This fee in the case of deft. would amount to between $130,000 to $150,000 a year :—Held : as the regulations ignore the statutory limitation to British ships registered in Canada or owned by a Canadian, etc., & fix as the condition upon which the licence would issue that such ships be Canadian built, & such condition being obviously beyond the scope of the Act, & the delegated powers, such regulations are ultra vires, unenforceable, null & void.—R. v. NATIONAL FISH CO., LTD., [1931] Ex. In each case the questions whether the master fairly & honestly on reasonable ground believed it necessary to take shelter, & whether he exercised reasonable skill, competence & courage in the circumstances, are questions of fact for the tribunal whose duty it is to find the facts.

C., 1927, s. 10, a foreign fishing vessel entering Canadian territorial waters on the ground of "stress of weather," there must be such a condition of atmosphere & sea as would produce in the mind of a reasonably competent & skilful master, possessing courage & firmness, a well grounded bonâ fide apprehension that if he remains outside such waters he will put in jeopardy his vessel & cargo. A want of bona fides would abrogate any right or privilege to shelter given by the statute. Further, weaknesses in a vessel may be such, as instanced in certain respects in the present case, as, e.g., glass of inadequate thickness in pilot house windows a small height from the sea, constituting a special danger from waves, that any distress arising from them should be deemed a distress created by the owner or master himself.

(2) The Convention of Oct. 20, 1818, between Great Britain & the United States, respecting fisheries & boundary lines, has no application to Canadian territorial waters on the Pacific Coast, so far as fisheries are concerned. added preservative, contrary to the provisions of the Public Health (Preservatives, etc., in Food) Regulations, 1925. The retailer was convicted upon an information charging him with the sale of the ground ginger to the prejudice of the purchaser under Food & Drugs (Adulteration) Act, 1928 (c. 31), s. 2. Subsequently, proceedings were commenced against the previous seller of the ground ginger for wilfully neglecting to obey the Public Health (Preservatives, etc., in Food) Regulations, 1925, by selling the ground ginger to the retailer. No further sample was taken of the ground ginger & no further analysis made. No part of the sample that was taken in the first instance was sent to the previous seller of the ground ginger. The magistrate refused to convict on the ground that the provisions of sect. 18 of 1928 Act had not been complied with :—Held : the magistrate was wrong in holding that compliance with the formalities prescribed by sect. 18 of 1928 Act was a condition precedent to the institution of proceedings against the previous seller for a sale to which art. 7 of the Regulations of 1925 applied. When the formalities prescribed by sect. 18 of 1928 Act with regard to taking of sample, division & analysis had been complied with in proceedings as between the purchaser & the retailer, there was no necessity for those formalities to be repeated when proceedings were subsequently taken against the previous seller under art. 7 of the Regulations of 1925.—TWYNHAM v. BADCOCK, [1932] 2 K. 439a. Protection of employer under Sale of Food (Weights & Measures) Act, 1926 (c. 63)—When applicable.]—(1) Held : the language of Sale of Food (Weights & Measures) Act, 1926 (c. 63), s. 12 (2), has no relation & does not apply to a case where a defect of deft.'s machinery or a default of an employee under deft.'s control is the cause of the deficiency. This sub-sect. deals with the case where the deficiency is due to a bonâ fide mistake or accident or other causes beyond deft.'s control, that is to say, not with negligence or other conduct of deft.'s servants or other persons under his control. In such a case deft. may avail himself of the provisions of sect. 12 (5) if he satisfies the provisions of that sub-sect., by having any other person, including an employee, whom he charges as the actual offender, brought before the ct.

(2) On the question whether proceedings against defts. for contravening this sub-sect. were " proceedings under this Act in respect of an alleged deficiency of weight " within sect. 12 (2), whilst LORD HEWART, C.J., did not express a decided opinion, one way or the other, AVORY, J., expressed the view that proceedings under sect. 6 (2) of the Act were in respect of an alleged deficiency of weight, & TALBOT, J., expressed an opinion to the contrary.

(3) On proceedings against bakers under sect. 6 (2) of the Act defts. duly laid an information against one of their employees under sect. 12 (5) ; having him brought before the ct. as the actual offender & tendering evidence in order to prove that they had used due diligence to enforce the execution of the Act, & that their employee had committed the offence without their consent, connivance, or wilful default. At petty sessions, the information against the employee was dismissed, but defts. were convicted. Defts. appealed to Quarter Sessions :—Held : the Ct. of Quarter Sessions had no power to exempt defts. from any penalty under sect. 12 (5) on the ground (per LORD HEWART, C.J., & TALBOT, J.) that having regard to the fact that the employee

On May 13, 1930, resps., after hearing applt., decided to remove his predecessor from the register on that ground, & thereupon gave applt. notice that they had so decided. 508 iii. —————————.]—A dairyman was convicted of selling sweet milk which was not genuine, in respect that it contained less than 3 per cent. of milk fat. The alleged deficiency in fat was established, but it was also proved that the milk had not been tampered with in any way, the deficiency being due to the milk having stood for some time in the can, & to the sample having been drawn from a tap at the bottom after the cream had risen. No evidence was led as to the possibility or impossibility of redistributing the constituents of the milk in the can by stirring or otherwise: —Held: accused had failed to rebut the statutory presumption that the milk was not genuine, & the conviction was right.—M'CALLUM v. BROOKS, [1926] S. k i. —— Price of milk varying with quality supplied—Genuine milk to be supplied.]—Deft. was a shareholder in a certain co-operative dairy society, & she & the other suppliers of milk to the creamery of the said society delivered daily to the creamery quantities of milk. The quantity of milk delivered by each supplier was recorded by weight in pounds, dependent on the number of gallons, & the manager or other official of the creamery took a sample of each delivery, tested it, & ascertained its contents of butter-fats. In return for the said milk delivered by her, deft. received from the creamery: (a) at the end of every month a cash payment per pound of milk delivered, calculated on the average percentage of butter-fats contained in the milk delivered during the month—the greater the content of the butter-fats, the higher the price paid; & (b) each day a quantity of separated milk, which was determined in accordance with the rules of the society & was proportionate to the quantity of milk delivered by deft. to the creamery, or, instead, a cash payment. A sample of deft.'s milk taken by an Inspector of Food & Drugs when the milk was in the course of delivery to the creamery was found on analysis to be inferior to the standard prescribed by regs. 1 & 2 of Sale of Milk (Ir.) Regulations, 1901, & deft. was charged for selling to the creamery, to the prejudice of the purchaser, i.e. the said creamery, within Sale of Food & Drugs Act, 1875 (c. 63), as amended by Sale of Food & Drugs Act Amendment Act, 1879 (c. 30), s. 3, an article of food, to wit, milk, which was not of the nature, substance, & quality demanded by the purchaser. No evidence was given by deft. to rebut the presumption of abstraction or adulteration which applied to the said sample by reason of the said regulations. The district justice dismissed the summons:—Held: the district justice was wrong in law in dismissing the summons, as although the price paid by the creamery varied with the quality of the milk supplied, the contract contemplated the supply of genuine milk, & the milk of which the sample was taken was not genuine milk as defined by Sale of Milk (Ir.) Regulations, 1901. MURPHY v. NICHOLSON, [1931] I. R. 582.—IR.

204 ii. —— Partition by father on remarriage—Allegation by settlor that conveyance in fraud of creditors—Onus of proof.]—In 1904 a Burman executed on his remarriage a deed of partition by which he purported to convey to his daughter, the only child of his first marriage & then eight years of age, immovable property as her one-quarter share of the joint property of that marriage, & he appointed his own mother to take care of it. He remained in possession, but contributed to the support of his daughter, who resided with her maternal grandmother. At the time of the conveyance the father was considerably indebted, & his creditors, finding that they could not attach the property, settled with him upon easy terms. In 1915 the father promised his daughter & her maternal uncle that the property would be restored to her. In 1925 the daughter sued for possession. The father pleaded that the conveyance was in fraud of his creditors, & that the suit was barred by limitation :—Held : upon the whole facts the father had failed to discharge the burden, which was heavily upon him of proving that the conveyance was in fraud of his creditors, & not a genuine conveyance of his daughter's share, possibly liberally calculated; & consequently his possession was not adverse to his daughter, but on her behalf.—MA NGWE NAING v. MAUNG THA MAUNG (1928), I. co., issued three policies of insurance in respect of the life of a child, for sums which aggregated more than the statutory maximum, though each was for a sum less than that maximum. Each policy contained a provision that no payment would be made which either alone or in conjunction with other such payments exceeded the statutory maximum. On a charge of having committed an offence within Industrial Assurance Act, 1923 (c. 8), s. 39 (2):—Held: (1) the words in sect. 4 (1) "relating to payments on the death of children" were merely descriptive of the group of sects. in the 1896 Act headed "Payments on death of children," & did not limit those sects. in their application to industrial assurance cos. to payment only, but included the provisions as to insurance; (2) the above provision in each policy had no legal effect at all, & it could not be contended that in fact the co. did not insure for more than the statutory amount; (3) the proceedings were in time because, for this purpose, the insurance co. did not insure from the time only when the policies were taken out, but (LORD HEWART, C.J.) either insured on every occasion when a premium was paid, or (AVORY, J.) continued to insure during the time that the assured was not in default & the policies were in force.—HARKER v. BRITANNIC ASSURANCE CO., LTD., [1928] 1 K. 175b. —— Proviso in policy limiting sum assured.] —In 1920 H. took out a policy of industrial insurance on the life of his daughter, then aged three months, at a premium of twopence per week, & in 1925 he effected a similar policy on the life of his son, then aged one month, in each case assuring the amounts respectively set out in a Table contained in the policy. The Table in the policy of 1920 was made out on the basis of a premium of one penny per week & insured sums payable on the death of the life assured varying in amount according to age & the time the policy had been in force; it also contained the following statement: "Twopence per week will assure double the above sums provided that in any case where the amount secured by the larger premium would exceed the limits of assurance prescribed by Friendly Societies Act, 1896 (c. 25), viz., £6 for children under five years of age, & £10 for children under ten years of age, the sum assured shall be limited to £6 or £10 as the case may require." In the policy of 1925 was a statement that the amount payable under it was subject to the limitations of Friendly Societies Act, 1924 (c. 11):—Held: in view of the statements in the two policies limiting the amount insured in each case to the statutory maximum, neither policy contravened the provisions of the Friendly Societies Acts, 1896 & 1924, & was valid.

In 1925 C. signed a proposal for a whole life assurance on the life of her son, then aged one year next birthday, at a weekly premium of one penny for a sum to be assured increasing as per scale up to £15. On the same day she signed a proposal for an endowment assurance on the same life at a weekly premium of threepence for a "sum to be assured £7 14*s.* payable on attainment of age fifteen or in the event of previous death as per scale." Two policies were issued on the basis of these proposals. On the whole-life policy there was this memorandum: "This life is also assured under [the endowment] policy. Accordingly, the full sum assured printed in the schedule will not come into operation until the attainment of the age of ten. The combined amount payable in the event of earlier death shall not exceed £6 on death under age three, £10 under age six, & £15 under age ten":—Held: as the above quoted memorandum cut down the sums payable under the combined policies to the statutory limit, the policies did not contravene the Friendly Societies Act, 1924 (c. 11), & were valid.—Re HIRST & LIVERPOOL VICTORIA FRIENDLY SOCIETY, Re CLARK & LONDON & MANCHESTER ASSURANCE CO., [1930] 2 K. 175c. — — — — .]—Applt. insured her child, who was born on May 2, 1927, a month after its birth, the premium to be 2*d.* a week. Friendly Societies Act, 1924 (c. 11), s. 2 (1), stated that Friendly Societies Act, 1896 (c. 25), s. 62, should have effect "as if for that section the following section were substituted," & provided that a society should not insure or pay on the death of a child under three years of age any sum of money which exceeded or which, when added to any amount payable on the death of that child by any other society or branch or by any trade union, exceeded £6. By Industrial Assurance Act, 1923 (c. 8), s. 21, it was required that any such policy of insurance should set out in distinctive type a statement of the effect of sect. 62. Applt. claimed from resp. co. the return of her premiums on the grounds that (a) under sect. 62 as amended by sect. 2 (1) of the Act of 1924 the sum insured exceeded the amount allowed, & (b) under sect. 21 of the Act of 1923 the policy did not set out a statement of the effect of sect. 62 as amended. Sect. 62 of the Act of 1896 was left unamended & unrepealed by the Act of 1924, but under the latter Act was to be read as provided by the Act of 1924. The policy was issued for a penny premium, & that was altered to twopence premium, & it was then stated that the amount payable on death was ascertainable from Sched. B., but that, the premium in this case being twopence, the amounts stated in Sched. B were increased in proportion. That would bring the amounts over what was allowed by sect. 62 as amended, but to the above statement was added "subject to the conditions of the Friendly Societies Act." In a second proviso on the face of the policy it was stated that the policy was issued "subject to the provisions of sect. 62 of Friendly Societies Act, 1896 (c. 25), as amended by the Industrial Assurance Act, 1923 (c. 8)—the provisions of which would, it was argued, make it illegal." Then followed the effect of sect. 62 without the express language introduced by the Act of 1924 :—Held : the child had not been insured for sums in excess of the amounts permitted by sect. 62 of the Act of 1896 as amended by sect. 2 (1) of the Act of 1924, having regard to the effect of the statements in the policy, & particularly the proviso, & to the fact that sect. 62 of the Act of 1896 still existed, not having been repealed, though the amendment of it in the Act of 1923 had been repealed, & though sect. 62 had now to be read as if it had the effect set out in sect. 2 (1) of the Act of 1924. The co. had not committed an offence against sect. 21 of the Act of 1923, as it used the very language in its policy which had been used by the Legislature from 1896 to 1924, & did introduce the effect of sect. 62, & it was immaterial that the Act of 1924 was not specifically mentioned.—SMITH v. BRITANNIC ASSURANCE CO., LTD. sx. "Taking or killing" game under one year of age—What amounts to.]—Sect. 4 of Game Act, R. S. S., 1930, provides that "no person shall hunt, trap, take, shoot at, wound or kill . . . the young under one year of age of any of the animals mentioned in the sect." :—Held : (1) the application of the word "take" therein is limited to the act of capturing an animal &, in order to constitute an offence, the capture would have to be of a living animal, notwithstanding that sect. 2 (5) provides that "game" means such animals dead or alive ; (2) although the killing of such an animal is done when the animal is found lying wounded by some other person, & in order to end its suffering, the killing nevertheless comes within the terms of the section & is, therefore, an offence.—R. v. ZIMMER & ZIMMER, [1931] 2 W. The right of a municipality to protect its citizens by prohibiting the discharge of firearms within its limits is not interfered with.—R. ex rel. RANKIN v. PENDRAY, [1929] 1 W. W. R. 30 ; 51 Can. 393 i. Defences—Coursing hare.]—Deft. was prosecuted for pursuing a hare with a greyhound without having a game certificate, contrary to Game Certificates (Ireland) Act, 1842, ss. 2, 5. Deft. had coursed a hare with a single greyhound on certain lands, but produced a written permission from the owner of the lands to do so. The resident magistrate held that failure to take out a licence under Game Licences Act, 1860, formed the basis of the charge, & deft. was exempted on sect. 5, exception 3, of that Act, in respect of coursing a hare with his greyhound, & dismissed the summons. On a case stated :—Held : the resident magistrate was wrong in deciding that deft. came within Game Licences Act, 1860, s. 5, exception 3.—R. (NEVIN) v. CLARKE, [1930] N. I. 174.—IR.

In an action by E. on behalf of himself & the other members of the Club, the trustees of the Club & W. & Sons as stakeholders, to enforce payment by the deft. of the entrance fees or the part of them agreed to be forfeited :—Held : the contracts for the two races, which were between the Club & deft. & not between the various entrants inter se, were in neither case by way of gaming or wagering within Gaming Act, 1845 (c. 109), s. 18, & the Club were entitled to recover from deft. the amount of the fees agreed to be forfeited in the two races.

1 ii. ——.]—Every forward contract is to some extent speculative, but is not necessarily a wagering contract. Defts. having refused to settle for losses sustained :—Held : assuming the State law to be that if the contract was to deal in such a way that only the differences in prices should be settled according to the rise & fall of the market, & no grain be either delivered or accepted, the contract would be a gambling contract & illegal, it lay upon defts. to establish clearly that such was the character of the dealing.—RICE v. GUNN (1881), 4 O. The parties agreed to refer the question to Tattersall's Committee. The Committee decided that the amount payable was £1,000, & that it was to be paid within seven days. In an action to recover the £1,000 pltf. alleged that deft. had agreed to abide by the decision of the Committee :— Held : as the parties only referred to Tattersall's Committee the question whether the bet was at 100 to 1 or at 33 to 1, & as there was no further agreement by deft. for good consideration to pay such sum as the Committee might find to be payable, the action failed.—HYDE v. TYLER (1926), 42 T. 252 i. —— Prizes provided out of admission money.]—A person hired a hall for one night, & another hall for two nights, & advertised that whist drives, open to the public on payment of one shilling for admission, would be held in the halls on those nights. A large number of people attended, & prizes were awarded to the successful players. The purchase of the prizes was defrayed out of the admission money, any balance over being retained by the promoter :—Held : (1) the playing of progressive whist was gaming, in view of the facts that the element of chance predominated in the game, & that the prizes were derived from the admission money, & it was immaterial whether the proceedings were or were not detrimental to the morals of the community; (2) accused had managed, conducted, or carried on gaming in the premises, although his operations had been restricted to three isolated occasions.—BUNTON v. MILLER, [1926] S. 284a. House used for game where chances not alike favourable to all players.]—The committee of management of a members' club installed in the club certain machines for the use of members only & for the purpose of giving additional pleasure to the members. The machines were operated by means of pennies inserted in a slot. The player, having first inserted a penny, depressed a handle, causing three cylinders to revolve on which were depicted bells, bars & fruits. On the cylinders ceasing to revolve the player either lost his penny or received winnings up to twenty pennies, according to the combination of fruits &/or bells &/or bars opposite a pointer. The machine automatically filled a jack pot from its winnings, & the pennies in the jack pot were returned to the player who obtained the combination of three bars. The machines were similar in type to other machines for the user of which persons had been convicted under the Gaming Houses Act, 1854 (c. 38), where the persons had used the machines in shops or places of public entertainment or in proprietary clubs. Four members of the committee of management of the club in question were charged under Gaming Houses Act, 1854 (c. 38), s. 4, for being persons having the care & management of certain premises, to wit, the club, which were then being used for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein. The contention of the members of the committee of management was that the position of a members' club was analogous to that of a private house, & that gaming upon the machines in a members' club was therefore not unlawful gaming :—Held : in order that a house should be a common gaming house within s. 2 of the Gaming Act, 1845 (c. 109), s. 2, it was not necessary that some person should be keeping the house for his gain, lucre or living; it was sufficient that it was a house kept or used for playing at any game where the chances of the game being played therein are not alike favourable to all the players; the chances of the game played on the machines in this club were not alike favourable to all the players, & that the club was a members' club did not prevent the club premises being kept or used for the purpose of unlawful gaming being carried on therein, & therefore the members of the committee of management of the club could be convicted of the offence charged under Gaming Houses Act, 1854 (c. 38), s. 4.—DANIELS v. PINKS, [1931] 1 K. 276 i. Whether dominant element of skill.]—Deft. kept for use by the public on his premises a number of machines, known by the name of "Diddler." Any one wishing to use one of these machines purchased from deft. discs at the price of seven for 6*d*. He inserted one disc in a slot & pulled a handle, which caused three rollers to revolve. On each roller was printed a number of devices, such as cherries, roses, etc. If certain combinations of these devices stopped opposite a pointer on the face of the machine, the player won a certain number of discs. With these he could purchase on the premises certain goods. The winning combinations & the odds for each were printed on the front of the machine in view of the player. If none of these combinations stopped opposite the pointer, the player lost his disc. The machine was fitted with a control, by which the player could stop the rollers, one at a time, & so endeavour to obtain a winning combination. There were 15 machines on the premises. Deft. was prosecuted under Gaming Houses Act, 1854, s. 4, that he, being the occupier of the premises, did use them for the purpose of unlawful gaming. The justice was satisfied on the evidence that the majority of the persons who used the machine would be players of less than average skill, &, therefore, held that the game was one in which the chances were not favourable alike to all players, including the owner of the machine, & accordingly convicted the deft. :—Held : the conviction was right.—GORDON v. DUNLEVY, [1928] I. These vouchers represented the stakes, & after the race the whole money staked was divided among the backers of the winning dog, under deduction of 10 per cent. to cover expenses:—Held: the purchasers of vouchers entered into the betting transactions with each other, & not with the co. or the manager; & the fact that a charge was made for the use of the totalisator & for the service of operating it did not involve the co. or the manager in a contravention of the sects. libelled.—STRATHERN v. SCOTTISH GREYHOUND RACING CO., [1930] S. n i. —— Bonds in series—Payment not dependent on knowledge or skill.]—In a prosecution for a contravention of Lotteries Act, 1823, it was established that the promoters had formed & put into execution a scheme for the sale of bonds, each of which entitled the holder on certain conditions to £150. To qualify for this sum a participant had first to obtain a bond at the cost of 1*s.* either from the promoters or from a friend. This was the parent of a family of bonds which was brought into existence by a process of sub-sales. The holder of the parent bond had to buy from the promoters four bonds for 3*s.* & to sell them to four friends for 1*s.* each. These four bonds were the first generation, & each of the four holders of them had to repeat the same process, thus bringing the second generation of sixteen bonds into existence. The process had to be repeated until the sixth generation of 4096 bonds had come into existence, making, for the complete series, 5461 bonds. On the occurrence of this event the holder of the parent bond became entitled to £150. Not only was each individual bond a member of a family of bonds, but it could itself become the parent of a new family, & the holder of it was entitled to £150 as soon as its sixth generation was completed:—Held: the scheme was a lottery, in respect that the occurrence of the event upon which payment fell to be made could neither be approximately predicted nor materially influenced by the exercise of any knowledge, experience, art, or skill on the part of the holder of the parent bond.—Barnes v. Strathern, [1929] S. 464b. ——— ——— Distribution of circulars advertising lottery.]—Resp. employed canvassers to call from house to house, inviting persons to undertake to buy tea from her regularly. Each week the canvassers carried with them handbills which declared that: "To advertise our famous tea we will distribute among our customers cash gifts of £3 and £6," as the purchaser bought one or two packets of tea per week. The circular continued: "Each customer's name is entered in rotation in our ledger and cash gifts are paid out accordingly." The names & addresses of new customers were entered in the ledger in the exact order in which they had been obtained, the list of one canvasser's customers on his return to the office being completely entered before that of the next was begun. Resp. awarded her bonus each week to the next customer whose name was on the list after that of the customer last to receive a bonus, provided that the customer was still regularly buying the tea. The names of customers who ceased to buy the tea weekly were struck out of the list, thus advancing the names of customers below them. It was stated in one of the circulars that during the twenty-four weeks ending in June, 1928, resp. had paid out £1,920 by way of bonus gifts. Applt., a superintendent of police, preferred an information against resp., charging her with publishing a proposal or scheme for the sale of chances in a lottery not authorised by Act of Parliament, contrary to above Act. 504a. —— Determination of order of popularity of specified articles.]—The proprietors of a number of commodities organised, for advertisement purposes, a competition in which customers were asked to place thirteen named articles in the order of their popularity as shown by the actual voting of the entrants themselves. A number of money & other prizes were offered to those whose lists most nearly agreed with that shown by the voting as a whole. No entrance fee was charged, but each entrance form had to be accompanied by part of a bag or wrapper from one of the named articles :—Held : since the competitors were not asked to judge the real merits of the articles but to guess how other people would guess at their popularity, there was material on which a magistrate was justified in finding that the result depended entirely on chance & in convicting the advertising manager of the promoters of an offence under Lotteries Act, 1823 (c. 60), s. 41. —HOBBS v. WARD (1929), 93 J. 504b. —— Determination of order of popularity of theatrical rôles.]—Resps. sent to members of the theatrical profession & to persons whose names appeared in " Who's Who " books of 10*s.* tickets in a " Grand National Mutual Subscription Fund in aid of the Ellen Terry Memorial Museum " with a request to sell the tickets among their friends & return the counterfoils & money by a certain date. An accompanying circular explained that 25 per cent. of the money subscribed would be devoted to the museum & that the remaining 75 per cent. would be distributed " in such manner as the organisers in their absolute discretion shall think fit," but that £20,000 would be distributed in prizes. It was apparently originally contemplated that the money should be used for a sweepstake on the Grand National horse race, but owing to a communication from the police there was substituted a scheme whereby subscribers were invited to place in order of popularity, as shown by the general votes of the competitors, ten rôles played by the late Dame Ellen Terry :—Held : the scheme was a lottery. The fact that the original books of tickets were sent only to members of the theatrical profession & persons in " Who's Who " did not so limit the class of competitors as to render it possible by any element of skill to arrive at a reasonable forecast of how they would vote ; especially as they might be expected to sell many tickets to persons outside those two categories, so that the competition was in effect open to the public.—CHALLIS v. WARRENDER (1930), 144 L. d i. —— —— Receipt of money with coupons—Whether offence under Street Betting Act.]—In a complaint under Street Betting Act, 1906, it was proved that accused received in the street from various persons a large number of slips accompanied by sums of money. The slips were odd pieces of paper, upon each of which were written the names of at least one group of eight football teams, to which was added a name, number or other symbol, for identifying the sender of the slip. Accused did not submit lists of football teams for the purpose of selection, the names of such teams being selected by the senders of the slips from lists of teams advertised or reported in the public press to play on the Saturday following the date on which the slips were received by accused. The teams selected were those which the senders of the slips predicted would be winning teams on that Saturday. Along with each slip was sent 1*s.*, the understanding being that, after the results of the matches were published, accused would examine the forecasts made, & thereafter would deduct from the money received a sum in name of commission, & hand over the balance to the person sending in the correct forecast if only one forecast was correct, or, if more than one forecast was correct, an equal share of such balance to each of the senders of correct forecasts. If no correct selection was sent in, there was no distribution, & the whole contributions were carried forward to the next week ; which procedure was repeated until a correct forecast was made, or until the end of the football season arrived, when if there had been no correct selection received, the money in hand, less a commission to the accused, was distributed among those who had sent it :—Held : accused was engaged in betting transactions & was guilty of an offence under Street Betting Act, 1906.—YEUDALL v. MCQUILKIE, [1928] S. 51a. Duration of agreement to supply—Power to terminate.]—In 1906 a co. was incorporated by statute to supply gas in a certain area in the place of a limited co., & by sect. 7 the statutory co. took the benefit of all contracts & engagements of the limited co. which had been supplying gas to the defts., an urban council, for public lighting. In 1909 the co. entered into an agreement under seal with the council in which it was recited that before the passing of the Act "it was agreed by & between the predecessors of the gas co. & the council that the agreement then in force for public lighting should continue to remain in force & be binding on both parties until the council should determine the same," & that "it has been deemed desirable by the said parties hereto that the terms of the said agreement for the public lighting shall be set out as hereinafter mentioned." By the operative part of the agreement the co. agreed to light all the public lamps within the district "from & after the first day in Sept. in every year up to the following first day of May inclusive" on certain terms ; & provisions were made for increasing the number of lamps. There was no provision as to the period for which the agreement was to run or giving either party a right to determine it. By a supplemental agreement dated June 30, 1921, the times of lighting & the charges were varied, & clause 1 (c) provided that new lanterns supplied by the co. should become the property of the council without payment after fifteen years if the agreements continued for so long, "& if the said agreements be determined before the expiration of such period" the council were to pay for them. On Apr. 30, 1927, the council gave notice to determine the agreement on Aug. 31, 1927 :—Held : having regard to the recitals in the original agreement & clause 1 (c) of the supplementary agreement & to the nature of the contracts they were determinable by notice.—CREDITON GAS CO. v. CREDITON URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL, [1928] Ch. 447 ; 97 L. 356a. Gift made in contemplation of death from incurable disease—Death from different illness—Gift valid.]—A donatio mortis causâ is not generally conditioned upon the donor dying from the same disorder as that from which he is suffering, & contemplates the probability of death, at the time it is made.

By a mtge. made in 1922 the widow of J., who was tenant for life under his will, mortgaged a farm to W., a brother of J., to secure £1,000 & interest at 5 per cent. The widow died in 1923, having appointed her two daughters, E. & X., exors. of her will. The mtge. contained no personal covenant for payment of the principal, & the mtgee. accepted interest at 3½ per cent., reduced in 1924 to 3 per cent. In 1924 W., who was on very friendly terms with his brother's family, gave the deeds relating to the farm, other than the mtge. deed, to E. & X., to retain in their custody. On Dec. 11, 1927, W., who had since 1922 been suffering from an incurable disease & knew that he could not possibly live long, called upon his nieces, who were aware of his state of health, & gave them an envelope indorsed in his own handwriting : "Deeds relating to X. farm to be given up at death. W.," saying : "I have brought this down for you ; put it away." After he had left the house the envelope was opened, & was found to contain the mtge., which the nieces placed in their safe. On Jan. 23, 1928, W. died of pneumonia following a chill. In an action by his exors. for a declaration that the mtge. was a subsisting security & to enforce it :—Held : there was a valid donatio mortis causâ by W., & a release of the mtge. to the two daughters of J. for the benefit of his estate.—WILKES v. ALLINGTON, [1931] 2 Ch. 104 ; 100 L. 608a. —— Claim for repayment of income tax—Whether maintainable.]—Where the payment of a sum advanced by a bank to a customer together with interest due or to become due thereon is guaranteed, & subsequently the whole sum due is paid by the guarantor, that is not a payment of interest by the guarantor but is a payment by him of a debt under the guarantee, not of a debt in respect of an advance made to him. He cannot, therefore, claim repayment of tax on "interest" on an advance from a bank under the provision of Income Tax Act, 1918 (c. 40), s. 36 (1). The question whether, where the interest on such an advance is added to capital each half-year in accordance with the custom of bankers & that is acquiesced in by the customer, the payment of the whole sum by the guarantor was only a payment of capital, was not necessary to be decided.—HOLDER v. INLAND REVENUE COMRS., [1932] A. 1200a. —— —— —— Hire-purchase agreement.]—Pltfs. were the assignees of the rights of the R. Co. under a hire-purchase agreement dated July 6, 1927, whereby the co., "the owners," agreed to let to one T., "the principal," a motor car on the terms that he should be at liberty to purchase the car at a fixed price, paying as a first payment £22 6*s.* 8*d.*, & thereafter monthly payments of £14 3*s.* 4*d.*, until the whole was paid. The payments by the principal under this agreement were guaranteed by deft. as surety under a document signed by her on July 6, 1927. The principal afterwards fell in arrears in payment of the monthly instalments, & on Feb. 3, 1928, he wrote to the owners offering a cheque for £20 drawn by a friend in part payment. On Feb. 4 the owners wrote accepting this cheque & stipulating that the rest of the arrears should be paid within one month. The cheque was sent to the owners, but the arrears, which amounted to £79, were not paid within one month, & the owners then took back the car, acting upon their powers under the hire-purchase agreement. On Sept. 18, 1928, the owners assigned their rights under that agreement to pltfs., who claimed £122 in all from deft. as surety :—Held : (1) there was a binding contract by the owners to give time to the principal debtor; (2) the liability for payments under the hire-purchase agreement was one & indivisible, & deft. was entirely discharged from her suretyship.—MIDLAND MOTOR SHOWROOMS v. NEWMAN, [1929] 2 K. 1223a. Charge by several persons of properties—Release of deeds deposited by one.]—By a joint & several memorandum of charge twelve persons, in luding six resps., deposited deeds with applt. as security to relieve applt. from the entire burden of a guarantee given by him to a bank for the overdraft of S. & Co., & they thereby respectively charged the hereditaments to which the deeds related with repayment of all money to become due from S. & Co. Applt., at the request of C., one of the twelve persons, allowed her to take the deeds deposited by her away for the purpose of raising a loan. S. & Co. having gone into liquidation, the bank called upon applt. to make good his guarantee. Thereupon resps. brought an action claiming that they were entitled to have all the deeds deposited by them under the terms of the charge discharged from the debt to which they were made liable to contribute under the charge, on the ground that, by applt. allowing C. to withdraw the deeds deposited by her, their risk had been increased :—Held : (1) there had been an alteration made in the position of those whose properties remained deposited as securities under the charge by reason of applt. allowing the withdrawal by C. of the deeds deposited by her, & they not having consented to the alteration, their properties, the deeds of which they had deposited, were discharged from all claims under the charge; their right of marshalling had been affected by the withdrawal of the deeds of one of the parties, & the materiality of the alteration was a question to be decided by them; (2) the same reasoning was applicable, whether what was contributed were securities or personal liability.—SMITH v. WOOD [1929], 1 Ch. 14; 98 L. to them the payment of all the instalments then owing upon the shares in the co. specified in the schedule to the agreement, the amount of D. & P.'s liability being limited to the sum therein mentioned. The shareholders having been served with notice calling upon them to pay the instalments due on their respective shares on pain of forfeiture, & D. & P. also having been required to pay the same on or before Feb. 17, 1925, in case of non-compliance by the shareholders with the notice, & default in payment having been made by both the shareholders & by D. & P., the co. forfeited the bulk of the shares in pursuance of the power conferred upon them by their arts. of assocn. Art. 31 was as follows: "Any member whose shares have been forfeited shall, notwithstanding such forfeiture, be liable to pay to the co. all calls or other moneys, interest & expenses, whether presently payable or not, owing in respect of such shares at the time of forfeiture, together with interest thereon from the time of forfeiture until payment at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum or such less rate as may be fixed by the Board." On Sept. 9, 1925, a receiving order in bkpcy. was made against D. & P., & on Apr. 10 the co. lodged their proof for the amount claimed to be due on the guarantee. Upon a motion by the co. for the reversal of the decision of the trustee in rejecting their proof:—Held: (1) the right created by art. 31 was a new right which arose upon the forfeiture of the shares & one which placed a more onerous obligation upon the shareholders than if the shares had not been forfeited. The forfeiture, therefore, was an interference with the rights of the sureties as against the principal debtor; (2) the co. had by exercising their option to forfeit the shares deprived the sureties of their lien on the shares which they would have been entitled to, had the co., in lieu of forfeiture, compelled them to pay the calls; with the result that, upon the principles stated in Polak v. Everett, No. 1222, ante, D. & P. were discharged from their liability as sureties under the guarantee & the decision of the trustee in their bkpcy. in rejecting the proof of the co. was right.—Re DARWEN & PEARCE, [1927] 1 Ch. 176; 95 L. 1908a. —— —— Indemnity against loss on debentures—Sale of debentures by party indemnified.]—Deft. was the chairman of the S. Co., which at the end of 1921 was seeking to issue £15,000 First Lien Debentures to rank pari passu with a previous issue of first lien debentures of the same amount; & deft., having interested pltf. in the matter, sent him a letter of indemnity, dated Feb. 17, 1922, in these terms: "Regarding the issue of £15,000 First Lien Debentures of the S. Co. at the price of £80 per £100 . . . I understand you are subscribing for £3,000 of the same at a cost to you of £2,400. In consideration of your giving me one-fourth of any profit you may receive on such investment, I hereby indemnify you against any loss thereon. The expression 'any profit' only refers to the redemption price of £100 per £80, which, when received, will show a profit of £20 per bond & the bonus out of the proceeds of any royalties on oil sales from the co.'s properties during the currency of the debentures. . . . The interest you will be entitled to receive from the co. is excluded from the consideration of profits." The debentures were redeemable on July 1, 1925, but they were secured by two debenture trust deeds which gave power to extend the due date, & in Apr. 1925, steps were taken which resulted in its extension to July 1, 1930. In May & June, 1925, a correspondence took place between pltf. & deft. in which pltf. announced his intention of selling the debentures, & deft. protested against this, claiming that they must be kept till their due date. On July 16, 1925, pltf. put the debentures up for sale, & in the absence of other bidders sold them to his son for £25. He then commenced proceedings to recover the amount of his loss, but the House of Lords decided that nothing was payable under the indemnity until the due date arrived. On July 18, 1928, the co. went into liquidation & pltf., having repurchased the debentures from his son, brought these proceedings to recover his loss:—Held: in selling the debentures pltf. had committed a breach of an implied term of the contract, & having failed to maintain the position essential to enable deft. to receive the consideration for the indemnity, he had committed a breach of a term going to the root of the contract. Deft. had elected by his pleadings in the previous action to treat the contract as at an end & pltf. could not therefore maintain the present action.—GUY-PELL v. FOSTER, [1930] 2 Ch. 169; 99 L. J. 164a. Whether public highway—Claim of dedication.]—Pltfs. claimed a declaration that a way over deft.'s land was a public highway for vehicular traffic up to a certain point & for foot traffic from that point to Cockington Church on the ground that dedication should be presumed from evidence of uninterrupted use by the public throughout living memory & from evidence of reputation. The church was surrounded by deft.'s grounds, &, apart from a private path from his grounds, there was no access to the church except by the way in question. Deft. admitted that there was a church way for parishioners along the way, but he denied that there was any public right of way. Since 1774 the title to the property had been such that the owners could, if so minded, have dedicated the way to the public. The freehold of the church was in the incumbent & it had fulfilled all the functions of a parish church, but no person had a right to enter it without the permission of the vicar & churchwardens when it was not open for Divine service. The ct. found that apart from parishioners comparatively few persons had visited the church until about 1890, but since the War large numbers of persons had done so by the way in question & no one had ever been turned back. Owing to the increased use of the way notices were put up that visitors must keep to the path & not pick the flowers & that there would be no admission through the gate after 6 p.m. There was also a notice "No thoroughfare except to the church." In 1923 annoyance from visitors began & the gate was ordered to be locked after dusk, but no complaint was ever made, though some persons were actually prevented from going along the way to the church :—Held : on the evidence, the use of the way could properly be explained as having taken place by permission, & there was no reason why the ct. should presume from that use dedication to the public, & therefore the action failed.—A.-G. v. MALLOCK (1931), 146 L. 298a. Paths joining existing highways.]—Evidence of long public user, as of right, of a pathway or roadway for the purpose of passing from one public place to another, is not the less ground for inferring dedication because recreation may have been the sole motive of such user.

H. & W. were neighbouring freeholders, & the sites of their properties originally formed part of the D. estate. The property of H. was originally let on a long lease in 1878 to one G., together with a right of way over a rough road, of the nature of a timber road, leading up from the London Road towards the property & past the property to Box Hill. In 1916 H. acquired the freehold of the property, & took a conveyance of the roadway in 1924. W., without the consent of H., opened a small gate for pedestrians in the boundary fence. In the action H. claimed a declaration that he was the freeholder of the said roadway & an injunction to restrain W. from trespassing thereon. Evidence was given of public user between Box Hill & the London Road for purposes of pleasure :—Held : the evidence of public user led to a presumption that the land had been dedicated, & that the motive of such user was irrelevant.—HUE v. WHITELEY, [1929] 1 Ch. 440; 98 L. J. Ch. 227; 140 L. T. 531.

But a plot of land included in the area was practically neglected for sixteen years, & was then handed over to the local authority's Parks Committee for use as an open space & was drained & gravelled. Later, a fountain & certain structures were erected on the plot, & the public used the plot freely & continuously. In or about 1928 the local authority wished to build a tuberculosis dispensary & offices on the plot, & the Minister of Health approved its appropriation for that purpose. In an action by the Attorney-General on relation for an injunction to restrain the local authority from building so as to interfere with the right of user & enjoyment of the plot by the public :—Held : the public had not acquired by user a public right of way over the plot; the public rights over the plot were general & to some extent precarious, & could be destroyed under Public Health Acts (Amendment) Act, 1907 (c. 53), s. 95.—A.-G. v. MANCHESTER CORPN., [1931] 1 Ch. 254; 100 L. footpath along a sea cliff for some distance when its direction continued on a line slanting inland, & during the course of some twenty years, owing to erosion by the sea, the footpath so used had receded about twenty or thirty feet inland, though the ct. was always slow to infer the dedication of a public right of way along a sea cliff, such a dedication could be here inferred, having regard to the fact that part of the footpath did not run along the sea cliff, & no objection to its user had been made by the owner of the land over which the footpath continued after leaving the sea cliff. Pltfs. having claimed that there was no public right of way over a strip of land under a portion of a fence removed by defts.:—Held: the public had wandered from the original right of way over the land of pltfs. when it was in the hands of their predecessor in title & was derelict, but the user of the new way by the public had never been acquiesced in, & there had never been a dedication of it to the public use, & pltfs. were entitled to a declaration that there was no such public right of way.—BOULTWOOD v. PAIGNTON URBAN DISTRICT COUNCIL (1928), 92 J. 322a. —— User by sufferance.]—Deft. council claimed that there was a public footpath over pltf.'s park. On a plan attached to an inclosure award of 1816 no such public footpath was set out, & since that time down to 1901 the park had been in settlement with no one capable of dedicating a right of way to the public. The alleged footpath led from the public road over part of the carriage drive to the hall, & then turned off through the park, leading to only three farms & three or four cottages, & by its use a distance of about sixty-four yards was saved. There was no evidence of dedication, & the evidence of user was by the occupants of the farms & cottages & their friends:—Held: the proof of uninterrupted user was no more than evidence from which the ct. could infer that at some time the owner of the soil had dedicated the path to the public of which there was no evidence, & the evidence of user was user by sufferance only since 1816, before which no such public footpath was shown to exist.—FENWICK v. HUNTINGDON RURAL DISTRICT COUNCIL (1928), 92 J. The vendor's covenant being qualified, the question turned upon whether there had been dedication of the right subsequently to 1782, the date of the last purchase for value by those through whom the vendor claimed. Pltf. produced two tithe maps, made respectively in 1802 & 1840, in neither of which was the right of way marked:—Held: the tithe maps were made for a special purpose, & not for the purpose of showing public or private rights other than as regards tithe; they were not, therefore, primâ facie evidence enabling pltf. to contend that the dedication was at a subsequent date, so as to shift upon deft. the onus of proving that the dedication was prior to 1782.—STONEY v. EASTBOURNE RURAL COUNCIL, [1927] 1 Ch. 367; 95 L. 616a. —— Trees.]—As owner of a house at C., which was bounded on the west & north by public highways known as Mill Lane & St. Andrew's Road respectively, pltf. claimed the property in certain polled lime trees, proved to be about 110 years old, standing along the edge of the footpaths on the eastern & southern sides of those two highways. Pltf. having refused to comply with defts.' notice to remove the trees on the ground that they were dangerous & obstructions to traffic & defts. having, in consequence of her refusal, themselves removed three of the trees in St. Andrew's Road, pltf. brought this action, by which she claimed an injunction to restrain defts. from removing the remaining trees & for certain other relief. She claimed that the trees had been planted before the dedication of the roads as public highways, & that there had been excepted from such dedication the portions of the roads in which the trees were planted. There was no evidence of such restricted dedication as pltf. asserted, but, on the contrary, evidence that the trees in both roads were planted in areas over which, as ancient highways, the public had rights of passage. It was proved that some of the trees were, through disease & decay, so unstable as to be an immediate danger to the public & a nuisance to the highway, that others threatened to become a similar danger at short notice, & that the rest, including the three trees which defts. had removed, were a danger to traffic & a nuisance. On Aug. 16, 1920, the boundary of the borough of New Windsor was altered so as to include the parish of C. (Without), & it was admitted that the two roads were highways repairable by the inhabitants at large :—Held : (1) the roads were ancient highways upon which, after dedication to the public use, the trees were planted ; (2) even assuming pltf. had property in the trees, defts. as to those trees which had been proved to be a nuisance to the highway, had not merely a right but a duty to remove them, & as to the remaining trees, they were entitled to remove them as being obstructions to the rights of the public over the entire width of the roads, which were not limited to the use of the carriageways ; (3) the trees, as being parts of the " streets " or as produce of the soil thereof, vested under Public Health Act, 1875, in & came under the control of defts. as the highway authority, with the result that pltf. was not in a position to complain, & her action failed.—STILLWELL v. NEW WINDSOR CORPN., [1932] 2 Ch. 155 ; 101 L.
